CONSTITUTION

OF THE

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 1. This society shall be denominated "THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY."

ART. 2. The great object of this Society shall be to assist congregations that are unable to support the Gospel Ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute, within the United States.

ART. 3. The officers of the Society shall be a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, a Corresponding Secretary, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors, who shall be annually appointed by the Society; and who, together with the Directors for life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. 4. The Officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of thirteen, (including the Treasurer, the Corresponding Secretary, and the Recording Secretary,) residing in the City of New-York and its vicinity; seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened. This Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society; shall appoint Missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labours; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing Missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the Institution may require; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

ART. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds annually to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

ART. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society by contributing annually to its funds; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for life; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for life; and any person, on the payment of a sum, which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for life. An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for life; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute him a Director for life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Corresponding Secretary a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a Missionary, or Missionaries, to labour in such field as it may designate; at least to the amount of its contributions; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be, ex-officio, Directors; and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of this Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the City of New-York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

ART. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution without a vote of two-thirds of the Members present, at an annual meeting, nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY
OF THE
American Home Missionary Society.

The First Anniversary of the American Home Missionary Society was held in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Beekman-street, New-York, on Wednesday evening, May 9, 1827. The Hon. Stephen Van Rensselaer, LL. D. President of the Society, in the Chair.

The meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. Jeremiah Day, D. D. President of Yale College, Conn.

The First Annual Report was then read, with the exception of the detailed account of Churches aided, and the names of Missionaries, by the Rev. Absalom Peters, Corresponding Secretary. After which, the following Resolutions were adopted.

1. On motion of the Rev. Professor Goodrich, of Yale College, seconded by the Rev. E. W. Gilbert, of Wilmington, Delaware, Resolved, That the Report of the Executive Committee be approved and adopted; and that it be published under their direction.

2. On motion of Thomas Bradford, Esq. of Philadelphia, seconded by the Rev. E. Fisk, D. D. of Goshen, N. Y.

Resolved, That the object and plan of this National Society, are such as recommend it to the patronage of American Christians and patriots.

3. On motion of the Rev. Asa Hillyer, D. D. of Orange, New-Jersey, seconded by the Rev. Cyrus Mason, of New-York, Resolved, That the thanks of the Society be given to the Executive Committee for their gratuitous and responsible services during the past year.

To the above Resolution a reply was made, in behalf of the Executive Committee, by Mr. John D. Keese, Chairman.

4. On motion of Rev. William Nevins of Baltimore, Maryland seconded by the Rev. Thomas Macauley, D. D. LL. D. of New-York,

Resolved, That the thanks of this Society be given to the Auxiliary and other Societies, and to individuals who have contributed in aid of its benevolent operations.

5. On motion of the Rev. Mr. Fisher, of Paterson, N. Jersey, seconded by the Rev. Mr. Beattie of Long-Island, Resolved, That the Society has occasion for devout gratitude to God, for the signal success with which he has crowned its operations the past year.

6. On motion of Rev. George Bush, of Indianapolis, Indiana, seconded by Rev. John H. Rice, D. D. Professor in the Theological Seminary, Prince Edward county, Virginia,

Resolved, That the rapid increase of population, and the alarming deficiency of ministers of the Gospel in the Western and Southern States, and the dependence of our civil liberties upon the institutions of religion, call for more united, vigorous, and extended efforts to establish Christian ordinances in every destitute portion of this nation.

The Society then proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year, and made choice of the following, viz :

 Mr. Archibald Falconer, Recording Secretary.

FIRST REPORT.

THE Executive Committee of the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY, come to the congratulations and thanksgivings of its First Anniversary with a tender recollection of one of their own number, whom the mysterious Providence of God has suddenly removed out of his place. The name of the late Recording Secretary of the Society, Mr. STEPHEN LOCKWOOD, will ever be associated with the doings of the first year of this Institution. But he has ceased from under heaven. A voice out of the fire* commanded him to rest from his labours, and his works do follow him. He was the firm, the judicious, the devoted, the evangelical friend of Home Missions, and we doubt not that he now joins in the jubilee of heaven, while the Society lives, and thousands who love its prosperity live, to praise God as we do this day.

In presenting our Report of the last year, there is great reason for gratitude that we have so little to say of judgment, and so much of mercy.

It has been a year of the Right Hand of the Most High.

* Mr. Lockwood's decease was occasioned by the bursting of the boiler of the Steam-Boat Oliver Elsworth, at the mouth of Connecticut River, March 22, 1827. He died on the second day following, (having had opportunity to express entire acquiescence in the will of his heavenly Father.) in the 37th year of his age.

The enterprise which gave birth to this Institution had, for a number of years, occupied a share in the attentions of the christian public. The design of supplying the destitute in this country with the preaching of the gospel was not new to the friends of this Society, nor to the Committee, when they commenced the labours of the last year. It is well known that Domestic Missionary Societies had become numerous in the several states, and that the experience of the most important of these was consulted in the formation of the National Institution. The measures of the Committee, therefore, are not to be regarded as matters of experiment, but as the moving onward of a plan, enlarged, indeed, in the field of its operations, but which had been already sufficiently proved, and upon which the Almighty had set the seal of his own approbation. The Committee, accordingly, entered upon their labours with encouragements such as they could not have felt, had the Society been in every respect new. They brought with them a rich experience of the blessing of God upon their efforts in the service of the United Domestic Missionary Society, out of which this Institution was formed.

The stated meetings of the Committee have been held twice in each month, besides many intermediate meetings for special business. For the transaction of such business as might require attention, in the mean time, they have made constant provision by the appointment of a Business Committee of three, subject to the call of the Corresponding Secretary. By these means prompt attention has been given to the numerous details of the Society's office ; and the Committee, in effect, has been constantly in session, which is an advantage peculiar to Institutions whose operations are so far extended as to demand the employment of permanent officers, to devote their whole time to their work.

This Committee were bound by the terms of their appointment to enter into the labours of the U. D. M. S., and to assume the responsibility of its previous engagements. There were, accordingly, on the books of the Society, at the commencement of the year, 119 congregations to which aid had been pledged, and 101 ministers, the period of whose engagements had not yet been fulfilled. Of these, 55 have been reappointed, and are still in the service of the Society, together with 68 who have been received as missionaries within the year, making the whole number of congregations and missionary districts aided since the 12th of May last 196, and the number of ministers employed, 169.

The following is a full list of the congregations, and fields of labour to which the names of the Society's missionaries and agents are annexed, in alphabetical order, together with the number of months for which the Committee has become responsible that the ministrations of the gospel may be regularly enjoyed at each station, and the proportion of aid granted in the support of each missionary, viz :

1. The Presbyterian Society in Syracuse, Onondaga county, N. Y. The Church was organized there April 6, 1826, consisting of 26 members, and our missionary was installed as its pastor in June following. Since the 1st of January last, they have enjoyed something of the spirit of revival. In March last, the Church had increased to 45, and more were expected to join at the next communion. The number of new converts at that time was estimated at 25, and the revival continued. Commission renewed for 12 months, May 4, 1827. Proportion of aid 2 months.

Rev. John W. Adams, Pastor.

2. First Church in Sullivan, Madison county, New-York. Commission for 12 months, dated June 13, 1825, extending 1 month into the last year. Proportion of aid, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ month.

Rev. Roger Adams, Pastor.

3. Lawrenceburgh and Aurora, Dearborn county, Indiana. Our missionary to these places was sent out by the U. D. M. S. in October 1825, under commission for one year from the time of his arrival in that state. His labours appear to have been acceptable to the people, and highly useful in the places above named, and in several of the neighbouring congregations, particularly in Cæsar-Creek township, Broome Co. Kentucky, where he has preached occasionally. As Lawrenceburgh is the seat of justice for the most populous county in the state excepting one, and Aurora the seat of a flourishing school, which has grown up under the fostering care of our missionary, these are regarded by the Committee as very interesting and important locations. Commission renewed for 12 months from January 8, 1827. Proportion of aid for the first year, 4 months, besides an outfit sufficient to bear his expenses to the field of his labours. Second year, 3 months.

Rev. Lucius Alden, Missionary.

4. Montrose, Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania. The Church in this place has received aid 3 years, and the labours of their minister have been highly blessed. They have succeeded in erecting a convenient house for public worship, which was dedicated in June last. A revival of religion commenced there in the early part of the year, which in October had resulted in the addition of 30 to the Church, and more were expected to join soon. The proportion of aid granted by this Society the last year, has been 3 months. Commission for 12 months, dated May 1, 1826.

Rev. Burr Baldwin, Pastor.

5. The Seventh Presbyterian Church in the City of New-York. The last grant of the U. D. M. S. to this Church was for 12 months, ending October 14, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months, since which they have made no further application for assistance. This Church has at length succeeded in erecting a commodious and substantial house of worship, and the congregation has become large, and abundantly able to support the minister of their choice. It is now enjoying the special favour of God in the awakening and conversion of sinners.

Rev. Elihu W. Baldwin, Pastor.

- *6. The United Congregations of Hamburg and East Aurora, Erie county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months from March 9, 1827. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. John T. Baldwin, Minister.

- *7. York, Livingston county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, dated December 20, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Johnson Baldwin, Minister.

Mr. Baldwin laboured under Commission from the U. D. M. S. until October 11, 1826, in the Churches of Orangeville and Sheldon, Genesee county, N. Y.

8. The Highlands, west of the Hudson River, Orange county, N. Y. have received continued aid. Commission renewed November 7, 1826, for 12 months. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Hosea Ball, Missionary.

9. The Churches of Wooster and Apple Creek, Wayne county, Ohio,

* This mark designates those Churches and Religious societies which have been assisted on the recommendation of the Geneva Agency, and aided by funds raised by that Board.

have received continued aid in the proportion of $1\frac{1}{2}$ month. Commission renewed August 24, 1826. Our missionary there appears to have been laboriously and successfully employed.
Rev. Thomas Barr, Pastor.

- * 10. The First and Second Presbyterian Congregations in Howard, Steuben county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, dated April 9, 1827. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Lyman Barrett, Minister.

11. Peru, Huron county, Ohio. Commission for 12 months, dated November 9, 1826. Proportion of aid, 4 months.

Rev. John Beach, Minister.

12. The Presbyterian Church and Society in Cairo, Greene county, N. Y. was aided by a grant of the U. D. M. S. in the proportion of 7 weeks for the year ending May 16, 1826.

Rev. Daniel Beers, Minister.

13. The Second Presbyterian Church in Utica, Oneida county, N. Y., has continued to enjoy the revival of religion mentioned in the last Report of the U. D. M. S. during a considerable portion of the last year. Our missionary writes as follows under date of Dec. 8, 1826. "In reviewing the dealings of God toward this infant branch of Zion the past year, we have abundant cause for gratitude and praise. About 80 persons, worshipping with us at different periods, it is believed, have become pious in this revival. Some have removed from the place, and a number have united with other Churches. Sixty-four have united with this Church on profession of their faith, and more than 30 by letter." The Church now consists of 178, and having completed a commodious house for public worship, it is presumed that this congregation will need no further assistance from this Society. Proportion of aid granted the last year, 3 months. Commission dated March 8, 1826.

Rev. Samuel W. Brace, Pastor.

14. Cleaveland, Cuyahoga county, Ohio, appears to have enjoyed a steady advance of morals since the last Report of the U. D. M. S. It is regarded by the Committee as a highly interesting and important location. Sabbath School flourishing. Our missionary preaches a portion of the time in the neighbouring town of Brooklyn, where there have been several hopeful conversions, and 7 added to the Church. Proportion of aid, 3 months. Commission dated January 22, 1827.

Rev. Stephen J. Bradstreet, Pastor.

* 15. The Congregational Society of Brutus, Cayuga county, N. Y. have been aided in the proportion of 2 months. Commission for 12 months, dated November 16, 1826. The Spirit of God seems to have rendered the labours of our missionary there in some measure effectual.

Rev. A. H. Buel, Minister.

† 16. The Church in Cape Vincent, Jefferson county, N. Y. received the promise of aid from the U. D. M. S. in the proportion of 3 months. Commission dated Nov. 20, 1825. This appointment was only half fulfilled, our missionary having removed from that station May 20, 1826.

Rev. Jedediah Burchard, Minister.

17. The Church in Little Falls, Herkimer county, N. Y. has received continued aid in the proportion of 4 months. Commission dated April 23, 1826, for 12 months.

Rev. Stephen W. Burritt, Pastor.

18. Bangor and Fort Covington, Franklin county, N. Y. Commission in the former place, 12 months from February 21, 1826, and in the latter place, 6 months from August 21, 1826. Proportion of aid in both, 3 months. In Fort Covington, a Church has been organized, and the Sabbath School and Bible Class are reported as flourishing.

Rev. Joseph Butler, Minister.

19. The Church in Stow's Square, Lowville, Lewis Co. N. Y. received aid a part of the last year. Commission for 12 months from January 10, 1826. Proportion of aid, 2 months. A season of refreshing in this place has resulted in the accession of about 20 to the Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Phineas Camp, Minister.

This Church is now aided by the Western Dom. Miss. Society.

* 20. The Presbyterian Congregation of Newark, (Arcadia,) Wayne Co. N. Y. Commission dated November 6, 1826. Proportion of aid 3 months.

Rev. Alfred E. Campbell, Minister.

21. The Rev. Hiram Chamberlin, under Commission from the U. D. M. S. arrived in Missouri, March 8, 1826, and with the advice of the St. Louis Presbytery, took up his residence at St. Louis, in that State, where he laboured several months with great usefulness; but the sickness of his family and other circumstances rendering it expedient, he removed from that station in the autumn, and has spent the winter principally at Dardenne, in the neighbourhood of St. Charles, where he has preached with great acceptance, and has been kindly received by the people. The Committee have the best testimony from the Elders of the Church in that place, of the faithfulness, discretion and ability with which Mr. C. has pursued the work of the Ministry both there and in neighbouring settlements, where he has preached a portion of the time during the winter. But by the last returns, we are sorry to learn that the protracted illness of Mrs. Chamberlin, who had been four months confined to her room, and was not expected to recover, had detained our Missionary from occupying an interesting station at Cantonment Miller, to which he had been designated. The Committee have sympathized in his peculiar trials, and with the fullest confidence in his superior qualifications for the work of a Missionary, have continued to him the aid of this Society.

22. The Church in Hunter, Greene Co. N. Y. has received continued aid in the proportion of 3 months. Commission for twelve months from July 15, 1826.

Rev. Seth Chapin, Pastor.

* 23. The Presbyterian Congregation of Wolcott, Wayne Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months, dated October 24, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months, $\frac{1}{4}$ to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. Alanson B. Chittenden, Minister.

† 24. Parma, Monroe Co. N. Y. has received aid since January 21, 1827. Commission for 12 months. Proportion of aid, $2\frac{1}{2}$ months.

Rev. Ralph Clapp, Minister.

25. The Presbyterian Congregation of Preble, Courtland Co. N. Y. Commission for twelve months from January 20, 1827. Proportion of aid, 3 months, $\frac{1}{4}$ to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. Abner P. Clarke, Minister.

† 26. Truxton, Courtland Co. N. Y. Commission, 12 months, dated December 13, 1825. Proportion of aid, about 2 months.

Rev. Caleb Clark, Pastor.

* 27. The Presbyterian Congregation of Spencer, Tioga Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from March 13, 1827. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Gardner K. Clark, Minister.

† 28. Granby and Hannibal, Oswego Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from March 21, 1826, and has not been renewed. Proportion of aid, 4 months.

The above congregation is now aided by the Western D. M. S.

Rev. William Clark, Minister.

† This mark designates the Congregations aided by funds raised by the Monroe County Home Missionary Society, Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S.

29. Cohocton, Steuben Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from October 5, 1825. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Stalham Clary, Minister.

30. Royalton, Niagara Co. N. Y. Aid in the proportion of three months for the year ending December 9, 1826.

Rev. George Colton, Minister.

31. Lime and Ridgefield, Huron Co. Ohio. Aid, 3 months. Commission for 12 months, dated October 29, 1826. Prospects favourable in this location.

Rev. Enoch Conger, Minister.

32. The Rev. Simeon H. Crane, was appointed September 7, 1826, to labour as a Missionary in Kentucky. Commission for twelve months from the day of his arrival in that State, with an outfit of $50 to defray the expenses of his journey thither, and aid during the year in the proportion of 6 months. Mr. Crane reports that he arrived in Kentucky, October 26, 1826, and has laboured in several destitute congregations in the neighbourhood of Lexington. The Committee have been assured by a respected Correspondent in the last named place, that the labours of our Missionary have been highly useful in the field assigned him in that State.

33. The Rev. James Crawford was appointed as a Missionary in Indiana, August 14, 1826. Commission for 12 months from the day of his arrival in that State. Outfit $100, and the amount of his support for the year to be fixed by the Indiana Missionary Society. Mr. C. arrived in Indiana December 1st—since which he has laboured in Jennings Co. in that state, in a circuit embracing Paris, Vernon, and Dartmouth. The people have received him with great kindness, and have pledged a large portion of his support for the year, and we are happy to learn that his prospects of permanent usefulness there, are highly encouraging.

34. Poundridge, West Chester Co. N. Y. Proportion of aid, three months. Commission for twelve months, dated April 19, 1827.

Rev. Daniel Crocker, Minister.

†35. Wheatland, Monroe Co. N. Y. Commission for 6 months, dated December 5, 1826. Proportion of aid 1½ months. We are happy to learn that in this Congregation there is at present an interesting awakening, and that there have been several hopeful conversions.

Rev. William F. Curry, Minister.

†36. The Church in Shelby, Orleans Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from April 25, 1826. Proportion of aid 3 months.
Rev. Alanson Darwin, Minister.

37. The Rev. John L. De Fernex, late of Geneva, in Switzerland, was appointed as a Missionary to the French population of the city of New-Orleans, February 19, 1827. Commission for 12 months from the day of his arrival in that city. Outfit, $50, and proportion of aid pledged for the year, 3 months. This Mission was regarded by the Committee with deep and lively interest, but the success of Mr. De F. has thus far greatly surpassed our expectations. He arrived in New-Orleans March 22, 1827, and was cordially welcomed by several of the citizens to whom he was recommended. After having preached two Sabbaths, public measures were adopted to form a French Church in that city, and to secure Mr. De F. as its Pastor. At the date of our last returns, a sufficient amount was subscribed for his support, independent of the aid of this Society; and his prospects of immediate and conspicuous usefulness were highly encouraging. In view of the immense moral influence of the city of New-Orleans, this bold Christian enterprise of an enlightened Foreigner, cannot fail to inspire the gratitude and engage the prayers of the friends of Christ throughout the country. [See Appendix.]

38. Rev. Isaac S. Demund was appointed by the U. D. M. S. as a Missionary in Huron Co. Ohio. Proportion of aid, 3 months. Commission for 12 months from October 12, 1825. We regret to state that Mr. D. after having laboured faithfully in several of the destitute places in that county, was induced, by ill health, and other discouragements, to leave the field to which he had been appointed.

39. Farmington, Oakland Co. Michigan. Proportion of aid, four months. Commission for 12 months from October 10, 1826.

Rev. Ira Dunning, Minister.

40. The Rev. Elijah M. Eagleton has been appointed to labour as a Missionary in several destitute places in Knox Co. Tennessee, with a view to his permanent settlement in two of the congregations to which he ministers. Commission for 12 months, dated January 22, 1827. Proportion of aid, 2 months.

*41. The Presbyterian Congregation of Jamestown, Chataque Co. N. Y. has received continued aid in the proportion of 2 months. Commission renewed for 12 months from November 14, 1826.
Rev. Isaac Eddy, Minister.

42. The Churches of Annsville and Vienna, Oneida Co. N. Y. Proportion of aid, 3 months. Commission for 12 months ending January 26, 1827. These churches have been visited with the special influences of the Spirit of God, and have been considerably increased the last year.

Rev. Ozias S. Eells, Pastor. Now aided by the W. D. M. S.

43. The Rev. John M. Ellis, who was appointed by the U. D. M. S. as a Missionary in Illinois, arrived there Dec. 1, 1825, and has, since that, preached stately in Kaskaskia, in Illinois, and in St. Genevieve, Missouri. His reports have been of a highly interesting character, and his labours appear to have been both acceptable and very useful. He has manifested much zeal in the promotion of Sabbath Schools and in the circulation of Religious Tracts and useful Books, and the Committee regret that it has not been in their power to answer his earnest appeals for the latter, with a more abundant supply. This is an important location, and much may be expected from the efficient labours of Mr. E. in behalf of the adjoining country in those States.

44. The Church in Windham, Greene Co. N. Y. has received continued aid in the proportion of three months. Commission for 12 months from May 1, 1826.

Rev. William Evans, Pastor.

- * 45. The Presbyterian Congregation of Fayette, Seneca Co. has received aid in the proportion of 1 month for the year.

Rev. Isaac Flagler, Pastor.

46. The Church in Bainbridge, Chenango Co. N. Y. Aid, two months. Commission for twelve months from February 8, 1826. Three fourths of the aid granted to this Church has been refunded by donations received from members of the Congregation, and from our Missionary there.

Rev. Sayrs Gazlay, Minister.

- * 47. The Presbyterian Congregations of Port Bay and Rose, Wayne Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months, dated April 9, 1827. Proportion of aid, 2½ months.

Rev. Nathan Gillet, Minister.

48. The Rev. Daniel Gould has been appointed to labour as a Missionary in several destitute places in Iredell Co. N. Car. with instructions to spend a portion of his time as Agent of this Society in that State. Commission for 12 months, dated May 15, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months. Mr. Gould appears to have pursued his work with faithfulness, and the great destitution of competent Ministers in that State, as represented in his correspondence, is such as appeals loudly to the sympathies of Christians in more favoured portions of the country.

- † 49. The Presbyterian Church in Allen-street, in the city of New-York. Commission for 12 months from August 21, 1826. Proportion of aid, 4 months.

Rev. William Gray, Pastor.

50. The Church in Milford, Pike Co. Penn. was organized in 1825, and through the aid of the U. D. M. S. obtained the labours of a Minister half the time. Aid has been continued to this Church in the proportion of 3 months. Commission for half the time, twelve months, dated January 3, 1827. This Congregation has been signally blessed with the influences of the Holy Ghost for several months. A revival of religion of great power commenced there in August last, which has not yet subsided. The number of persons added to the Church, as the fruits of this awakening, is 156, and the influence of this work of the Lord is extensively felt in the county, which is very destitute of the preaching of the word. The Congregation is now making exertions to erect a house of worship, which it is expected will be completed the present year.

Rev. Thomas Grier, Pastor.

51. The Congregational Church in Somers, Westchester Co. N. Y. has received continued aid in the proportion of $2\frac{1}{2}$ months, $\frac{1}{4}$ to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. Commission renewed for 12 months, dated May 4, 1827.

Rev. Griffith H. Griffith, Pastor.

52. The Churches in De Kalb and Russell, St. Lawrence Co. N. Y. have received a grant of aid in the proportion of 3 months. Commission for 12 months, dated September 8, 1826.

Rev. Lemuel Hall, Minister.

53. The Church in Gouverneur, St. Lawrence Co. N. Y. through the aid of this Society, has been enabled to settle a Minister with very encouraging prospects of usefulness. Commission for 12 months, dated July 10, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Richard C. Hand, Pastor.

54. The Congregation of Cherry Springs, near Lexington, Kentucky. Proportion of aid, 3 months. Commission for 12 months from December 11, 1826.

Rev. Joseph C. Harrison, Minister.

55. The Church in De Ruyter, Madison Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from May 4, 1826, half the time. Proportion of aid, 2 months.

Rev. Matthew Harrison, Minister.

56. The Church in Bloomfield, Trumbull Co. Ohio, through the aid of this Society, has settled a Minister, whose labours are attended with very encouraging appearances. Commission for 12 months from January 8, 1827. Proportion of aid, 3 months, a quarter to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. Jacob Hart, Pastor.

58. The Church in Union, Broome Co. N. Y. has received continued aid. Commission for 12 months from June 17, 1826. Proportion of aid, $2\frac{1}{2}$ months, one third to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. Oliver Hill, Pastor.

59. The Rev. Elbridge G. Howe, who was aided by the U. D. M. S. has received assistance from this Society, in the proportion of about 2 months for the year. Since our last Report, he has removed from Springfield, Sangamo Co. Illinois, where he was then labouring, and at the date of his last letter to the Committee, was preaching in Paris, Edgar Co. in the same State.

60. The Church in Greene, Chenango Co. N. Y. having been strengthened by the last grant from the U. D. M. S. has asked no further assistance. Commission for 12 months from January 3, 1826. Aid, 2 months.

Rev. John B. Hoyt, Pastor.

61. The Churches in Centreville and its vicinity, Alleghany Co. N. Y. have continued to enjoy the faithful and very useful services of our Missionary there. Commission renewed Jan. 22, 1827.

Rev. Silas Hubbard, Minister.

- *62. The Presbyterian Congregation of Hector, Tompkins county, N. Y. Commission for 6 months from January 1, 1827. Proportion of aid, $1\frac{1}{2}$ months.

Rev. Leverett Hull, Minister.

It is understood that Mr. Hull left his charge there before the arrival of his commission.

- *63. The Presbyterian Congregation of Middlebury, Genesee county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, half the time from February 25, 1827. Proportion of aid, $1\frac{1}{2}$ months.

Rev. Eli S. Hunter, Minister.

64. The Congregational Church in Clarendon, Rutland county, Vermont, has received continued aid. Commission for 6 months, dated October 10, 1826. The revival in this Church mentioned in the last Report of the U. D. M. S., has resulted in the hopeful conversion of from 25 to 30 souls. Proportion of aid for the year, 3 months.

Rev. Henry Hunter, Pastor.

- *65. The Presbyterian Congregation of Haight, Alleghany county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, from November 14, 1826. Proportion of aid, $1\frac{1}{2}$ months.

Rev. Reuben Hurd, Minister.

66. The Church in Stafford, Genesee county, N. Y. Commission renewed for 12 months, from May 1, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months, one quarter to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. Milton Huxley, Pastor.

- *67. The Second Presbyterian Congregation of Genoa, Cayuga county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, from October 13, 1826. Proportion of aid, $1\frac{1}{2}$ months. This congregation has enjoyed a special revival of religion, which has resulted in the hopeful conversion of from 45 to 50 souls.

Rev. Nathaniel E. Johnson, Pastor.

- *68. The Congregational Society in Barre, Orleans county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, dated October 24, 1826. Proportion of aid, $1\frac{1}{2}$ months.

Rev. William Johnson, Minister.

69. A grant of one month's aid was made May 20, 1826, to the Church in Sullivan, Madison county, N. Y. for labour performed in the year ending February 1, 1826, and which was not stated in the last Report of the U. D. M. S.

Rev. Charles Johnson, Missionary.

70. The Church in Madison, Jefferson Co. Indiana. The Pastor of this Church was commissioned by the U. D. M. S. for 12 months from October 1, 1825, with a view to his performing missionary services in the vicinity one fourth part of the time. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. James H. Johnston, Pastor.

- *71. The Presbyterian Congregation of Byron, Genesee Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from October 4, 1826. Proportion of aid, $1\frac{1}{2}$ months.

Rev. William P. Kendrick, Minister.

- †72. The Church in Henrietta, Monroe Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from August 19, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. George P. King, Minister.

73. The Churches of Warren and Orwell, Bradford Co. Penn. have received continued aid in the proportion of 3 months; one third to be raised by the Aux. Soc. there. Commission for 12 months from March 17, 1827.

Rev. Salmon King, Minister.

- †74. The Church in De Kalb, St. Lawrence Co. N. Y. The Minister aided at this place, as mentioned in the last Report of the U. D. M. S., closed his labours in the service of this Society June 2, 1827. Proportion of aid, 2 months for the year.

Rev. Thomas Kinnan, Minister.

75. The Church in Ticonderoga, Essex Co. N. Y. has been blessed with the special influences of the Holy Spirit under the faithful labours of our Missionary. Between 20 and 30 have been added to the Church. Commission for 12 months from November 9, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Ezra D. Kinne, Minister.

76. The Congregations of Mayville and Annsville, Chatauque Co. N. Y. though not mentioned in the last Report of the U. D. M. S. were at that time enjoying the preaching of the Gospel through aid pledged by that Society. Commission for 12 months ending Nov. 1, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Rodolphus Landfer, Minister.

77. The Church in Elyria, Lorain Co. Ohio, has received continued aid, in the proportion of 3 months, one sixth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. Commission renewed for 12 months from March 21, 1827.

Rev. Daniel W. Lathrop, Pastor.

78. The Presbyterian Church in St. Augustine, E. Florida. This is regarded by the Committee as a highly interesting location, as the contemplated Canal from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific Ocean will probably pass not far from it, and add greatly to its wealth and importance. It now contains 2,000 inhabitants, and the labours of our Missionary appear to have been well received and useful. Commission for 12 months from December 8, 1825. Proportion of aid, 4 months.

Rev. Eleazer Lathrop, Minister.

Mr. Lathrop left this place July 12, 1826, on account of ill health, and has been succeeded by the Rev. Mr. Snowden, whose name is found in its alphabetical place.

79. The Church in Catlin's Settlement, town of Lincklaen, Chenango Co. N. Y. Commission renewed for 12 months from June 27, 1827. Proportion of aid $2\frac{1}{2}$ months; one third to be paid by an Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. E. T. Leavenworth, Pastor.

80. The Church in Evans, Erie Co. N. Y. Commission renewed for 12 months from August 11, 1826. Proportion of aid three months. There have been in this Congregation, several hopeful conversions within the year. Sabbath Schools flourishing.

Rev. Samuel Leonard, Pastor.

81. The 12th and 13th Townships in Constantia, Oswego Co. N. Y. have been greatly blessed under the faithful labours of our Missionary there. From 40 to 50 souls have been hopefully born again in these Congregations, and 20 have been added to the Church. Commission renewed August 24, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Clement Lewis, Minister.

82. The Rev. Jacob Little, as noticed in the last report of the U. D. M. S. was preaching in Hoosick, Rensselaer Co. N. Y. where he continued until the expiration of his engagement, May 14, 1826. Soon after this, he was sent out by this Society to labour in Washington Co. Ohio, with a grant of $100 in advance, and to receive the remainder of his support from the Washington County Auxiliary Missionary Society. Commission dated June 12th, 1826. Mr. L. has laboured with great faithfulness and success in several Congregations in that county; has established Sabbath Schools and Bible Classes in the most important places, which are attended with great interest. In Belpre, where he has preached more frequently than at any other place, the blessing of Heaven has descended on his labours, and a revival of religion has commenced, which has already increased the little Church in that place, one third.

83. The Rev. James Hervey Logan has been appointed as a Missionary within the bounds of the Missionary Society of the Louisville Presbytery in Kentucky, with an outfit of $35 and an advance of about 2 months' aid in his support during the year. Commission dated Dec. 23, 1826. Mr. L. labours in several Congregations, with the prospect of usefulness in promoting their more perfect organization, and has been well received.

84. The Churches of Greenburgh and White Plains, Westchester Co. N. Y. Commission renewed for 12 months from May 1, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months. These Churches are increasing in strength. Bible Classes and Sabbath Schools flourishing.

Rev. Chester Long, Minister.

85. The Church in Painesville, Geauga Co. Ohio. Commission for 12 months, dated January 8, 1827. Proportion of aid, 4 months. This is regarded as an important location, and we are happy to learn that it presents prospects of encouragement to the labours of a faithful Minister.

Rev. Orange Lyman, Minister.

86. The United Churches of North and South Pittstown, Rensselaer county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending December 9, 1826. Proportion of aid, $2\frac{1}{2}$ months.

114. The Church in Athens, Bradford county, Pennsylvania, has received continued aid in the proportion of 3 months. Commission for 12 months from August 2, 1826.

Rev. Isaac W. Platt, Pastor.

115. The Rev. Augustus Pomeroy was sent out by the U. D. M. S. to labour as a Missionary in Missouri, and arrived in that state, Jan. 12, 1826. Since that time, he has laboured in Franklin, Howard county, and Booneville, Cooper county, Missouri, where his ministry has been well received. His reports have been of a highly interesting character, and his efforts appear to have been, particularly blessed in elevating the standard of education, and in exhibiting, practically, the value of religious institutions. The Committee are sorry to learn, by the last returns, that Mr. Pomeroy's health was in some measure declining.

116. The Church in New Lisbon, Otsego county, N. Y. has received aid in the proportion of $1\frac{1}{2}$ months. Commission renewed for 12 months from August 24, 1826.

Rev. Seth J. Porter, Minister.

† 117. Galen, Wayne county, N. Y. has received continued aid in the proportion of $2\frac{1}{2}$ months, one third to be raised by the Auxiliary Society there. Commission for 12 months from December 1, 1826.

Rev. B. Foster Pratt, Pastor.

118. Rush, Monroe county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months from November 1, 1825. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Erie Prince, Minister.

‡ 119. The Rev. Mr. Prince, being advised by the Monroe county H. M. S. to go as a Missionary to Michigan, left his charge in Rush, at the expiration of his commission, and is now labouring in Monroe and Oakland counties, Michigan Territory, where his ministry is well received, and where it is probable the people will raise a large portion of his support. This field of labour is regarded by the Committee as highly important.

120. The Congregation of La Prairie, Lower Canada, has received continued aid in the proportion of $1\frac{1}{2}$ months. Commission renewed for 6 months from November 1, 1826.

Rev. Constant Southworth, Pastor.

142. The Rev. Miles P. Squier, has been appointed agent for the Society, to collect funds, form Auxillary Societies, and otherwise to promote the interests of Home Missions in that part of the state of New-York which lies west of the counties of Onondaga and Courtland. Commission for 12 months, dated May 16, 1826. Mr. Squier has since been appointed Secretary of the Geneva Agency, the duties of which he has discharged, in connection with those of his first appointment, to the entire acceptance of the Committee. [See Report of the Geneva Agency in the Appendix.]

* 143. The Congregation of Arcadia, Wayne county, N. Y. received aid from the Geneva Agency, under its old organization, previous to Sept. 1826.

Rev. Solomon Stephens, Minister.

county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months ending January 8, 1827. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. William O. Stratton, Minister.

Soon after his arrival in the congregations to which he had been designated, Mr. S. with the consent of the Committee, removed to the adjoining congregations of Lincklaen and Preston, where his labours appear to have been useful, and prospects encouraging.

*147. The Congregations of Collins and Lodi, Erie county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months from November 9, 1826. Proportion of aid stipulated, $2\frac{1}{2}$ months.

Rev. Lott B. Sullivan, Minister.

For reasons which were satisfactory to the Committee, Mr. S. left the above congregations, after having laboured there about 16 weeks.

*148. The Presbyterian Congregation of Perry, Genesee county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months from April 9, 1827. Proportion of aid, $1\frac{1}{2}$ months.

Rev. Lott B. Sullivan, Minister.

†149. The Church in Florence, Oneida county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending October 27, 1826. The revival of religion which was in progress at the time of the last Report, has resulted in the addition of about 30 persons to the Church, during the period embraced in this Commission. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Samuel Swezey, Pastor.

This Church is now assisted by the Western Domestic Missionary Society.

150. The Church in Moravia, Cayuga county, N. Y. has received continued aid, in the proportion of 3 months, one fourth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. Commission renewed October 6, 1826, for 12 months.

Rev. George Taylor, Pastor.

151. The Church in Elizabethtown, Essex county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months from May 16, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months, one fourth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. There is in this congregation an interesting awakening at the present time.

Rev. Veron D. Taylor, Minister.

152. The Church in Dundaff, Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania. Commission renewed for 12 months from May 1, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Charles Thompson, Pastor.

153. The Church in Litchfield, Oneida county, N. Y. Commission renewed for 12 months from May 16, 1826. Proportion of aid stipulated 3 months, one fourth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. Abner Towne, Pastor.

The Committee record with sorrow the early death of this devoted Minister of Christ. Mr. Towne had but just entered upon the labours of the year, when it pleased God to remove him from the midst of a revival of religion, in which his own heart participated, and which he was striving to promote. He died June 20, 1826.

The Trustees of the Church in Litchfield, have given us the following voluntary testimony of his faithfulness unto death:—"Mr. Towne's engagedness in the cause of Christ, was continually increasing up to the time of his decease. A religious excitement commenced here in the Spring, in which his labours were so intense, in visiting from house to house, and in attending most strictly to all the duties of a faithful watchman, that he literally wore himself out in the cause of his Master, and departed in full hope of a glorious immortality." The number of hopeful converts during this awakening, was about 30.

* 154. The Church and Congregation of Sodus, Wayne county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months from January 8, 1827. Proportion of aid, 2½ months. This station is reported as in a flourishing condition, and it is expected that a house of worship will be erected during the present year.

Rev. Jesse Townsend, Minister.

155. The Rev. Nathaniel M. Urmston was appointed in October last to labour as a Missionary in Ohio or Kentucky, under Commission for 12 months from the day of his arrival there, with an outfit of $50, and the pledge of support during the year. Soon after his arrival in Ohio, he received an invitation to preach statedly in the Congregations of Millersburgh, and East Hopewell, Holmes county, in that state, where he has a prospect of receiving three fourths of his support for the year from the people, which will reduce the aid needed from this Committee, to about the proportion of 3 months. His prospects of permanent usefulness there are encouraging.

156. The Churches in Warren, Herkimer county, and Richfield, Otsego county, N. Y. have received continued aid in the proportion of 3 months, more than one third to be raised by Auxiliary Societies there. Commission for 12 months from May 16, 1826.

Rev. Charles Wadsworth, Pastor.

*157. The Congregations of Stockton and Gerry, Chatauque county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months from April 20, 1827. Proportion of aid, $2\frac{1}{2}$ months, one fifth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. Hugh Wallis, Minister.

† 158. The Church in Franklin, Delaware Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending December 9, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Daniel Waterbury, Pastor.

159. The Church in Oxford, Chenango Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending August 10, 1826. Proportion of aid, 3 months. In July, a season of refreshing was enjoyed by this Church, which resulted in the addition of about 20 members.

Rev. Elijah D. Wells, Minister.

160. The Presbyterian Congregation of Greenbush, Rensselaer Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending January 3, 1827. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

Rev. Thomas S. Wickes, Minister.

161. The Churches of West Farms and New Rochelle, Westchester Co. N. Y. have received continued aid in the proportion of $2\frac{1}{2}$ months. Commission for 12 months from June 1, 1826; the Auxiliary Society there to raise one-fourth of the sum appropriated. Rev. Joseph D. Wickham, Pastor.

162. The Church in Denmark, Jefferson Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending June 2, 1826. Aid, 3 months. This Church is now aided by the Western Domestic Missionary Society. Rev. Lumund Wilcox, Minister.

* 163. The Presbyterian Congregation of Cold Spring, Cataraugus Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from March 8, 1827. Proportion of aid, $2\frac{1}{2}$ months. The most of this county is destitute, and ministerial labour very much needed. Rev. William J. Wilcox, Minister.

Mr. Wilcox laboured in Marcellus, Onondaga Co. as reported last year, until July, 1826, when, with the consent of the Committee, he removed to his present location.

† 164. The Church in Lewis, Essex county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending November 25, 1826. Proportion of aid, 2 months. Rev. Silas Wilder, Pastor.

165. The Church and Congregation of Massena, St. Lawrence Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from April 11, 1827. Proportion of aid, 3 months. Rev. Solomon Williams, Pastor.

166. The Congregations of Dickinson and Petersburg, Cumberland county, Pa. Commission for 9 months from July 1, 1826. Aid, $2\frac{1}{2}$ months. Rev. Macknight Williamson, Minister.

167. The Second Presbyterian Society in Tompkins, Delaware county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending August 8, 1826. Aid, 2 months.

Rev. Elisha Wise, Pastor.

168. The Church in Orville, Manlius, Onondaga county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending October 31, 1826. Proportion of aid, $2\frac{1}{2}$ months, one-third to be raised by the Auxiliary Society there.

This Church is now assisted by the Western Domestic Missionary Society.

Rev. Hezekiah N. Woodruff, Pastor.

169. The Congregation of Cold Spring, Putnam county, N. Y. receives aid the present year, in the proportion of 3 months. Commission for 12 months from November 1, 1826.

Rev. Daniel Young, Minister.

From the foregoing details it appears that, of the 169 missionaries employed by the Society, 126 are settled as pastors, or are statedly employed in single congregations; 25 divide their labours between two or more congregations, and 18, including agents, are allowed to exercise their ministry in a larger extent of country. Of the whole number employed, 120 have been appointed to labour in the state of New-York, 1 in Vermont, 1 in New-Jersey, 7 in Pennsylvania, 16 in Ohio, 4 in Michigan, 3 in Indiana, 2 in Tennessee, 1 in Virginia, 4 in Kentucky, 1 in North Carolina, 2 in Illinois, 3 in Missouri, 1 in Louisiana, 2 in East Florida, and 1 in Lower Canada.

These Missionaries have performed, within the year, 110 years of parochial or ministerial service, and the average proportion of aid in their support, granted by this Committee, has been less than one fourth.

The proportion of missionaries employed in the State of New-York, may appear inconsistent with the impartiality which ought to characterize the appointments of a National Institution. But we trust this will not be regarded as a just ground of complaint, when the circumstances which have led to this result are fairly understood. Of the 101 missionaries who had been appointed by the U. D. M. S. previous to the formation of the National Society, 81 were in New-York; and of those who have been in the service of the Society in this state, during the year, 32 are supported by funds raised by the Geneva Agency, 22 by the Young Men's Missionary Society, and 6 by the Monroe County Missionary Society; leaving a balance of only 60 Missionaries in this State, dependant on the immediate aid of the Parent Society; and the expense of these is much more than covered by funds derived from individuals, and smaller Auxiliaries within the limits of this State. Let it also be remembered that the local societies of other states have thus far acted independently of the National Society, and of course their missionary appointments are not embraced in our Report; and it will be seen that New-York has not received more than its proper share of missionary aid, when compared with the Northern and Middle States. In comparison with the states west and south, it is otherwise, and the reason is obvious; it has been impossible for the Committee to obtain a suitable number of missionaries for the remote South and West.

In their appropriations, the Committee have sought to exercise the strictest economy, while they have endeavoured to secure the greatest possible efficiency of each missionary, by enabling him to give himself wholly to the work of the ministry. It has been a principle with them in each case, to grant the least sum which would secure this object; and in few cases have they supported a missionary, without assurances of co-operation from the people where he was appointed to labour. As a general rule, our appointments have been made in answer to applications received from congregations needing assistance in the support of ministers; accompanied, in each case, with satisfactory testimonials that the people are united in their desire to secure the permanent labours of the individual in question, and that with a little aid, for a limited time, they have a prospect of being able, afterwards, to sustain his whole support. In this way, help is granted only to such as profess a willingness to help themselves to the extent of their ability, while, in many cases, the prospect of the little assistance afforded by this Society, has encouraged the people to raise double the amount which they would otherwise subscribe for the support of a minister. The actual influence of our appropriations, therefore, is far beyond the amount of aid granted in dollars and cents. They awaken kind feelings in all the congregations assisted, concentrate and increase their own resources, and the gratitude thus induced for favours received has, in many instances, already resulted in strong expressions of sympathy for others who have need. Several congregations, who, two and three years ago were aided by the U. D. M. S., have now become efficient helpers of the National Institution, and several of the missionaries, having been permanently settled through the aid of this Society, have subsequently made liberal contributions to its funds. The Committee are persuaded, from the whole of their experience, that this system of appropriation is the most economical and efficient that can be adopted in aid of Home Missions, and in this opinion they are happy in being supported by the experience and the recent usage of almost all the Domestic Missionary Societies in this country.

But this system, though the best in general, cannot be made universal. The circumstances of the most remote and destitute states and territories require a departure from this rule. There, congregations are seldom sufficiently organized to unite in calling a minister, nor are the people sufficiently impressed with the importance of gospel ordinances to desire these inestimable blessings. Most of our frontier settlements, therefore, would remain destitute of the preaching of Christ, if it were not carried to them. But who shall carry it except they be sent? The young men who enter the ministry are generally unable to reach these remote settlements, and prosecute their labours without assistance. It has, accordingly, from the beginning, been a prominent object with the Committee, to send out well qualified ministers to our frontier settlements, with instructions to gather new congregations, and labour as they may find opportunity, until, with the choice and co-operation of the people, they may become permanently established in the pastoral office.

The Committee have sought, in all their measures, to extend as far as possible the operations of the Society, and to give to it in all respects, a national attitude. For this purpose, they issued, in the month of June last, a circular “ADDRESS TO THE CHRISTIAN PUBLIC,”* explaining the object and plan of the Society. This has been extensively circulated; and in return, the approbation of many of the Churches and Missionary Societies in different parts of the United States has been cordially expressed. From the States and Territories West and South, many expressions of joy and thankfulness have reached us, that a Society has at length sprung up which may, with the blessing of God, meet and relieve their wants. They who have waited for the consolation of Israel throughout these wide fields, have hailed our promised concentration of Christian zeal and effort in their behalf, as the harbinger of salvation to millions of our countrymen; while the friends of Christ in the older and more favoured states, have felt and declared a deep sympathy in the general cause. This, we doubt not, has been much increased by the stated publication of extracts from the Society's correspondence in the New-York Observer, which, since the 1st of January last, has become our medium of weekly communication with the public. These publications have been extensively copied by other religious newspapers, and the community at large have thus become possessed of much information, as to the real condition of our new settlements, and the success attending the labours of our missionaries.

The Committee have also endeavoured, as far as they have deemed it proper, to enlist the sympathy and co-operation of the Christian public, by means of agents appointed to urge the claims of this Society upon the Churches. The Corresponding Secretary has twice visited New-England for this purpose, and with very encouraging success. Members of the Committee have visited several of the cities and important places, and have uniformly met with the kindest reception, and the most satisfactory assurances of co-operation. They have also had in their employment during the year one permanent agent, Rev. Miles P. Squier, whose labours have been confined to the Western part of the State of New-York, and have been very productive to the Society.

The reason why the Committee have not thought it expedient to employ permanent agents in other States, will be obvious when it is recollected that a fundamental principle in the formation of this Society was, that it should not supercede local Societies then existing, except in accordance with their own desire, and that they should not be impeded in their operations, but strengthened and stimulated. The several States had their local Societies for Domestic Missions previous to the establishment of the National Institution; and though the friends and conductors of these Societies had been forward in recommending the organization under which we now act, no official expression of their willingness to co-operate with us could be made except at their annual meetings. On account of the necessary delay occasioned by this fact, and, in some instances, a still further delay occasioned by constitutional impediments, none of the local Societies previously existing in the Northern and Middle States, have become auxiliary excepting the Missionary Society of the Londonderry Presbytery, and such as were auxiliary to the U. D. M. S. ; and it would have been a manifest infringement of the above principle, had the Committee appointed agents to collect funds for the National Society, within the bounds of any of these Institutions. Our field for the collection of funds has accordingly been necessarily limited during the last year.

These embarrassments, however, we trust will not long continue. Several important Societies at the West and South have already become auxiliary, and it is confidently believed that most of the State Societies will adopt similar measures at their next anniversaries.

But while the Committee anticipate for the Society, at no very distant period, a tenfold enlargement under the smiles of a beneficent Providence, they would not speak ungratefully of the past. They rather wonder that the blessing of God has enabled the Society, in its first year, to accomplish so much. Limited as has been its field, and embarrassed as have been its operations under the national pledges and responsibilities implied in its formation, the influence of this single year has been felt by hundreds of thousands. The institutions of Christianity established and perpetuated in 196 townships and missionary districts, embraced in 88 counties and 16 States and Territories, will not fail to exert a powerful agency in the improvement of the moral character of this nation, while the souls that have been saved by the preaching of 169 ministers of Christ, will never cease to admire, with all saints, the length and breadth, and height and depth of the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge. Having been lights in the world, they will shine as the brightness of the firmament, and as stars in eternity.

From a review of the reports of our missionaries, during the year, we have been deeply impressed with the following circumstances of interest to the friends of the Redeemer's kingdom. The first is, that Sabbath Schools and Bible Classes have been very generally supported, in the congregations aided by this Society, and in many instances have been attended with the happiest results. Many have, in the judgment of charity, been born again in these nurseries of pure religion.

The want of Bibles, of Religious Tracts, and Books for distribution, has been a subject of earnest appeal in the communications of several of our missionaries. In a large number of the congregations aided, Bible and Tract Societies have been formed, but in most of the stations occupied by the Society, these are found to be inadequate to the demand, while in many places there is an entire destitution of this important means of religious instruction, which it has not been in the power of this Committee to supply.

The missionaries are enjoined in their commissions, not to neglect the visiting of families, and the preaching of the gospel from house to house ; and we report, with great pleasure, that there are very few of them who do not speak of having devoted a considerable portion of their time to these important duties of the ministry. But this appears not to have been done to the neglect of the public services of the sanctuary. In a very few cases have they preached less than three times on the Sabbath, and most of them attend three or four services during the week.

The Monthly Concert of Prayer has been generally and perhaps uniformly observed at our missionary stations. These have been reported by many of the missionaries as seasons of deep and lively interest to the friends of Zion in their congregations, while they mark perhaps more distinctly than any other circumstance, the entire coincidence of the operations of this Society with the movings of that spirit in Christendom which seeks the conversion of the whole world.

The present also has been signally a year of Revivals of Religion in our country ; and the Committee acknowledge with thankfulness these blessings upon several of the congregations aided. Seventeen special visitations of the Spirit of God have been experienced under the labours of our missionaries, which have resulted in the hopeful conversion of not less than 700 souls. In several other congregations appearances are highly encouraging, and in all the influence of the gospel has been in a measure felt. There is perhaps not a missionary of the Society who has not been honoured as the instrument of leading more than one sinner to repentance. The whole number of souls converted in all of our congregations during the last year is probably more than 1,000.

The amount of good which has been thus effected, no mind can estimate. It is comprehended only by Him who knows the eternal results of moral causes; and yet it has been accomplished by the blessing of God upon a very limited and partial effort of the Christians of this country.

The amount of monies paid out by the Committee, during the year, for the support of missionaries, including the expenses of their office, and of the agencies they have employed, is $13,984 17.

From the Treasurer's account, it appears that the receipts of the Society have been, in all, $20,031 21—including 1,890 45, which was paid over by the U. D. M. S. at the commencement of the year, and that there is now in the Treasury $6,047 04.

The reason of this large balance in favour of the Treasury at the present time is, that the receipts of the Society, at this season of the year, are far more liberal than at any other, and the expenditures much less. In November last the Treasury was overdrawn nearly $2,000, which the Committee were compelled to supply by a temporary loan. It ought also to be stated that this Committee are under engagements for more than $10,000 to Agents, Missionaries, and Congregations, now on our list.

In looking for the sources from which the income of the Society has been derived, we see marked, with peculiar distinctness, the hand of God as giving it all.

There has yet been no such concentration of the moral strength of the United States, as the importance of the cause of Home Missions demands ; and the Society has no permanent fund. All its pecuniary resources have been derived from a very small portion of the Christian community, and have come of God's immediate blessing. Under Him they recognise a number of liberal individuals. Seventeen have been constituted Directors for life by the payment of $100 or upwards each, and fifty-six have been constituted members for life by the payment of $30 or upwards each, which, together with other contributions in part for the same purposes, amount to $4,189 51. One hundred and twenty-four Auxiliary Societies and Associations have been recognised, which, together with several Societies not Auxiliary, have contributed the sum of $5,996 39.

The amount received from collections in churches, on Thanksgiving day, at the Monthly Concert &c., has been $2,264 40. The remainder of the income of the Society has been derived from individual donations and annual contributions.

Of the Auxiliary Societies and other subsidiary organizations which have contributed to our funds, the first place in this Report is due to the Geneva Agency. This Agency was appointed by the Committee in September last, to act as a Board of Reference and Advice, in the Western District of the State of New-York, embracing all the counties west of Courtland and Onondaga ; and it is with entire satisfaction that we report the results of their very judicious and efficient operations. Under their advice and control, the Agent of the Society, who is also Secretary of the Agency, has collected, from within the district assigned them, and paid over to the Society, the sum of $2,038 36, which, together with $275 collected by the same Agency under its former organization, amounts to $2,313 36, of which $2,175 have been appropriated, as recommended by the Agency, to the support of 32 missionaries within the limits of that district.

The "Young Men's Missionary Society of the City of New-York," auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. has proceeded the last year with increasing activity and success. The amount of its contributions to the Parent Society within the year, has been $1,300, which has been appropriated to the support of 22 missionaries in the State of New-York.

The Boston Society for Home Missions, formed in the month of January last, though not constitutionally auxiliary to this Society, has given the most gratifying and generous proof of its sympathy with us in the general cause. Having reserved one fourth part of its income for the year, to be expended in the State of Massachusetts, the remaining three fourths have been paid over as a donation to the national Society, amounting to $997 60.

"The Monroe County Auxiliary Home Missionary Society," formed in the month of July last, has commenced its operations with a zeal and enterprise which promise much. Already their remittances to the Parent Society amount to $400, and the amount of appropriations made by this Committee, on their recommendation, and which that Society is pledged to supply, is $675.

Of the Congregational and Church Associations auxiliary to this Society, those of the Cedar-street Church in this City, the 5th and 1st Presbyterian Churches in Philadelphia, the 1st Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, Long-Island, and the Murray-street Church, New-York, have been our most efficient helpers, and deserve a distinct and grateful notice in this Report.

(See Appendix.)

Having presented the doings of the Society, and the sources from which, under God, it has derived its efficiency, the Committee are unwilling to conclude this Report without a brief survey of the field which invites the future labours of the American churches.

Two thirds of the population of the United States reside west and south of New-York and New-Jersey. But of the efficient ministers of the gospel, of all denominations, more than one half belong to New-England and the two States above named. Beyond these States we have been called, in the correspondence of the last year, to contemplate whole counties, and numbers of contiguous counties, without a single educated minister of the New Testament. In Michigan, Ohio, Virginia, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Georgia, and Alabama, there are many hundreds of places that need aid in the support of gospel ordinances, while the valley of the Mississippi, extending from the northern Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Allegany to the Rocky Mountains, and receiving thousands of the inhabitants of the older States every year, appeals to both our patriotism and philanthropy. In that vast valley, there are few to publish salvation, and because there is no vision, the people perish. The light of every Sabbath witnesses hundreds of thousands destitute of the ordinances of God's house.

Let it be considered also that the portions of our country, which are the most destitute, are the most rapidly increasing in population. The aggregate of the inhabitants of the U. States is supposed to double in every 25 years. But in 1822, the population of Kentucky had increased eight-fold in 30 years. The increase of several of the Western States is probably equally rapid at the present time. The day is not far distant, therefore, when the States and Territories, that are now comparatively destitute, will embrace the majority, and control the moral influence of this nation. Now, the sources of influence are with the older States. Here are the seats of science and the schools of the prophets. And the Spirit of God is here, raining down righteousness upon our churches and literary institutions, and preparing many labourers for his harvest. Now it is with us to give shape to the moral character of this country. But suffer the new and rising communities of the West and South to grow up without the restraints of Christianity, until their numbers shall surpass those of the older States, and through the facilities of intercourse that will then exist between the Western and Eastern sections of our country, they will roll back upon us a tide of vice and irreligion. The Christians of the older States, therefore, are called on, as guardians of the peace and prosperity of Zion, to unite and possess the land, that they may save its future millions from that ruin which is in store for the nations that know not God.

And the destiny of these United States stands not alone. It is connected with the interests of the family of man. There is not a nation under heaven which appears destined to exert so powerful an influence upon the moral condition of the whole world. Mind acts upon mind, and knowledge is power. Let it be considered, then, that the English language is spoken by many millions of the human race, and that it is the medium through which the most enlightened portions of the world are now conveying the knowledge of God to the ends of the earth, and it can no longer be doubted that one of the most important steps towards the conversion of the world is the conversion of the increasing millions of these United States. Here are to be enlisted no inconsiderable portion of that army of the Lord of Hosts, to whom shall be surrendered the kingdom and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom, under the whole heavens.

APPENDIX.

ADDRESS TO THE CHRISTIAN PUBLIC,

Issued by the Executive Committee, June, 1826.

SINCE the commencement of the present century, the church, more signally than at any former period, has become the light of the world. By an impulse, powerful as it is extraordinary, Christians of different names have been brought under a practical conviction—that in their design to preach the gospel to every creature, there is need of extended co-operation. Sectional partialities have accordingly been overcome, the great brotherhood of the churches has been recognised, and distant portions of Christendom have consented to commune together in disclosing, and compassionating, and endeavouring to relieve the spiritual sufferings of our guilty and afflicted race.

In the midst of the progress of this state of things, the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY has had its origin. It was organized in the city of New-York, on the 12th of May, 1826, by the advice and assistance of a Convention of the friends of missions from all parts of the United States.

The history of the several steps which were taken preparatory to its formation has been so recently and extensively published,* that it seems unnecessary to repeat it in this Address.

It now devolves on its Executive Committee, to ask for this new Institution, the patronage of American Christians.

In the discharge of this duty, we come before the churches and citizens of the United States with great cordiality and confidence. The friends of the religion and the liberty of our country have been already so extensively consulted, and have been found so singularly unanimous in their encouragement of the measure, that we are sure the sentiments of the Christian community have not been mistaken as to the expediency of the formation of such a Society at the present time. Nothing, therefore, appears to be necessary to secure the patronage of the friends of missions throughout our national limits, but to satisfy the public that the Society which we now represent, is what they have desired it should be; that it is formed on a plan, which, in its execution, will be likely, under the blessing of God, to answer the high expectations which are already entertained of its future efficiency.

* See the documents prefixed to the Fourth Report of the United Domestic Missionary Society.

With this design in view, we proceed to lay before the public a brief exposition of the object and plan of this Society.

I. Its object, as announced in its constitution, is, in the proper sense of the word, national. It is not indeed to be expected that this Society will be called on to assist all the destitute congregations in the United States, who may require aid in the support of their ministers. Something, and it is hoped much, of this work of charity, will be accomplished by those denominations of Christians who have not been represented in the formation of this Institution, and who perhaps may choose to continue their operations under separate organizations. So far as they shall promote the preaching of the gospel in its purity, we bid them God-speed. This Society designs no interference with the benevolent exertions of those who may deem it their duty to act apart from its advice. It recognises no sectarian interest or purpose, but asks the patronage of the Christian public in the spirit of Him, concerning whom, "in the volume of the book it is written, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God."

Composed, however, as it is, of those who are united in their belief of essential doctrines, and who do not greatly differ in their views of church government, and the qualifications for admission to the sacraments of Christianity, it is to be expected of course that its Committee will assist in the support of only such ministers as hold a regular standing in the several ecclesiastical connections represented in the Society, or are in doctrinal agreement and friendly correspondence with the same. By the employment of such missionaries, it is the object of this Society to occupy only the ground that otherwise would remain destitute of an evangelical ministry, and to assist feeble congregations in all parts of the United States, which, on these principles, shall desire its aid in the support of settled pastors. Its work, therefore, is to complete the building of the house of Jehovah in the land of our fathers, and to perpetuate it in the length and in the breadth of the future inheritance of our children. Its object must not be considered as accomplished till every parish in the nation is supplied with an able and faithful minister of the New-Testament.

In connection with this national object, let it be considered that the Congregationalists, and Presbyterians of different names, who are already represented in this Society, are probably the largest denominations of Christians in the United States.—Let it be considered also that other denominations may hereafter make this Society the channel through which to convey their contributions to the destitute, and its founders can hardly be charged with presumption in having given to it the style of a National Institution.

II. The plan of this Society is also national. It is, indeed, the only plan which seems adapted to the accomplishment of its object. The history of Domestic Missionary efforts in this country, has rendered it manifest that the local Societies of the several States, while acting separately, can never be expected to occupy the land that remains to be possessed. Several of these Societies were in existence before the spirit of Foreign Missions had begun to warm the bosom of our churches. Since that time, others have been formed in almost every State and Territory of the nation. And it cannot be denied, that the spirit and efficiency of Domestic Missions have been increased a hundredfold by the interest which has been awakened in behalf of the heathen. The longer we have looked on the world as the field of Christian enterprise, and contemplated the wretchedness of its darkest portions, the more deeply has our compassion been moved for our own kindred. State and County Societies have accordingly, in more instances than one, resolved to supply all the destitute within their own bounds, and the zeal and effect with which they have pursued these local objects, have reflected great honour upon those sections of the Church. In the mean time, many thousands of the children of the churches in the older States, whom the spirit of adventurous enterprise had led forth to the South and West, together with other thousands whom they have met on the plains which spread from Michigan to Alabama, have sent back their cry to our churches for aid. We have lifted up our eyes and looked on the field, and, behold, it was white already unto the harvest. Our sympathies have been awakened, and several local Societies have passed their appropriate bounds, and sought to build up the wastes of other and newer States. The Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts, the Board of Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, and the United Domestic Missionary Society of New-York, which is now merged in the National Institution, have each sent Missionaries to those interesting sections of our common country. Each of these Societies has done enough to prove the efficacy and importance of Domestic Missions, enough to convince the churches of our land that more, a thousand times more, remains yet to be accomplished.

It is evident that the work of Home Missions is yet in its infancy. Its importance has been in some measure felt, but its purposes have been too often broken off, and postponed, or executed with a want of system which has deprived it of half its effect. Hence it has been seen and lamented, that in the rapid enlargement of our borders, the increase of the means of religious instruction has fallen far short of the increase of population.

There was danger also, that in the progress of this great work there might be interference and unhappy collision between the movements of these several sections. Some plan, therefore, which should combine and concentrate these separate efforts of the Church, and which, at the same time, should awaken the latent energies of the whole body, was seen to be necessary. There was also needed some point of supervision, from which the whole field might be steadily surveyed, and correct information communicated of the real wants and claims of the destitute.

Such a point has been sought, and such a plan, we believe, has been attained in the constitution of this Society.

The terms of membership are such, that the rich and the poor may meet together in its support, and while the one may evince the power of his religion, by casting in of his poverty all that he hath, the other is invited, of his abundance, to consecrate liberal offerings to this service of the Lord. It is a provision adapted to the condition of all classes of our citizens. Every contributor to the funds of the Society is a member. Subscriptions to constitute Members and Directors for life may also be received, and the officers of the Society may be elected from every State in the Union. The Members of the Convention who assisted in the formation of the Society were from thirteen States and Territories, and its officers for the current year, have been elected from sixteen States, and from the Congregational, Presbyterian, Reformed Dutch, and Associate Reformed Churches. Thus the friends of missions, of these several denominations at least, in all parts of the United States, who feel a common interest in this benevolent enterprise, are expected to take part in the work.

It was also an object of prime importance with the founders of this Society, to adapt the plan of its operations to the condition of existing Domestic Missionary Societies, in the several States, so as not to supersede them, except in accordance with their own desire, and not to hinder, but to stimulate and strengthen their efforts. This object they pursued with great deliberation, and now confidently believe it is attained by those provisions of the constitution, which prescribe the terms on which any Missionary Society may become auxiliary. These provisions are such as, it is believed, will render it highly beneficial to each local Society, to seek a connection with the National Institution.

Each Society, thus connected, will exercise all the control over its funds which it shall desire, and occupy the field it may have chosen for the bestowment of its charities. No embarrassment will be thrown in the way of its appropriate operations. This Society asks from its auxiliaries only such funds as can be spared from their several local objects, while it proposes to cultivate the most friendly intercourse with them, and to give to each a portion of the benefit which, as a Parent Institution, it may itself derive from a connection with all.

As it will be the purpose of the Executive Committee to acquaint themselves with the actual condition of all the destitute portions of our country, and as they will possess facilities for doing this, through the medium of Auxiliaries, and by means of permanent officers and agents, which can be enjoyed by no local Society, it is believed that the advantages derived to each Auxiliary, from a connection with this Institution, may be highly important. The wants of the whole land will thus be laid before each state, county, and congregational or town society, and a common interest awakened. Each will be informed what is accomplished by all. The Churches of the North will sympathize with those of the South. Courage will provoke courage, and zeal enkindle zeal. The success of one will be the success of all. Christian feeling will be strengthened by united counsels and united efforts; and thus, while the lines of demarkation between the tribes of Israel may be more distinctly traced than ever before, each will be encouraged to perform its part, and the great work may be expected to move on with a harmony and an energy, which, under God, will ensure success.

The extent of field appropriated to each missionary of the Society, must be frequently modified by circumstances. In those territories which have been most recently settled, and where religious societies are unformed, it may be necessary to allow to each missionary a considerable extent of country, as his circuit. Ultimately, however, it is believed that in most cases, a single town or parish will afford ample scope for the labours of a faithful pastor.

III. It is proper to observe, that this Society has not assumed a national name without being aware that its dependance is also national. The successful prosecution of an object of so much magnitude and importance, will require large resources. No limited section of the country can be expected to furnish sufficient pecuniary means to enable all our new settlements and destitute places to support religious teachers. In addition to what the destitute themselves may do, a gift to this object will be needed from every Christian, and every good citizen in the land.

And this Society can be furnished with a sufficient number of ministers to engage in this enterprise, only by the blessing of God upon the united prayers and exertions of all our Churches. In the progress of this design, the whole number of candidates and unsettled ministers now in the United States, of all denominations, would fall far short of the number required. Under God, therefore, it must depend on the American Churches for men, as well as pecuniary means.

It will also depend on the experience, wisdom, and piety of its friends throughout the nation for advice and direction. Without these it can neither hope to retain the confidence, nor combine the resources, of the religious public, and must fail to become the dispenser of those extensive and saving benefits for which it has been instituted.

IV. It remains only to state, that the location of this Society has been chosen in reference to the great national object which it contemplates. The city of New-York possesses peculiar advantages as the seat of this Institution. Its site is central, in that portion of the country which at present will be expected to furnish the principal resources of the Society, and its intercourse with all parts of the United States is constant. Here the necessary means can be more conveniently collected, and information more readily received, than at any other place. It is the heart of the land; and the God of nature seems to have designed that the channels through which this city derives its wealth from every line of the continent, should in return, be channels of mercy, through which the knowledge that saves is to be conveyed to the farthest limits of the nation.

Having thus presented the object and plan of this Society, the Committee owe it to the public, whose patronage they solicit, to state the measures which they propose to adopt in conducting its operations.

That the expectations of the friends of the Institution may not be disappointed, they design, as soon as practicable, to give to it a national attitude. Having assumed the responsibility of supporting all the missionaries of the late United Domestic Missionary Society, a large proportion of whom are located in the State of New-York, we are aware, that, to advance the more enlarged object of this new Society, it will be expected that we turn our immediate attention to the States and Territories more remote and more destitute. The Committee have accordingly resolved, relying on the liberality of the Christian public for the ability, to employ as many approved missionaries as may be disposed, under their patronage, to settle in the Southern and Western States and Territories; and have already adopted measures to secure a number of faithful and well qualified men, for this service, the ensuing autumn.

To enable them to carry this design into effect, and still further to enlarge their benefactions to the South and West, as they contemplate, while at the same time, they continue their aid to the missionaries already in the field, the Committee will need a large increase of means. To secure these in a manner which will be satisfactory to the other States, they rely with entire confidence on the liberality of the inhabitants of the State of New-York to furnish an amount much more than sufficient to support all the missionaries of this Society within their own State limits. It is believed that our efficient Auxiliaries in the interior of this State, will increase their exertions, and that other Societies will be formed, and contributions made, with a design to relieve the National Institution from the necessity of expending any of the funds derived from other parts of the Union, in this portion of their field.

It is believed, therefore, that the full amount of funds derived from this city, and from the Northern and Middle States, excepting so much as is needed to supply the destitute within their own bounds, may be at once applied to the great national object of supplying the new and rising communities of the South and West, with the stated administration of the ordinances of Christ.

In view of the foregoing object and plan, the Committee now make their appeal to the churches and citizens of the United States.

1. We respectfully solicit the correspondence and co-operation of all existing Domestic Missionary Societies in our country. Those which shall choose to sustain the relation of auxiliaries, under either of the conditions prescribed in the Constitution, will thus meet the wishes, and essentially forward the purposes, of this Society.

2. We solicit the friends of missions, in all parts of the Union, to co-operate with us in promoting the general interests of this benevolent enterprise. And here, though it is not our province to dictate, we may presume to suggest and recommend a measure, whose general adoption appears to us highly desirable. It is, that in every church and congregation where there exists ability to contribute to this object, a Male and a Female Association be formed, on a plan, the outlines of which the reader will find appended to these sheets. In this city, and in that portion of the country which is not too remote for the convenience of such a connexion, it is recommended that all such associations become immediately auxiliary to this Society. In the more distant sections of the nation, it will be a saving of expense and trouble for Congregational or Church Associations to seek a connexion with the Parent Institution, through the medium of the County Societies in which they may be embraced; as all experience has proved, that auxiliary societies, confined to a single county, or a small cluster of towns, usually act with more efficiency, in proportion to their means, than those which embrace the whole territory of a state.

The Committee further recommend, that, in those States where the usage prevails of the annual observance of a day of public Thanksgiving, an annual collection be taken up on that day in every congregation, to aid the measures of this Society. We are not aware that this day has been very generally appropriated to collections for any other object, and we believe, that when the churches and citizens of the several States shall be assembled for the public expression of their gratitude to the Most High for national blessings, and remember that the greatest of these are the freedom and purity of our religious institutions, this suggestion will approve itself to every flock of God, as peculiarly appropriate to the occasion.

3. We solicit the counsel and advice of individuals, and of the several judicatories of the Churches, who may unite in this great and good work, and whose responsible privilege it is, in a great measure, to give direction to the religious charities of our country.

4. We make our appeal to the destitute themselves, and to those afflicted portions of the Church which lie in the midst of the wide field of spiritual desolation, which we hope to repair. As it is the object of this Society to extend aid to the people, rather than to confer a favour upon the missionary, and as the amount granted to each congregation assisted, will be in proportion to their necessities, and the sacrifices they are willing to make to secure the blessings of a preached gospel, we solicit on the part of every destitute settlement, the most vigorous measures to supply their own wants. Having done all in their power, we invite them to make application only for so much aid as they must have, or remain destitute, and then the principles of this Society will bind us to hear. If our Treasury shall at any time be empty, we will put our souls in their souls' stead, and re-echo their cry, till the love of Christ, which is coldly talked of, shall be warmly felt, and the hand of pity extended to all the destitute in our borders.

5. We make our appeal to the piety and the patriotism of our country. We believe that the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY may be whatever our citizens, in the fear of God, choose that it shall be. On them, therefore, is devolved the decision of its immediate and progressive influence upon this nation of freemen, and upon the world.

Finally, through the prayers of the Churches, we commend the object, and the plan, and the missionaries, and the patrons, and all the measures of this Society, to Him who sitteth as King among the nations. Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it. Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh in vain.

GENEVA AGENCY.

The Geneva Agency for the American Home Missionary Society was appointed by the Executive Committee on the 23d of August, 1826, and was organized in September following. It consists of the following individuals, under instructions to act as a Board of Inquiry and Reference in aid of this Society, for the Western District of the State of New-York, embracing all the Counties in this State West of the Counties of Courtland and Onondaga, viz.

REV. HENRY AXTELL, D. D. Geneva, Chairman.

REV. HENRY DWIGHT, Geneva, Treasurer.

REV. MILES P. SQUIER, Geneva, Secretary.

REV. HENRY P. STRONG, Phelps,

REV. ANSEL D. EDDY, Canandaigua,

The following is extracted from the Annual Report of this very efficient and active Board.

Geneva, April 20th, 1827.

To the Executive Committee of the American Home Missionary Society, the Geneva Agency present the following as their first annual REPORT.

This Board was constituted under a Commission from the Executive Committee, in September last: some business was done by the Missionary Board previously existing here, under appointment of the United Domestic Missionary Society, since its report in the April preceding, which, for the sake of brevity, we embrace in the same summary with that under our present organization.

In fulfilling the object of our appointment—in assisting you in the prosecution of the Home Missionary cause in the Western part of the State of New-York—in being the medium of communication between you, and the recipients of your bounty in this extensive range of country, by contributing the advantage of our local information on this ground, both in creating and dispensing your charities; we have endeavoured to act with that circumspection, and singleness of aim to the best results, which fidelity to our Divine Master, and to you, demanded. At every step of our progress, have we felt increasingly, the responsibility of the duties devolving on us, and, at the same time, found new encouragement and interest in our work.

The region assigned us, is one of some ability and many wants. That bordering on Lake Ontario—on the Pennsylvania line, and especially the five or six Western Counties, are to a large extent missionary ground; and many embarrassments yet render difficult their speedy transformation into efficient Christian congregations, under the full enjoyment of the means of grace. Organized churches are in most places to be found, throughout our unsupplied territory, and some foundation is laid.

in most of the congregations, eventually to provide for themselves; but oppressed and dispirited, by their present feebleness, and the indifference to religion, and the prevailing impiety which surrounds them; many of them are turning with earnest expectation to the Home Missionary Society, and depending, under God, on the stimulus of its aid in rousing their own little energies, to obtain the preached gospel, and secure among them a resting place for the ark of God. More than seventy such congregations, and fields of missionary labour, may be enumerated within the Agency, in the midst of a mingled and growingly dense population, and with geographical limits sufficiently extensive for the labours of a settled ministry. They are fields already white unto harvest, and under circumstances calculated to enlist a yet warmer zeal, and redoubled energies, in behalf of that endeared Institution, which is commissioned with "the bread of life" to "the poor and the needy" of our own Zion.

But with this catalogue of our wants, fidelity to the general cause of Home Missions, forbids us to conceal from you, the conviction that within the limits of our supervision, there exists the ability of supplying them to no inconsiderable extent. We live on a soil proverbially rich, and rapidly opening to every enterprise of commerce:—and in the midst of a population growing in wealth, and talent, and intelligence, and we trust, also, in Christian principle. Many of our congregations have become large and able, and, in some small degree at least, "ready unto every good work;" and we deliberately anticipate the period as not very far distant, when they will not only supply their "poor" at their own door, but aid your general treasury in behalf of those more destitute in regions farther West and South.

Our first object in your service, has been to bring the subject of Home Missions fully before the public mind within the Agency. To this end the Annual Report and other papers, issued by the Committee, have been widely circulated—communications have been made through the press—an extensive correspondence has been opened—and the ecclesiastical bodies within our bounds have been visited; and we are happy to inform you, that your object and plan of operations have received the unanimous and unqualified approbation of the Presbyteries and Synods, within the district allotted us, and by them have been recommended to the patronage of the congregations under their care.

In connexion with this diffusion of intelligence, the minute and thorough survey of our Missionary country, seemed desirable and important, both to awaken and arrange efforts among the destitute in their own behalf, and introduce labourers among them; and to ascertain the amount of gratuity which should be recommended for them, and the best form of its bestowment, with due reference to the economy and effectiveness which our relation to you and to the bounty of the Christian public would ever suggest. This, to a considerable extent, has already been made, with the increasing conviction of its importance, as one of the prominent features of usefulness in your operations within the district of this Agency. Desire is enkindled generally among the destitute to be furnished with the means of grace. Numbers of the scattered and desponding churches are collecting anew their strength; and exertions before not made, are witnessed to obtain the living Ministry of the word.

Previous to September of the year under review, the Geneva Agency granted aid to five congregations in the support of as many ministers, for which they expended $275, leaving a balance on hand of $36,04. after liquidating in full their engagements. Since that time, the following congregations have been recommended by this Board to your patronage, with the Missionaries whose names are annexed.

[The details of the congregations and missionaries here referred to are transferred to the Report of the American Home Missionary Society, and will be found in their alphabetical places, in the catalogue of missionaries appointed by the Executive Committee, and designated by an appropriate mark. See page 13, and onward, of the Report.]

From the foregoing details you will perceive, that thirty-five congregations, with the destitute settlements around them, have been recommended to your patronage, by this Board, since its organization, with twenty-nine missionaries, at stations within the Agency, and as follows, together with two appointed by the Agency under its former organization, and not continued, viz.—In Cayuga County, 3.—Seneca, 2.—Tompkins, 1.—Tioga, 2.—Steuben, 2.—Wayne, 6.—Livingston, 1.—Genesee, 4.—Orleans, 1.—Niagara, 1.—Allegany, 1.—Cattaraugus, 1.—Chataque, 3.—Erie, 3.—Of these, one did not enter your service; two have resigned their commissions; and twenty-six, from the latest intelligence, are at the posts of duty and usefulness allotted them. The aggregate expense of the above enumerated twenty-nine missionaries, for the year, will not be far from $1900, or about $70 each.

The receipts at this Agency for the year, including $311,04, received previous to September, under its former constitution, are, as you will see by the accompanying papers, $2,313,36;*—an amount which, after deducting the $275, as mentioned in the commencement of this Report, will, we trust, nearly balance the expenditure from your treasury, during the same period, for missionary services within the region assigned us. Some monies also from within our limits, have been remitted directly to your treasury, without passing our hands, and some paid over to more local Domestic Missionary Societies, which yet have auxiliaries within the Agency.

Thirty-three Auxiliary Associations are now formed within our limits, besides the Monroe County Home Missionary Society, which, both in respect to the missionaries it employs, and the funds it raises, corresponds directly with your body. A list of the auxiliaries and their officers is herewith submitted. With scarcely a single exception, they discover an increasing interest in the Home Missionary cause; and the arrangement you have made to send them the weekly vehicle of your missionary intelligence, is, in our judgment, well calculated to rear them up to be systematic and efficient coadjutors, with those friends of their country and of God, who already are engaged in this good work.

The visiting of the missionary stations under our care, we have viewed to be an object of no inconsiderable moment. It helps to strengthen the hands of the missionaries, and gives an opportunity to present many items of intelligence, gathered in the prosecution of our work generally—to suggest many topics of interest and importance, connected with the prosperity of the congregations; and to incite them to greater sacrifices and engagedness in arriving at the point where they will authorize you to take them from the list of your beneficiaries, and be gathering something in behalf of those who may be struggling for that independence and efficiency which they will rejoice to have gained. This has not been forgotten in the progress of our work hitherto; and from personal observation, as well as from the reports of your missionaries, are we happy in assuring you, that with few, if any, exceptions, they give evidence of prosecuting their labours with a commendable degree of faithfulness and efficiency, and with fair prospects of the happiest results. The congregations and churches have grown under their hands—numbers of which have been gladdened with seasons of special “refreshing from the presence of the Lord.” Some houses of worship have been erected among them, and from ten to twelve are under contract to be erected the present year; and foundations are laying, we devoutly hope, for the continuance and growing success of gospel institutions in these recently waste places of Zion.

We owe it to you, and to the benign charity which you are dispensing, to say, in concluding our report, that the experience of another year has only strengthened our convictions of the appropriateness of the plan of operations adopted by the Home Missionary Society in ministering to the necessities of our destitute and feeble churches. It is a plan eminently calculated to call out and embody their own resources. With limited assistance for a season, it secures among them the ability to supply their own wants, and will eventually convert them into grateful and efficient auxiliaries, in behalf of those who, in the progressive settlement of the Western wilderness, shall succeed each other as petitioners for the bounty of your favoured Institution.

With these sentiments we submit this recital of our proceedings the year past, uniting our prayers with those of the Executive Committee, to the Great “Lord of the harvest,” that He would excite his people to yet greater efforts and devotedness in this hallowed cause, until our entire land shall be placed under the culture of the preached gospel,—until enjoying in its full extent, the instructions, and possessing the spirit of that religion, which says, “Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself;” it shall pour in sevenfold abundance, the tide of its charities upon the wide wastes of “the nations that know not God.”

By order of the Board.

MILES P. SQUIER,

Sec. of the Geneva Agency for the Amer. Home Missionary Society.

THE MONROE COUNTY HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY,

Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, organized in July, 1826.

The Board of Directors of this Society have made appropriations in aid of eight congregations in Monroe County, and one in Michigan Territory. The names of the missionaries supported by funds raised by this Society, will be found in their alphabetical places in the catalogue of the Parent Society, designated by an appropriate mark. [See Report of the American Home Missionary Society, page 17; and onward.]

Extracts from the First Report.

This being an Auxiliary Society, according to the 3th article in the Constitution of the Parent Society we have no authority to appoint missionaries, but we may constitutionally designate the field where our funds shall be expended. The Directors have inquired into the circumstances of several of the feeble congregations in this county, and have directed the Parent Society to appropriate such sums for the support of the gospel, as this Board of Directors considered the circumstances of the several churches to require.

Thus have the Board of Directors appropriated the missionary funds which have been confided to them. They would observe further, that there are some other churches in this county, and in the county West of this, that need missionary assistance as much as those to which we have assisted, and that if their funds had been thousands instead of hundreds, they believe the whole might be judiciously expended in aiding feeble churches, which, without missionary aid, must languish.

Although the primary object of this Society is to assist destitute and feeble churches in our county, in supporting the gospel ministry, yet the Directors feel themselves bound to call for aid in behalf of the Parent Society, which shall enable them to carry on their benevolent operations until the whole United States shall be supplied with the means of grace, and the waste places of our American Zion shall be built up.

THE WESTERN DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY,Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

This Society was organized by a Convention held in Utica, June 7th, 1826, and was soon after recognised as Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, according to the provisions of the 7th article of the Constitution of the Parent Society. It has accordingly acted independently of this Society, both in the appointment of missionaries and in raising funds for their support; and having no surplus funds, it has contributed nothing to the Treasury of the National Institution.

Its first Annual Report, dated May 3d, 1827, exhibits an income of $2,577 68, since its formation, with an appropriation of $3,000, and thirty missionaries appointed, twenty-nine of whom have entered on their labours. The following is extracted from the First Report of the Western Domestic Missionary Society.

This Society, since it has gone into active operation, which is only eight months, has made appropriations for, and sent into the field, thirty ministers, who preach in fifty towns and villages, and in eight of which no churches had been organized. They have also made appropriations for nine more missionaries, to aid twenty two more towns and villages with preaching, in nine of which no churches have yet been organized; and they have only to regret that they have not yet been able to procure ministers to occupy this field. The inhabitants are extremely anxious to have preachers among them, and we must pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth labourers unto the harvest. The missionaries of the Society labour in the counties of St. Lawrence, Jefferson, Lewis, Oswego, Onondaga, Madison, Oneida, Herkimer, Otsego, Schoharie, and Chenango. In the counties of Broome and Courtland, we have not yet been able to ascertain enough of the state of the ground to locate missionaries; and in Delaware, we learn with much pleasure, that a County Missionary Society has been organized, which will attend to the wants of that county, and, therefore, we have located no missionaries there.

The appropriations for the thirty missionaries which the Society have now employed, and the salary of the Corresponding Secretary, amount to just $3,000 per year. Of this sum probably $500 will be raised by the Branch Societies, in the fifty places where our missionaries preach; so that the whole expense to the Missionary Society, except what is raised on the missionary ground itself, will be only $2500 for the year. To supply all the destitute places in the counties before mentioned, not heretofore provided for by this Society, will require thirty additional missionaries.

BOSTON SOCIETY FOR HOME MISSIONS.

This Society was formed in January last, and has commenced with a zeal in the great cause of our common country, which promises efficient aid to the National Institution.

Its constitution provides that, for the present, three-fourths of the amount raised by this Society, shall be paid over to the American Home Missionary Society, and the remaining fourth retained, to be expended in Massachusetts.

The official account of the formation of the Society published in the Boston Recorder, is concluded with the following remarks.

“The subject of Domestic Missions has long been before the people of this Commonwealth. In the days of our fathers it was perceived, that the increasing new settlements of this growing Republic would need to be aided in the establishment of Christian institutions. Hence were formed the Society for propagating the Gospel among the Indians and others in North America, the Massachusetts Missionary Society, the Hampshire Missionary Society, the Berkshire Missionary Society, the Massachusetts Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, and, more recently, the Massachusetts Domestic Missionary Society. These Societies have acted with considerable efficiency, both in this and in other States. Other local Societies in New-England have also done much to build up the moral wastes of our common country. But as the bounds of our habitation have been extended, and the sons of these older States have emigrated far to the West and South, it has become manifest that these separate efforts of the several local Societies are, every year, less and less adequate to the growing demands of our frontier settlements; and the question has arisen, how can these rapidly increasing communities be supplied with the preaching of the Gospel?”

The result of this inquiry has been the formation, within the last year, of the American Home Missionary Society. The object of this Society is well understood in Massachusetts, and we are assured that it is regarded, by our churches generally, with approbation. The energy with which it has commenced its operations, cannot fail to increase the public confidence in its efficiency. According to the recent statements of the Corresponding Secretary, it has aided, within the last eight months, in the support of 157 Missionaries, and applications for assistance from destitute places are rapidly increasing. It is evident, therefore, that it cannot meet the growing demand upon its resources, unless it is sustained, in some good measure, by the churches and friends of the object in New-England. We cannot doubt that the highly favoured Christians and citizens of this Commonwealth will feel their obligations to do much in this great and good work; and that, while they remember the comparatively small number of destitute within our own territory, they will also spare a portion for the millions that dwell beyond the Alleghenies, and perish because there is no vision.

There is one view of this subject which, we are persuaded, ought to be more deeply felt by the inhabitants of these older States, than it has hitherto been. It is, that the whole surplus religious influence in this nation is to be found in the New-England States and the State of New-York. If any thing is to be done, therefore, to build up religious institutions in the vast valley of the Mississippi, it must be done by these States. And something must be done, or the inhabitants of that valley, who will soon become the majority of the United States, the seat of political power and moral influence, being without the restraints of religion, will send back upon us the contagion of infidel principles and immoral habits. These older States owe it to themselves, therefore, as well as to their common country and their God, to have compassion on their children in the West, and to come forward and bear their part in sustaining the National Society, while it shall extend to the foot of the Rocky Mountains, the influence of their own beloved institutions. With the blessing of God, all this will be done. And blessed is that Christian and that American citizen, whose heart and hand are in such a work.

Extract from the First Report of the Missionary Association of the First Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia.

Perhaps it may not be improper to say a word as to the location of the parent Society, and we would hope that no objection might be made on this account. A National Society is undoubtedly of great importance, and we will not now stop to point out the reasons. Had the location of this Society been Philadelphia, we should have been pleased that our zeal had been in this instance as forward as it has been in others, and we should have looked upon it as an unworthy objection, an objection particularly unworthy of a Christian, had our brethren in other cities refused to contribute on this account. Let not then the objection be found in our mouths. If the provisions of our Constitution as to the direction of our funds be not sufficient, they may at this meeting be so altered as to give us the most entire power over them. Our brethren of New-York do not desire to be, nor can they be, benefitted by our funds without our consent, and if their zeal has been more active in this instance than our own, let us join with them in giving God the glory, and not therefore, withhold ourselves from a great work.

Your Committee have carefully avoided invoking any carnal motive in support of a holy cause, and they hope no such motive will be suffered to militate against it. They put the matter to you as Christians, they put it to your consciences. Do you think the work calculated to promote the glory of God, and the triumphs of the Cross? if so, can you withhold your help? if not, we have no right to ask your assistance. May God bless his work, and to his name be all the glory.

Concluding Remarks of the Annual Report of the Missionary Association of the Fifth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia.

"We cannot refrain from expressing our high pleasure at the animating prospects of the American Home Missionary Society. We hail it as one of the greatest blessings, one of the brightest glories of the land: And while we rejoice that other kindred Institutions are rising and flourishing in different districts, we cannot but hope that the wisdom, the catholicism, the zeal and the success, of the National Home Missionary Society, will commend that whole Institution to the confidence, the prayers, and the most cordial co-operation of all in whom the true spirit of Missions resides and reigns."

From the Rev. James H. Johnston, Corresponding Secretary of the Indiana Missionary Society, Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

MADISON, INDIANA, Feb. 20, 1827.

"I laid before the Committee your letter of September 28th, received by the hands of Mr. Crawford, and a resolution was passed to appropriate $50 from our funds to the Missionaries employed in this State by your Society; which sum is now subject to your order. We would gladly have made a larger appropriation at this time, had our limited resources and our engagements with our Missionaries permitted it.

We have the most entire confidence in your Society; we most cordially approve of its plan and operations, and wish, by every means in our power, to encourage and further its benevolent object in this State. We shall be glad to enter into any arrangement with the National Society, that will afford the prospect of securing to Indiana the largest number of Missionaries and Pastors. For myself, I can see no solid objection to the plan you propose, and with my present view, shall feel it my duty to do all in my power to effect its adoption at the annual meeting."

WEEKLY PUBLICATIONS

Of the American Home Missionary Society.

During the year 1826, the Committee published occasional extracts from their Correspondence in the New-York Observer. Since the first of January last, by an arrangement with the Editors, a portion of that useful paper has been devoted, every week, to the publications of this Society, under the appropriate head of

"HOME MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT."

It is the purpose of the Committee to continue these publications every week in the Observer, and thus to lay before the Christian public such facts in reference to the destitute portions of our own country as shall at once illustrate the magnitude of the work of Home Missions, and the importance of united and concentrated efforts, under God, to bless every township in the nation with the stated administration of the "word of life." With this object in view, the Committee will feel greatly indebted to their numerous correspondents and friends in every part of the United States, for the communication of such interesting facts as may fall under their own observation. We therefore most earnestly solicit these favours, not only from individual friends to the object, but also from the Secretaries of Auxiliary, and other Domestic Missionary Societies, and from the Clerks of Presbyteries, Ministerial Associations, and other Ecclesiastical bodies; detailing the state of the Churches within their respective bounds, the number and condition of the inhabitants, and the circumstances which are suited to awaken the attention and enlist the sympathies of the Christian community. The Missionaries of this and other Societies, are also reminded, that they may very greatly subserve the cause to which they have consecrated their lives, by complying with the above request. We doubt not they will continue to favour us with their communications; and that thus, through their correspondence with this Society, the wants of our new and destitute settlements will be faithfully presented to those friends of God and man, who dwell amid the wealth and the plenty of our older cities, and villages, and townships; and who desire to know, in order that they may relieve the spiritual sufferings of their fellow-countrymen.

Most of our readers are in some measure aware of the importance of this department of religious intelligence; and others will be convinced that it presents a field of inquiry of unspeakable interest to every American citizen, when they contemplate the following statements, which we have gathered from authentic documents. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, numbers nearly 2000 regular Churches, and about 800 of these are destitute of settled Pastors; the Reformed Dutch Synod embraces 181 Churches, 53 of which are vacant; the Congregationalists have a large number of vacant Churches, and the Episcopalians more than 100. But leaving out of the calculation, these and all other destitute Churches, which are hungering for the bread of life, besides these, not less than one third of the population of these United States, are at this day to an alarming degree destitute of the regular administration of Gospel ordinances; and this destitution is increasing with every wave of emigration that beats back the Western wilderness. It endangers alike the political security and the spiritual salvation of millions that shall come after us.

EXTRACTS FROM CORRESPONDENCE.

WORTHY OF IMITATION.

In proportion as the spiritual wants of our own country are distinctly known, and suitably appreciated, there will be a kindling up of Christian zeal in the cause of Home Missions. As evidences of this we select the following letters from many others, enclosing contributions to the Society.

From "A Friend" in the interior of Massachusetts.

—————, JUNE 23, 1826.

Having recently become more particularly acquainted with the character of the New-York Domestic Missionary Society, I have felt it to be a privilege (which I would weep to be denied) to aid in the promotion of a cause, at once so glorious to God, and so benevolent to man. When I survey the vast moral desolation which spreads over the South and the West, and reaches every part of our beloved country: when I contemplate the many thousands for whom Christ died, living without the appointed means of salvation; when I consider the awful realities of death, the resurrection, and the judgment, and the unchanging awards to those that obey not the gospel: then, and then only, am I prepared to discharge the claims of your Society, the claims of the ten thousands, each of infinite value, now perishing without the knowledge of salvation; then, and then only, can I pray, thy kingdom come, with a heart and hand prepared to engage in the advancement of Christ's kingdom among men, which is built up by means and not by miracles. To carry forward this heavenly enterprise, I cheerfully enclose one hundred dollars, to constitute ——— and ———, life members of the American Home Missionary Society.

With due respect,

A FRIEND.

From a Minister in the Western part of the State of New-York, accompanying a donation to the Society.

This amount we tender to you for the use of the Executive Committee, in their great undertaking to supply our country with an able and faithful ministry. If I remember right, this makes our contributions to your funds amount to $100, the sum you were pleased three years ago to grant to this congregation. Though that was a very seasonable grant as it respects my necessities, yet when I compare the pecuniary abilities of those actually and for a long time associated in the support of the ministry here, with the extreme weakness of a host of congregations in our country who are literally almoners for the bread of life, I could never feel satisfied until what I accounted a debt should be paid. I dare not make any great promises to your Society for the future, though I feel a lively interest in its progress. According to your recommendation, our Auxiliary Society has an annual meeting in March, when I hope we shall collect something in addition to the sum now transmitted.

From a Clergyman in Massachusetts to the Corresponding Secretary, January 24, 1827.

My dear Brother,

Without any solicitation from you, I am desirous of doing a little for the great and good cause, which you are labouring to promote. I owe it to the thousands who are hungry for the bread of life in our new settlements, and I owe it to him who died for them and for me, to do something to aid the efforts of the American Home Missionary Society; a Society in the formation of which I have most heartily rejoiced. May the Lord of the Universe bless all the efforts of the Society, and all your efforts, as its principal officer. The sum I enclose for the Society is $30, which constitutes life membership. I wish I could increase it ten-fold.

From a Layman in Steuben Co. New-York, February 9, 1827.

I was much gratified in receiving the N. Y. Observer. It is peculiarly interesting to me to receive weekly intelligence from the A. H. M. Society. I shall feel it a duty, and consider it a privilege, to give it a general circulation among those who feel interested in the prosperity of your Society.

Ever since I became acquainted with the A. H. M. S., I have felt that it ranked amongst the most important benevolent institutions of the day, and have endeavoured to use my very limited influence to promote its prosperity. We have raised on paper in this society, within a short time past, $94 for you, 41 of which was paid over to the Rev. Mr. Squier not long since, and we shall probably be able to pay most of the remainder to him in a short time, together with $15 which the "Gent. Benevolent Society" have devoted to this purpose. It is a matter of great rejoicing and of devout gratitude to God, that such unworthy creatures may be co-workers with him in advancing the interests of His kingdom, in saving souls, and promoting the honour and glory of His great and adorable name.

Extract of a letter from East Tennessee.

In this distinguished age of Gospel enterprise, no Society has been formed which is hailed by the friends of Zion in this Western Country, with more joy, than the American Home Missionary Society. The very spirit of the Gospel is a Missionary spirit. It is matter of rejoicing, that the Christian world is waking to feel anxiety about the heathen. But there are thousands in our own country, but little more enlightened than pagans. The number of Ministers in this country is very small, compared with the population, and yet there are many congregations in some portions of the country, who desire the ministry of the word, and might obtain it if they had the means of supporting a Minister. There are in this vicinity a considerable number of small organized Presbyterian Churches, willing to do something for the support of a minister, but so situated that a sufficient number cannot unite for that purpose. The aid of such a Society, as the A. H. M. S. is so much needed, and the expectation of something important being done by the efficiency of that Society is such, that the Synod of Tennessee, at their last meeting, unanimously resolved, to appropriate to the use of that Society whatever sum they might collect for Missionary purposes. The sum of $44 02 was raised, and is subject to your order.

A THANK-OFFERING.

The writer of the following communication was two years a Missionary of the United Domestic Missionary Society; but the people where he laboured, having been strengthened by the blessing of God on the little aid afforded them, have since sustained the full support of their minister without foreign assistance, and have refunded to the Society more than they had received. Besides what the people had already done, the Missionary himself has now forwarded to us the full amount appropriated to his support, while in the service of this Society. We thank God for such examples of liberality, and doubt not that they will be multiplied.

MARCH 26, 1827.

SIR,—Enclosed I send you 140 dollars as a thank-offering that I have been permitted to “preach the Gospel to the poor.” It is an important item of my earnings, in a place to which I was introduced by the Domestic Missionary Society—a Society which seems to have adopted for its fundamental principle a maxim that I have long considered as the basis of all judicious alms-giving, which is, to help those that will help themselves, and in such way as will prompt them to steady and persevering efforts.

I take a lively interest in all that concerns Foreign Missions; but from actual and extensive survey, I have become so deeply impressed with the wants of the destitute in our new settlements, that I feel constrained to give my voice in an earnest appeal to the churches in their behalf. I care but very little about money, and it is only when such an object is before me as that contemplated by your Society, that I want to be rich.

A MISSIONARY.

 FEES OF AN OFFICE.

(From an unknown individual in Pennsylvania.)

DEAR SIR—Living in a village where the liberality of your Society has been the means of settling an excellent minister, and feeling in some measure the blessing of the stated preaching of the Gospel, I was last fall induced to set apart, for the use of your society, the proceeds of a small office held by me during the week between Christmas and New-Year. The fees have been but lately received, and the enclosed $8 50 is the amount. It is more than the average receipts for the year. How soon might all the destitute churches be supplied, if all could be induced to appropriate a little time to the objects of your Society. I regret that the sum is not greater, but I hope it may do a little good. Please acknowledge the donation in your statement, as from a FRIEND TO THE SOCIETY.

 MONTHLY CONCERT ON BOARD A STEAMBOAT.

Letter from the Rev. Dr. Blatchford, of Lansingburgh, to the Treasurer of the American Home Missionary Society.

NEW-YORK, May 8, 1827.

DEAR SIR—I arrived this morning in the steamboat Constellation from Albany. Last evening I proposed that the Monthly Concert of Prayer be held on board the boat. It was so held, in the ladies' cabin. The meeting was peculiarly solemn and interesting. After the services, a collection was made for the benefit of the Home Missionary Society. The avails of that collection, $12 57, I now enclose to you, as the Treasurer of that Society.

I am, with great respect, yours truly,

SAMUEL BLATCHFORD.

“THERE WAS IN THAT CITY, A POOR WISE MAN.”

To Peter Hawes, Esq. Treasurer of the American Home Missionary Society.

The first instant being the fifth semi-annual day, the profits of which I two years since devoted to the Redeemer's cause, accordingly I enclose you, for the benefit of your Society, seven dollars and twelve cents.

During fifteen years I had toiled early and late without gaining more than a comfortable support for my family, in a plain way; consequently could not, as I thought, do much for the cause of Christ—for that dear cause that I professed to love. But, as I became more and more acquainted with what was doing towards evangelizing the world, and what was still to be done, I then began to feel how little I was doing, and turned to examine if that little was all I could do, consistently with my duty to my family, and to those to whom I was indebted. I then came to the conclusion, that as my family, my property, and myself, were all the Lord's, that although I subsisted by my own exertions, it was He that gave me health and strength to labour, and that, as a professing Christian, it was my duty to make some special offering as an expression of my gratitude for his many mercies. Accordingly, I concluded to devote as the Lord's, and altogether as an extra charity, and not in the least to affect my other contributions, the whole of the profits arising from my business on the first day of May then (two years ago) next ensuing, and all succeeding corresponding days—and all the profits, after deducting for expenses, of each succeeding first day of November, so long as my business should be sufficient to pay the expenses of my family. And as the U. D. M. Society was an institution whose success lay near my heart, and one calculated to do much good with but little money, I determined that the amount thus raised should be for its benefit. I had also hoped, that, in the lapse of two years, there would have been more than one “Friend to the Society” who might have been induced to “do likewise.”

The Lord is now doing “mighty acts” in the earth, and especially in our own country. Ought we not, as soldiers of the cross, “to come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty,” and rejoice in the privilege of being permitted to become co-workers with God in the salvation of the souls of men? Ought not all, who profess to follow the Saviour, to examine and see if they are doing all that is in their power to do, toward the advancement of his glory in the earth? J. H. W.

New-York, May 2, 1827.

A CHEERFUL GIVER.

A letter from an Agent of the A. H. M. S. to the Editor of the Western Recorder, relates the following :—

I had preached upon the Sabbath, pointing Christians to their privileges in the A. M. and their duties in the P. M. of the day, closing with my missionary message ; and the minister had told them, that with one of the deacons, I should call at their houses on the first of the week, and receive their bounty for the Home Missionary cause. As my business was not to investigate the ability to give, but to call indiscriminately on families, especially where the heart was with us, I came to the house of the Widow —, whose family group, for number and size, was just about the counterpart of that of John Rogers, in the Primer. On entering the house, I observed to her—" You know, I suppose, my errand ; but your domestic burdens are so great, that perhaps you ought not to aid our object, except with your prayers." " Oh," said she, " I was so afraid you had passed me by ;" and then came a young woman with fifty cents, and a daughter with one dollar ; the mother with fifty cents, a lad with twenty-five cents, another with twenty-five cents, and then three more with six cents each. I said, " in your straitened circumstances, perhaps you give too much." She replied, " Sir, I well remember when we here received the Gospel from the lips of Missionaries. I used to go on foot three miles, with my child in my arms, in this then a wilderness, to hear it, and it was blessed to my soul. If ever I was brought to see my sins, and find pardon, it was then. My hope in Jesus, and for Heaven, is associated with the Missionary cause. Take the little that we give, from my full heart ; it may carry to some weary sinner in the wilderness, the consolations which I have found." We knelt down in thankful prayer. I added a word of counsel to the lads, already consecrated to the God of Missions by a mother's vows and tears. I looked upon them as future laborers in the field ; and as I went out, could but " thank God and take courage" in the rejoicing hope that our Missionaries are now doing the same work in regions farther onward, that was done there by the endeared Williston and Bushnell, near thirty years ago.

OTHER EXAMPLES OF LIBERALITY.

The amount contributed for the support of the Gospel in our weak settlements, is undoubtedly far less than it would be, if the Gospel were properly prized by the great body of the people. Yet in many of the places to which the American Home Missionary Society has afforded aid, there are not wanting instances of love to the cause of Christ, which, if they could be properly made public with all attendant particulars, would surprise and delight the friends of Zion, and put to shame those professors of religion who do nothing in the service of their master.

In a very destitute and irreligious place, one or two persons subscribed $45 each for the first year, and proposed to contribute $25 annually afterwards.

In another, three persons, with but small means, contribute each $25, and by the great exertion of a small and helpless Church, the Gospel is maintained amidst Universalists and the irreligious.

In a third place, (a congregation in the interior of Ohio, which has applied for our aid,) two Physicians bear more than one-third of the whole burden which the people are able to sustain.

In a destitute town of Franklin Co. in this State, one individual has obtained, and fitted up at his own expense, a convenient place of worship.

In another instance, the females of a congregation composed almost entirely of the poor, besides taking upon themselves the principal charge of supporting the Gospel, have, during the last year, laid the foundation of a sinking fund to extinguish the debt incurred in building their Church; and propose completing the fund by the profits of their industry.

Another Congregation, which has been blessed with a revival of religion during the past year, has called upon this Society again for aid, chiefly in consequence of the failure and embarrassments of one or two supporters of the Gospel, who found themselves compelled to reduce their subscriptions from $100 to one half that amount.

And sometimes by the death, or removal of one individual, in whom religious influence centred, a struggling congregation has relaxed its efforts, and the breath of life has seemed to be stifled.

It is for the purpose of increasing the number of those who thus prize the Gospel, that this Society is labouring. In many cases, God has crowned its labours with success, and the whole expense of maintaining the means of grace, has been assumed by a people who otherwise would have been either without strength, or unconscious that they possessed it. And why should not the example of these poor friends of Christ stimulate those who can do ten times as much, to increased exertions in this glorious cause. A sum no larger than one or two individuals mentioned above, have contributed, would aid a feeble congregation to support the preaching of the word of life, and send the Gospel to a thousand immortal beings. How pleasant will the reflection be on the bed of death, that instead of hoarding or wasting what the Lord has given you, you have put into religious circulation, and perhaps have been the means of saving many souls from death, and of hiding a multitude of sins.

HAPPY EFFECTS OF THE GOSPEL.

From our Missionary at Kaskaskia, (Illinois,) and St. Genevieve.

Under date of July 24, he describes a visit which he had recently made to Apple Creek, Cape Girardeau. (Missouri,) about forty miles South of St. Genevieve. The occasion was a communion season in the Church of that place, under the Pastoral care of the Rev. Mr. M.

On Friday I preached from 2 Sam. vi. 12. "The Lord hath blessed the house of Obed Edom and all that pertaineth unto him, because of the ark of God." In the application, reference was made to the history of our pilgrim forefathers, &c. and our obligations to them for what they did and suffered in securing for our happy country, its social, political, and religious happiness, by the institutions which they established. And the appeal was made—what shall your posterity say of you, when they shall speak, at a future day, of their forefathers of the Western country? When they shall write the history of this delightful land, shall they mention your names on the same venerated page with the forefathers of New-England, and tell of the excellent institutions which you, like them, established? Or shall they weep over your memory, and tell of a land polluted and forsaken of God, and the people cursed, because there was no Obed Edom to receive the ark of God into his house? There were American and Christian hearts there. They seemed to dedicate their all to God anew—and I believe, as a community, they love the ark of God, and who can doubt that God will bless them? I have been particular in giving you this account, so that you may see what is going on in the West. Seven years ago, and this spot was an entire wilderness. Now it is holy ground, the sanctuary of Jehovah is there. We see the wilderness blossom as the rose, and it is not prophetic vision. This is a “broad land,” and goodly, and it spreads its treasures before our American Churches, of all denominations, to come and plant their vines and fig-trees, and possess the land.

It is. I believe, less than a year since Mr. M. became the Pastor of that Church. He preaches for them half the time, and the remainder in the neighboring settlements, some of which are very promising. One of these is a small but interesting settlement, on account of its advantageous situation. They have been anxious to build a house of worship, and employ Mr. M. the other half of his time; but for want of aid, they had become nearly discouraged from their exertions. Could a place of worship be established, it would doubtless immediately grow up to an important settlement, like that I have just described. Through the liberality of one of our best friends at Boston, I was able to promise them such aid as has given them new life and zeal. Mr. H——— H———, of Boston, authorized me to say that he would give $100 each for the three first meeting-houses that your missionaries should judge needed such aid, in prosecuting their Western mission. It would give you joy to see the interest with which these people received this intelligence. Such benevolence, from such a distance—from an utter stranger, whom they could never expect to see but in heaven, was almost incredible to them. They could talk of nothing else for a time; and they heard with the deepest interest, and most fervent gratitude to God, of the recent spirit of Christian love which has been expressed by the Eastern churches, in behalf of the destitute churches in the West. And it is quite impossible for me to express to you the lively joy, the encouragement and gratitude to God, which has often been expressed to me by aged Christians and the ministers of our Presbytery, in view of the prospect offered of the increase of ministers in this Western world. It seems, indeed, like a jubilee. God grant this expectation may not be disappointed—God grant that the example which Mr. H——— has set, may be at the head of a large catalogue. Think a moment, and you will see the necessity of permanent places of public worship, dedicated expressly to his service. Could you be here, you would feel it. You can form little idea what a favourable and deep impression such benevolence makes on these dear people, respecting the reality and the genuineness of the Christian love of our Eastern churches, and what a favourable reception it makes for your missionaries. It is a fact that should be considered, that almost all who come and make these settlements, by the time they have defrayed the expenses of their journey, purchased lands and built for themselves comfortable habitations; the whole being to be made new, they have little left for other purposes—public buildings, schools, &c.—so that there could not be a more desirable and happy opportunity for the exercise of Christian benevolence than in these circumstances to establish the gospel permanently among them, before indolent, vicious, disorderly habits, shall have time to gain any ascendancy. It is much easier and much cheaper preventing them, by establishing religious order, than to eradicate them when once predominant. We have examples of all these kinds at the West. This whole Western country now furnishes the opportunity for all who are blessed with the capacity to perceive and to appreciate it, an opportunity to act over again the example of our forefathers, in laying deep and broad the foundations of national prosperity—an example which has so often and so justly been the theme of eulogium on occasions of national festivity—an opportunity of proving to the world that that eulogium was something more than the empty noise of rhetorical effort. But there is a higher motive—the duty—may I not rather say the privilege of the church, with all her fruits of holiness, flourishing in full and rich clusters on the true vine, to the glory of the Father. O much indulged churches in the land of prayers, and altars, and Sabbaths! “freely have ye received, freely give.” “Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.” If patriotism and Christian love be combined, the work will not fail.

When I consider the few who have been made subjects of renewing grace, and the great moral deadness which yet remains, and that the Church should continue to look on with so much apparent indifference, I am at times ready to think that preaching and praying have been of but little use to this people. But when I look at the improved appearance of our congregations; when I see whole families, and individuals from other families, constant attendants on the Sabbath at the house of prayer, who, a short time since, were rarely if ever known to appear among the worshippers of God; when I learn that a subscription for preaching is not hooted at, but treated with politeness and encouragement; when I meet with kindness, even from those who, three months before, would not subscribe a single penny to encourage the Gospel; when I find that a Tract Society is patronized, that a Missionary Auxiliary Society is indeed established, and that we are now able to raise, by a contribution at the Monthly Concert, eight or ten dollars annually for Foreign Missions, and that a few have been made subjects of renewing grace; and all this effected in perhaps the most unpromising place, within a little more than one year; I am ready to put confidence in the declaration, “Lo, I am with you alway.” Brethren, the foundation you have laid for the building of the Church in this place, is for ages. The influence you have exerted will extend through the millennium. After the consummation of all things in heaven, when comparing the means with the end, you may wonder and rejoice at what God has wrought!

The Rev. C. S. Robinson, Missionary in Missouri, writes thus to the Corresponding Secretary, under date of Nov. 5, 1826, concerning a small settlement on the Dardenne River, in that State.

"At the Dardenne, the prospects are generally brightening. I have preached there during the summer one half of the time. Last month the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. It was an interesting season. Five who were heads of families, were admitted into the Church on profession of their faith, three of whom were baptised. This was a solemn and affecting sight to such of their children as had arrived to manhood. Three others in that congregation have made profession of religion the last year, making in all eight souls.

Some of these were from a family that resided in this State years before it was ceded to the American government. Not having been favoured with a common school education before they came here, and there being no schools at that early period, the eldest children were not taught to read, although naturally bright and active. But in consequence of their becoming hopefully pious, several of them who are between 35 and 40 years old, have commenced learning, and appear to be exceedingly happy that they can now read the word of the living God. A few years since, and this whole family connection knew not the Sabbath but to profane it. The voice of prayer and praise was not heard in their dwellings. Now, the mother and ten of her children, including sons and daughters-in-law, are, I trust, singing the song of redeeming love. O, what a change the gospel has wrought in that family, and in the small settlement at the Dardenne! Could you have a view of this change, you would devoutly ascribe all the glory to God, and be excited to continue to them the blessings of the Gospel. In a few years, I flatter myself, they will be able to support preaching, if they can now receive a little assistance. Several in that settlement are more than usually serious, if not inquiring with deep earnestness, what must we do to be saved?

From a Missionary in the State of New-York, under date of December 12.

When I first came to this people, about two years since, I found the Church in a low condition. Difficulties were existing among Christians, and although the Church then consisted of more than fifty members, yet the first Sabbath I preached there were not present, professors and non-professors, more than thirty persons. The Monthly Concert for prayer was not observed: there was no Sabbath School. The Sabbath was most awfully profaned. Indeed, it was all one moral waste. Christians were slumbering at their post, and the God of this world was leading sinners captive at his will.

There is now a good degree of harmony existing among Christians and others. The Monthly Concert for prayer is regularly, and generally well attended. A very interesting Sabbath School has been formed, which, however, has been discontinued for the winter. The Sabbath is more respected, and some individuals have, as they and we humbly trust, been brought from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto the service of God.

Shall this people, when they are anxious to enjoy, and willing to do all they can to maintain the preached word—shall they, because there is not a speedy prospect of their being able to do more, be left without a spiritual shepherd to tell them things by which they and their children may be saved? When a kind and affectionate people surround me at the Church door, as I am about to enter the Sanctuary to tell them not to lay up treasures on earth, but in heaven, saying, "Will you not stay with us if we will do all that we can?" what can I, what should I say? I feel interested for this people, and have no doubt but it is the fact with your Committee; and that they will, if consistent, continue their aid.

The people in this place were never visited by a Missionary, nor but once by a preacher of our order, till I arrived among them. I found a Church in one part of this extensive tract, consisting of five members only. They informed me that they never had received any religious instruction since they lived in the place, except at the time of their organization. Their importunity, and the unanimity of the people at large, together with the expectation that I might receive pecuniary assistance from the A. H. M. Society, induced me to remove my family from New-England, and settle among them. The language of my heart then was, and ever since has been, "Here in this wilderness let me live; here let me be instrumental in building up the Church of the Redeemer, until my labours on earth shall end!" By the blessing of God on the ministration of his word, the little Church has increased to 25. Also at the distance of nine miles from the place of meeting of this Church, there is a little village commenced. Numbers have there located themselves who were members of other Churches. That they might enjoy the privileges to which they were entitled, they obtained letters, and at their request I organized a Church, consisting of 11 members; and by mutual agreement between the two Churches, I have laboured every alternate Sabbath with them. In different parts of the town I have preached lectures, I think, to the amount of one in each week.

We have attended to the organization and inspection of schools, until almost all the children and youth in the place (16 miles in length and 12 in breadth) are receiving useful instruction from competent teachers. I have purchased several bundles of Bibles and Testaments at the County Depository; some of which I bestowed upon the indigent and destitute; for some, I received pay in part, and for some to their full value. By a friend I have been furnished with a large package of Religious Tracts. One third of them I deposited at the place of meeting; giving notice to the people that any person might take one and keep it a week, then return it and take another, if he should choose. Another third I deposited in the house of a brother in the Church, for the use of the neighborhood in which he lived. The remaining third I have reserved to bestow upon individuals as opportunities present. And I have the happiness to believe that these Tracts have been extensively useful.

As to discouragements, I do not know that I can state any thing of a peculiar kind. Having been in the ministry fifteen years—having been employed as a Missionary, I had become acquainted with the oppositions of sectarians, and the buffetings of a wicked world, previous to entering this field. I consider that it requires about the same self-denial.

hardihood, and exertion, to enter a field like this, as to embark on a foreign Mission. Frequently I have walked in an afternoon, five, six, or seven miles from my dwelling, visited the sick, preached a sermon, and returned. Walked, because, on account of the badness of the road, this was the easiest way to accomplish the rout. This is a new place; yet pretty full of inhabitants. You may travel almost any direction a short distance into the forest, and you will find inhabitants. The people in general are in low circumstances—have very little that they can spare. Their hard earnings amount to little more than a mere subsistence for their families. The amount of subscriptions in the two societies, for the year ending with the present month, is about one hundred dollars. One dollar is all that I have received in money from the inhabitants of this town for ministerial labours during the three years of my residence in this place: and the subscriptions for the year ensuing, will probably be less than for the year past.

I do not mention these things by way of complaint against the people. They have, in general, bestowed as much as their ability will admit. Members of the Church have repeatedly stated to me, that they do not wish, nor expect any other supply, and lament that they can bestow no more than they do. I feel it important that this station should be maintained. This is a frontier, bounded for 12 miles by the St. Lawrence. If any good can be effected here relative to building up the cause of Christ, it must be done by perseverance. I am not discouraged. My health is good. I feel a willingness to spend and be spent here.

under date of January, 25, 1827.*

In November last, I made a missionary excursion to a settlement in the North part of Warren County, about fifty miles distant from this place. It is not a legally incorporated town, but is known as the Fourteenth Township. The settlement contains about twenty-five families, and about the same number in all, of professors of religion. The inhabitants, mostly, are miserably poor. Eight or ten members of our church having taken up their abode there, it was at their earnest request that I visited the place. I found it, indeed, a moral waste. Some, on whom rested the vows of the Lord, had wandered far, very far from the path of duty. I was, however, most heartily welcomed by a few, who mourned over the surrounding desolations. In the meeting which I attended, and in the families I visited, I discovered, as I thought, some indications for good. As I passed from cottage to cottage, I left almost every individual—even those who had been the most thoughtless and hardened—in tears.

I made arrangements for the immediate establishment of a Sabbath School, with the promise that the Bible Association here would send it ten or a dozen Testaments; which appropriation has since been made. I found also a few families destitute of the Bible, and provision has been made for their supply. The last meeting I attended there, was a most interesting season. After the lecture, I gave opportunity for others to speak; when some delinquent professors made very ingenuous and broken-hearted confessions of their departures from the path of life. I left the place, fearing that all these hopeful appearances would soon vanish, but not without fervent desires that the Lord would visit the people with salvation. And everlasting praise be given to the God of all mercy, he has visited the people with salvation. A work of grace of a most interesting character immediately commenced. Fourteen in that small settlement have already entertained the hope of everlasting life through the atoning blood of Jesus, and many others are asking the question, "What shall I do to be saved?" with the deepest solicitude. The work has been distinguished for stillness and solemnity. The subjects of it have been made to feel that their moral nature was in ruins, and have found no hope but in unconditional submission to God through Jesus Christ.

INTERESTING CASES OF CONVERSION.

From a Missionary in Wayne Co. N. Y. to the Secretary of the Geneva Agency, under date of April 3, 1827.

Reverend and Dear Sir—The happy fruits of the revival which took place in this congregation during the last year, are still manifest. At our last communion 4 were received by letter, and 2 by profession, into the fellowship of this church. Brotherly love has been greatly increased, and still continues among the members. We expect some others soon to offer themselves for examination, to be received under the watch and care of this church. One instance of hopeful conversion has lately occurred in this congregation. A man, 62 years old, who had long neglected to attend public worship on the Lord's day, became much displeased with his wife because she came forward and united with the church. His opposition to her discharge of duty, led him to a sight of his heart, and to a conviction of sin, which has hopefully terminated in his conversion. He now attends on the public worship of God, and appears to sit at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind.

From a Missionary of this Society in a new and destitute region of the State of New-York.

"A young lady, in this town, for many years entertained the most dishonourable views of the Christian system. The salvation revealed in the Gospel she had been taught to despise from her infancy. Infidelity being the general theme of the friends who had the care of her education, her mind became effectually fortified against the common influence of divine truth. She did not stop with the experience of those who feared the truth of Revelation! but with all the confidence of pretended knowledge, asserted that she knew the Bible was false. About three years since, her health began to decline, and no doubt was entertained that consumption would soon terminate her relation to this world. She viewed with a steady eye her slow, but certain approach to the tomb, and appeared unmoved at her coming fate. I visited her frequently; but was obliged to introduce the subject of religion in a very delicate manner, lest I should give offence. Nevertheless, through the means of God's own appointing, it pleased him to arrest her attention. The guilt of her heart was set before her; and in about the space of one week, it pleased that Saviour whom she had for twenty-five years despised, to reveal his mercy, giving her "the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ." The evening of her baptism was one of the most interesting I ever spent. She lived after this about four weeks, in which time she ceased not to warn all who approached her of their danger, and exhorted them to flee from the wrath to come—especially the friends by whom she had been led to the very verge of ruin. The kindness of God to her from her conversion to her death was very great; she never lost sight of her interest in the Saviour, but continued to rejoice in the hope of the glory of God.

UTILITY OF BIBLE CLASSES IN NEW SETTLEMENTS.

The following Extract is from the pen of a Missionary whose field of labour is the destitute portions of a county in Ohio.

As Bible Classes were scarcely known when I came here, I have taken much pains to secure punctuality: and have succeeded so far, that the majority have never failed an exercise in five months. They can ride several miles in the worst of weather. The four classes consist of 120, and the number of spectators is much larger than the class. If I may decide from effects before my own eyes, these exercises are much more efficient instruments of good in a new, than in an old country. Judge —— has opened his house for one of these classes, and says the moral influence of one recitation is more than that of two sermons. Latterly, a church has been formed in their township, consisting of 24 members, spreading over a surface of country 12 miles up and down the Ohio, and extending six miles back from the river. One woman came on foot to attend the Sacrament, ten miles. We expect an addition of several members, at the next communion in the spring.

From the same, April 16, 1827.

Since my report for February, my labours have been arduous, but I think successful. My four Bible Classes continue punctual, and their interest in the study of the Scriptures has not abated. In one of them, whose number is above 40, is an unusual degree of seriousness. We have had three Inquiry Meetings, which are a thing as new in this place as Bible Classes were when I came here. The number that attended the last Inquiry Meeting was ten.

Our church will probably become a quarter or a third larger at the next sacramental communion. Though other denominations seem to be making extraordinary exertions, our meetings are well attended in every part of the County. The effect of your Society is felt in this region. I know of no reason why an active agent could not form a society sufficient to support one Missionary, in almost every County of the State. Since I wrote you, I have preached in a house that had no windows, and was under the necessity of getting the Hymns read by the light of a crevice in the wall. I have preached in the entry of a school-house, where one-third of my audience were outside: and in a snowy day in February, to visit a sick man, I rode a young horse across a stream where the bottom could not be touched for 8 rods. These things, with riding in storms, and sleeping where the wind and rain beat on my head, are hard for flesh and blood. But no man who has any flesh in his heart, can help doing just as I have done. The wants of the people, their urgent requests, and the prospect of doing them good, (which cannot be resisted,) would move a heart of stone.

I have no knowledge that ———, a township joining this, ever paid a dollar to support Presbyterian preaching till this year. The place has now signed to the County Society, $39. The first Sabbath I preached in the place, was in August; and the accommodations were so poor, that some went home at noon. A kiln of brick was burned, and in December I preached in a new meeting-house that would hold all the people. The third time I preached in the place, the two or three that tried to sing, so failed that I was obliged to omit that part of the worship. In seven weeks after, from 20 to 25 men rose up to sing. They met their singing-master five times in one week. Men who have not been habituated to meet God on the Sabbath, now attend meeting, and will contribute of their substance to support the Gospel. Seven individuals will bind themselves to pay annually $200, if I can stay and preach with them one-half the time.

REVIVALS OF RELIGION.

From the Rev. Hezekiah N. Woodruff, Missionary in Manlius, in this state, under date of July 20, 1826.

I have great reason to bless the name of the King of Zion, that while he has called for many labours, he has added to the pleasure, by the revivals of religion which have refreshed his churches in this neighborhood. It commenced in the three churches in this town about the same time. Although it has not been as powerful as in some other counties, especially in Oneida, yet it has been a refreshing season, and has called for great activity. Perhaps about one hundred have already united with the different churches, and a considerable number more will unite at the next communion season. We have received eleven at Orville, and a number more have been examined—a number of children are among the latter. Meetings for prayer are every day in the week—a number of the subjects are from the Bible Classes. I have most certainly seen the desirable effects of that mode of instruction.

A WEEK IN EDWARDSVILLE, ILLINOIS.

The following is from the Rev. Hiram Chamberlin, Missionary in St. Louis, Missouri, June 28, 1826—and we trust will not fail in some degree to interest the sympathies of our readers.

The Lord is visiting the people of the West with gracious indications of mercy. This will be cheering and encouraging to those who are making benevolent efforts in their behalf. In the month of March last, I preached an evening lecture in Edwardsville, where I found the people anticipating, with much interest, the arrival, and subsequent labours, of one of your missionaries. Their hopes were disappointed, and they felt the disappointment. Yet they did not despair. They went again to the throne of grace, to ask if there was no help for them. Their prayer was accepted. The Lord heard them, and sent his Spirit to bless them. When I visited them last week, I found that general and deep seriousness which indicated the presence of the divine Agent, opening, to the dark mind, the glory of the gospel, and leading sinners to embrace their Redeemer. In company with the elders of the church, I went from house to house, bearing the message of salvation. We were cordially received, and our remarks were heard with solemn attention. The inquiry was repeatedly made, "Will the Society send us a minister?" Could the friends of Domestic Missions have heard it in those circumstances, they would have felt new zeal in their work. Lectures were appointed, and the people manifested a readiness to leave their worldly business to attend on the ministration of God's truth. The audience on the Sabbath was unusually large, and solemn. The looks of many expressed the deep anguish of their hearts. Several have given evidence of a saving change, and many are anxiously inquiring, and present appearances justify the hope that the work is but begun. The harvest is indeed fully ripe. And shall the precious grain be lost for want of labourers? A Cumberland Presbyterian, who has the reputation of being a very good man, is the only minister in the county. Eight years ago, Edwardsville was an entire wilderness, uninhabited by civilized man. Now a town is built, and the people possess both intelligence and refinement. They are able and willing to appreciate the labours of a qualified ambassador. They are looking to your Society for help. I am authorized to make the application in their behalf, and to say, that a suitable candidate, such an one as will unite the people, would receive one-half or two-thirds of his support for the first year. Here are some, who have once enjoyed the ordinances of the gospel in your city—some whose friends are now numbered among the members of your churches. They call to you. And shall not their call be heard? They call while the Lord is raining righteousness upon them. They want a spiritual guide now, to lead the lambs of the flock, and to pour into the bleeding heart the consolations of the gospel.

Rev. Samuel Swozey, Florence, Oneida Co. N. Y. September 5, 1826.

The glorious work of Divine Grace that was going on when I last wrote, continued for a season to progress, and reflection now "lingers with delight" upon the precious season of refreshing we have recently enjoyed. Though the special work of revival mostly subsided in the month of May, our meetings on the Sabbath have not diminished as to the numbers who attend. On the first Sabbath in July, we admitted to the communion of the church twenty as the first fruits of the revival. The most of these were youths whose parents were church members. This accession increased the church about one third. Last Sabbath three were received into the church, and four others stand propounded. A goodly number more will probably come forward at our future communions as the fruits of the late revival. There appears recently an increasing spirit of prayer among individuals of the church, and I feel some encouraged to hope that the Lord will again multiply among us the trophies of his grace. There have been several added to other denominations in the limits of the town. On the 2d Sabbath in July last, there were admitted to the communion of the church in Camden 126. Since that there has been another accession, the exact number I am not able to state. The work of grace in that town commenced much earlier than among us, and subsided nearly the same time. The number of hopeful conversions is about 230. Conversions among us were probably as numerous for a few weeks in proportion to the population, as in Camden. I trust we shall never forget in this region "this year of the right hand of the Most High." Heaven will for ever resound with acclamations of joy and praise for the wonderful things which "God hath wrought" in the midst of us.

I consider this a very important and interesting field of labor. Much needs to be done to bring the rising population into a favorable state of moral cultivation. I do think that there is an encouraging prospect of great good being effected through the instrumentality of the stated means of grace. When "God arises to have mercy on Zion," opposition wastes away under the successful triumphs of omnipotent agency. Many prayers have been offered by the churches in this region which have shared in the late revivals of religion, in behalf of those that have not yet been visited. The relation of the tale of woe generally produces the greatest effect on those who are near the scene of suffering, and the moral devastations which are witnessed in our immediate vicinity, are calculated to produce a more powerful effect upon the mind of the beholder, than those at a distance. The pious few who are "scattered like sheep upon the mountains," do often urge their petitions for the bread of life with melting ardor. "The Lord of the harvest" is not regardless of their unyielding importunity. Facts testify that he hath seen their affliction, heard their groaning, and in numerous instances come down to deliver them.

The Fourth Report of the late U. D. M. S. cannot be read with indifference by those who are "waiting for the consolation of Israel." The 148 churches and congregations to whom aid has been extended during the year past, must bring in their testimony in favour of Domestic Missions. From the specimen afforded of the salutary influence of such benevolent exertions, what may not be hoped for in the execution of the extended plan of the A. H. M. S.? Surely we may expect that great things will be accomplished by the God of Missions in "building up the waste places of Zion." "The wilderness and the solitary places will be glad" "Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased." The rising glory of Messiah's kingdom will doubtless be extensively promoted by means of the late plan adopted to supply the Destitute in our own land "It is the Lord's doing, and marvellous in our eyes." Yours, in the bonds of the gospel.

REVIVAL IN MILFORD COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA.

From Rev. Thomas Grier, February 12, 1827.

The revival here still advances. The different neighbourhoods around, have been somewhat refreshed; but the showers of divine grace have descended no where so copiously, as in the village of Milford. Since my last report of labour in the month of October, we have received seventy-six into the church, besides four admitted upon certificate; amounting, with those before mentioned, to one hundred and eleven received within the space of four months. There is not more than one house in Milford, where some one has not been slain by the law, that "he might live unto Christ."

SUSQUEHANNA COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA.

Rev. Mr. Baldwin writes from Montrose, Susquehanna County, Feb. 13, as follows:

Our meetings on the Sabbath, and during the week, are marked with solemnity and deep feeling. Within two or three months, a number of very remarkable conversions have occurred, of persons who seemed before to have been given over to hardness of heart. About forty have united with the Presbyterian church since the commencement of the revival; and there are a number of others, of whose piety we have formed a favorable impression; who, as we expect, will become ultimately connected with us. I should have forwarded this communication at an earlier date, but I have been engaged a few days past, in an agency for the Susquehanna Co. Miss. Soc. My object has been to excite the vacant congregations to aid its funds, that we may be able to employ a Missionary the whole time in the county. At the present time Missionary labour is much needed, and the fields are already white unto the harvest. Seven or eight towns are blessed with the special influences of the Holy Spirit; and hope is indulged that all the languishing churches in this wilderness will be refreshed.

A county prayer meeting has been held the third Wednesday of every month, in which the people of God from various parts of the county, have with one accord united in supplication for the descent of the Holy Spirit. This Concert has been regularly observed for more than four years past, and has of late been attended with much interest.

REVIVAL IN HARTFORD, N. Y.

A letter from Rev. John B. Shaw, dated Hartford, Washington Co. N. Y.

Ap il 25, 1827, contains the following paragraphs:

For several months our prospects have been gradually brightening. There is now a deep and awful solemnity spread over our worshipping assemblies. The Lord is in this place, subduing proud rebels to himself! Within four or five weeks, thirty or more, in all, have, it is hoped, made an unreserved and cheerful surrender of themselves to God, and have found peace through humble faith in the blood of sprinkling. All their hopes of heaven they hang on the cross of our atoning Jesus.

New cases of conviction and hopeful conversion occur, somewhere in town, almost every day. Many are solemn. Several are greatly distressed on account of their guilt. The number who attend the anxious meeting, varies from forty to fifty. In some houses, every day seems almost like the Sabbath. Five in one family are rejoicing in hope.

Some are expected to join our church at the next communion, both by letter and by profession of faith. The Sabbath Schools, which were attended, though not very well, in the two churches during the winter, have now commenced successfully in the several districts in town. Some of the scholars have lately, it is believed, become Christians. The Bible Class is still continued, and some of its members now hope they love the truth as it is in Jesus.

“THERE REMAINETH YET VERY MUCH LAND TO BE POSSESSED.”

“Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest.”

MARYLAND.

From a Member of the Presbytery of Lewes. Extract of a Letter, dated SNOW-HILL, Md. Feb. 9, 1827.

To the Secretary of the National Home Missionary Society.

SIR—The object of this letter is to give you some account of the condition of the churches in connexion with the Presbytery of Lewes.

We are encouraged to do this by the laudable anxiety manifested by your Society, to be possessed of information from every part of the United States.

The writer proposes for several reasons to confine his views to Presbyterian churches. In this section of the country, there are Christians belonging to the several denominations, some of whom the writer regards as his valued friends. No consideration could induce him to violate that sacred law of charity which it has ever been his pride to cultivate.

It is not often that, in any part of the United States, we can find Presbyterian churches gone into decay. But this Peninsula has the melancholy distinction of seeing whole congregations dispersed, so that not a remnant of them is now left. There are edifices once occupied by some of the most useful ministers of the Lord Jesus, that have sunk into almost irrecoverable ruin. Let a few instances suffice.

A church once stood in Drummond Town, on the eastern shore of Virginia, in which it is probable that no less a man than Francis McKemie used to officiate. But it has totally disappeared. In Vienna, on the banks of the Nanticoke, there was formerly a building for the use of Presbyterians, but not a single vestige of it can be found. Eight miles from the village of Snow Hill, within the last fifteen years there was a church filled by a large and flourishing congregation. But the flock is entirely scattered. It is probable that in the town of Cambridge a church of the same order once stood, but Ichabod may be written amidst its ruins. Instances of other churches might be adduced; but as the writer is not personally acquainted with their location, he leaves you to infer the number from the extent of our Peninsula.

There are other congregations, the protracted existence of which is exceedingly doubtful. They have been struggling for a series of years with innumerable difficulties. When a minister is to be supported, several of these congregations are formed into a circle for the purpose. Thus some part of a preacher's charge must always be exposed to the incursion of every dangerous delusion.

It is with great difficulty that the churches in connexion with this Presbytery can be sustained. But as to the formation of new churches, it would be out of the question even to think of this, unless the National Missionary Society will send us help. The Presbytery has probably 800 communicating members, and but four ordained ministers. These ministers might supply these members, were they brought together into any thing like a reasonable compass of distance. But they are scattered far and wide over immense tracts of country; and yet, though unable to support our old churches, there is upon this Peninsula a wide and inviting field for ministerial enterprise. There are large towns where new congregations might be formed without at all intruding upon the ground occupied by other Christian teachers.

Though our country is for the most part a dead level, it is girded round by the finest bays. It is intersected by noble rivers, and filled with a thousand deep and green retreats of polished Rural Life. It may be safely asserted, that there is no section of the United States where a larger number of retired gentlemen of correct literary taste can be found than on this Peninsula. From such a country, under proper moral cultivation, what large resources might be drawn in a very few years for our National Missionary Society? With assistance from Missionary Societies, it would be high treason to abandon the cause as hopeless. Some Christians appear to be engaged for the prosperity of religion, and some churches, which have been vacant for years, have waited anxiously for teachers, who, in their ministrations, would exalt God and abase the creature. The Presbytery of Lewes feel the desolate condition of these Churches. They have mourned over it. They have had collections taken in their churches for Missionary purposes, and could a number of stationary Missionaries be sent to this Peninsula, our prospects would soon begin to brighten.

These Peninsular churches ought to be deeply interesting to all the friends of Zion. They are among the oldest Presbyterian Churches in the United States. It is probable that one of the churches in Somerset county, if not the first, is among the first in this country. If the churches, then, in the vallies of Italy be worthy of fostering care, so are the churches for which we plead.

OHIO.

From a Correspondent in Geauga Co. Ohio, February 26, 1827.

The moral and religious condition of this region is more deplorable than that of any other which I have known. The dark places in the State of New-York are light, compared with this.

There is in this whole county but one Presbyterian minister who has any pastoral charge, and he but for half the time, and that in two towns sharing his labors equally.

The Synod of the Western Reserve has 87 churches; and within its limits 42 Presbyterian preachers. Of the churches, 41 consist of 20, or less than 20 members each. Of the ministers, three only preach their whole time to single congregations. Almost all of them are missionaries a part, and most of them half their time. More itinerant missionary labour has been bestowed on the Western Reserve than on any other section of our country.

* * * * *

It is in my view of vast importance to the interests of religion that there should be constant ministerial labors, at least in some of the most considerable villages— and if possible, that some respectable religious societies should be built up which will have influence on the country around.

INDIANA.

From a Correspondent in that state. dated Indianapolis, Nov. 20, 1826.

The state of Indiana presents, at this moment, a field both of action and contemplation, in the highest degree interesting. Possessing a territory of which the beauty of its visible aspect is equalled only by the amazing fertility of the soil, a soil unmoistened by the sweat, or the tears, or the blood of the slave—it must soon, from its local relations and its internal resources, rank with the most populous States of the Union. It is now teeming with the hordes of emigration, and the progress of improvement is inconceivable. The earlier inhabitants, in viewing or describing the changes which ten or fifteen years have effected in the state of this immense forest, (as it was at that time,) can scarce refrain from bursts of astonishment. Though the trees, wherever you travel, bear the marks of the Indian tomahawk, and the very poles, and the crisped barks, which formed their temporary camps, are still to be seen, yet farms are every where opening in the wilderness—the resounding axe is heard as often and as far as the yells of wild beasts—the nimble deer feed among the domestic herds—and, every twenty or thirty miles, the spire of a handsome Court House of brick rises amidst the deadened trunks of the poplars, walnuts, and oaks.

From living in a central part of the State, on a road that forms the great thoroughfare from the East to the West, I am situated favourably for observing the flow of emigration. During the autumnal months, nothing is more common than to see ten, fifteen, or twenty wagons, passing in a single day, carrying the little all of the families which pass in groups by their sides. As many as thirty of these loaded wagons have been known to camp for the night at the same spot in the wilderness. The destination of the great body of emigrants that pass through the centre of the State, is the tract of country bordering along the Wabash, particularly from that point where this river falls in with the eastern boundary line of Illinois, upwards towards its source. This region is becoming the garden spot of Indiana; and the rate at which population is augmenting in that quarter exceeds belief. And truly, from the acquaintance I have gained during a recent tour to the Wabash, with that part of the State, I am ready to believe that, were a stranger to the peculiar features of the Mississippi valley to be suddenly set down in any of the prairie tracts which adorn that noble stream, he could not but wonder, that the wisdom and goodness of Providence should have so long withheld such enchanting regions from the possession of civilized men.

Such is the natural character of a very considerable portion of a country, of which its moral aspect forms a mournful reverse to the sketch now given. The Canaanite is yet in the land; its clusters are the clusters of Sodom. Not that the body of the population are entirely regardless of any form of religion. On the contrary, there is an abundance of what is called the preaching of the Gospel; much of a disposition to hear—much of a certain kind of zeal, and of the form of godliness. But alas! there is little, little of the true evangelical dispensation of the word of life, or its appropriate fruits.

This dark view, however, we are happy to state, is relieved by many grateful facts of a different kind. The Lord has a chosen seed scattered here and there over this barren land. And the lonely Missionary who turns aside to tarry for a night in the humble cabins of the wilderness, will often find himself delighted and refreshed by the pious conversation and prayers of a venerable father or mother in Christ. These are they who are pining for the bread of life—who are turning their anxious eyes to the proffered aid of your Society. They are few in number and weak in means ; but could the Gospel once be stately fixed among them, their prospects would be enlightened, as it is well ascertained that there is scarcely any settlement in the country containing a few pious families, but the number would be speedily increased by emigrants, were there only a certainty that the privileges and ordinances of the Gospel awaited their arrival. How then shall this seed become productive of a future harvest without cultivators ? And where are the cultivators to be found ? They are not in the field ; nor are they rearing up in the midst of us. In the Presbyterian connection there are not three candidates for the ministry in the whole State. Whence, then, shall we look for Pauls and Apolloses to tend the husbandry of God, but to your Society ?

Our population at present is rated at between 2 and 300,000 ; and we have only twelve resident Presbyterian ministers in the state. The Presbytery to which I belong, embraces a range of territory nearly 200 miles in length and 80 in breadth ; in which we have only four members with charges, though we number nineteen congregations. I am stationed in the centre of a large body of population, yet my nearest clerical neighbour lives at the distance of 50 or 60 miles. I was this year obliged to travel 140 miles to attend Presbytery.

The scarcity of ministers and missionaries forms the burden of our lamentation. Few are they who are found ready to devote themselves to the blessed apostolical work of seeking the wandering sheep : fewer, no doubt, than they would be, could those who have abundance be persuaded to bestow a part of it towards furnishing the labourer with his well-earned hire. “ The Lord’s sheep are scattered because there is no shepherd : yea, his flock are scattered upon all the face of the earth, and there is none to search or seek after them.” Most earnestly, therefore, do we request that shepherds may be sent among us : those who shall “ seek that which is lost, and bring again that which is driven away, and bind up that which is broken, and strengthen that which is sick.”

From Rev. James H. Johnston, Corresponding Secretary of the Indiana Missionary Society, Madison, Ind. Feb. 20, 1827.

INTERESTING TO THEOLOGICAL STUDENTS.

“ It is cheering to be informed, that a good spirit, in respect to Western Missions, prevails at present at the Theological Seminaries. It is of incalculable importance that that spirit should be encouraged. There can be no doubt, that when the subject comes to be viewed in its proper light, and proper feelings are entertained in regard to it, there will be a vast increase in the number of those who will feel it their duty to visit this section of the Union. They will discover, moreover, that it is not a matter of indifference which way they decide in respect to this subject, but that a “ necessity is laid upon them to preach the Gospel” to these destitute settlements, and that "wo" is to them if they permit the objections of friends, the desire of ease, or refined society, or ample salaries, to keep them back from a field of labour so extensive, so interesting, and so white for the harvest, as is presented by the Western country. I admit that there may, sometimes, arise a question of duty in respect to this matter of not very easy solution; but if all the earthly considerations just mentioned, which certainly ought not to influence the heart of one who has consecrated himself, by the most entire dedication and the most solemn vows, to the service of Him, who loved him and gave Himself for him; if these considerations were set aside, I cannot but think that the difficulty of coming to a correct determination would be very much diminished. It is not enough, in determining the question of duty, simply to consider that there are vacant churches at the East, which it is desirable should be supplied, but it should also be recollected that those churches are in the vicinity of the preached Gospel—are situated where their cry for help can be easily heard, and their wants can be readily made known, and will doubtless soon be supplied; whereas these destitute settlements are so far removed that they attract little notice; their solicitations for aid die away in the distance; there are none to be found who care for their souls; and therefore, they are in danger of remaining long destitute. And if these considerations fail perfectly to satisfy one in respect to his duty, let him again reflect that, in doubtful cases, it is always safest to err on the side of self-denial.

I confess, at times, the Missionary will meet with unexpected difficulties and discouragements, calculated greatly to weigh down his spirits and produce a feeling of despondency, as to his prospects of usefulness in the field he has selected: but still there is something in the reflection that he is engaged in the cause of God, that his labours have been undertaken in obedience to Christ's command, and in imitation of his example—which will be found sufficient to sustain him and to render him "steadfast, and immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as he knows that his labour is not in vain in the Lord." But no one need apprehend that he will meet with nothing but discouragements in this country. If he has the spirit of the Gospel, and delights in doing good; in cheering the hearts of desponding saints, who have long hung their harps upon the willows, in reclaiming the wandering; in instructing the ignorant; in building up the waste places of Zion; he will meet with much, very much, to compensate him for his labours and privations."

KENTUCKY.

From a Missionary in Kentucky, under date of January 8, 1827.

You have doubtless learned the interesting state of religion at Danville and in that region. When the moral state of this country is considered, the spread of error and the prevalence of infidelity; the visitation of mercy on the infant institution at Danville should elicit the warmest gratitude. A number of the choicest sons of that institution have been brought into the kingdom of God. I was enlivened and gratified with the prospect, at the meeting of the Presbytery and Synod, and cannot but hope that the dawning of a brighter day on this wilderness is at hand. There is a spirit of consecration to their great and glorious object among the clergy, which is ominous of good. They evinced a determination truly interesting at their Synod; each minister pledged himself to pay $300, to the endowment of a professorship in the Danville college.

If you cast your eye on a map of Kentucky, and trace that extensive portion of it which borders on the Ohio river, you will observe but three points where the ministry is supported. There is a minister at Maysville, at Augusta, and at Louisville; these places excepted, this long line of country has not, I presume, one minister who devotes his time as a pastor.

MISSOURI AND ILLINOIS.

From a Correspondent in Kaskaskia, Illinois, July 24, 1826.

What might have been true ten or twenty years ago, must not be taken for a true description of the West now. I am fully persuaded that all that kind of information and intelligence which you expect to find in sea-captains—business men—and political men—is actually found in a greater proportion here, than even in the North or South.

This change and this state of intelligence, you perceive, has not lessened, but increased, the necessity of preachers of the true gospel; for the class of men which I have just described, have not often been remarkable for their religious knowledge—or interest, as a class, in religious institutions. Nor has it tended to lower down the requisite qualifications in a religious teacher, but the contrary.

The present is a very FAVORABLE TIME for the society to commence its operations, for two reasons. First, from what I have just said. Almost every where I have been, I have heard the complaint, we can no longer listen to preaching which contains no instruction—and places of worship are forsaken.—A much greater anxiety than I expected to find is almost every where apparent, for something more—something better. This, too, is honestly acknowledged by many of the teachers of the country who have had no opportunity for education, and they are honorably making exertions for improvement. One, I have been told, has made respectable progress in his Greek Testament, while on horseback. The other reason is—the country generally is poor. This may be thought a singular advantage—yet it is a real one. At the time of, and for a considerable space after the late war, the country was full of cash—every body had enough—and every species of extravagance abounded; the public mind was in such a state of intoxication of pleasure, and business, and enterprise, that it was quite impossible to gain a moment's serious attention to the subject of religion, in any important point of view. Now, blessed be God, it is otherwise—the public mind is calm, and comparatively contemplative—the means of extravagance are lost—at least not possessed—and there has been time enough for the desire of it also to be considerably abated. I am fully persuaded, from nine months' opportunity, and from conversation with very many, that access to the heart—opportunity of gaining serious attention to institutions of religion in the minds of the influential class of men, is incomparably more encouraging now, than at any former period—and perhaps than will long continue or soon happen again.

From a Missionary in the interior of Missouri, Aug. 1826.

“So far as I know, my labours are well received. My preaching is heard with solemn attention, and sometimes with apparent effect. Some are anxious for the salvation of their souls. For this I desire to be very grateful and humble.

“I have just heard that your Society have sent to Andover and Princeton for several Western Missionaries this fall. This, dear Sir, greatly rejoiced my heart. We need help—not of twelve only, but of twelve times twelve. The field is long and wide. I cannot say, indeed, that it is white for the harvest. No, Sir, it is a wilderness! a wilderness, too, where the Minister of the Gospel needs to be, in every sense, the Soldier of the Cross. The importance of a Mission to this State has not been overrated. Its moral condition is deplorable, and the one half is not known to the friends of Zion in the East, for the simple reason, that there have been none here to send you a record of facts. It may have been often said, that all beyond the neighbourhood of St. Louis are destitute; but this general statement tells only a small part, especially to those who have never been destitute, or only partially so. In this vast region of moral desolation, in this “valley of dry bones, which are many and exceeding dry,” I learn what it is to be destitute—a comment that causes me often, very often, to weep. I do not mean to say that there are no pious families—for such are here and there to be found. With some of them I have met; and as the visit of a Missionary reminded them of privileges they once enjoyed, they would talk of better things and better days, which they once saw, till the silence of grief told what words could not express. Nor do I mean to say, that the country has none who are called Preachers of the Gospel, for such are numerous; almost every neighbourhood has its preacher, and some two or three, and I hope, indeed, most of them are good men. But, with few exceptions, this is the only qualification they possess for that sacred office, which made Paul exclaim, “Who is sufficient for these things?”

“It is cause of gratitude that I have been permitted to enter this important field of service; and though discouragements at times cause my spirit to sink, yet I am willing to toil here till I die, if God so directs. But, dear Sir, you will allow me to beg for help. I hope at least four Missionaries will be commissioned for this State in the fall. Many more could be fully employed, but the number mentioned seems to be imperiously needed. Of these I would plead that two may come to this upper country.

“I am alone—one hundred and fifty miles from any brother in the ministry—in a region where every thing is to be done, without fathers in the Church to counsel me, and without a New England

Church to assist me. The man who would do good here, must put his shoulder to the wheel, and push hard and long ! I will shrink from no service ; but how much can one feeble, inexperienced youth, do in the wilderness alone ! I beg for help ! I need a brother of a kindred spirit, with whom I can counsel, and labour, and pray. To labour alone, I fear, will be to labour almost in vain.

From our Missionary in St. Charles, Missouri, Nov. 5, 1826.

The prospect of usefulness has yearly become more and more flattering through this whole region of country. The hard times have had a happy influence in promoting industry and morality, and have indirectly done much to prepare the way for the reception of divine truth. This is what I joyfully anticipated years ago. Through this humiliating and obscure medium, I thought I could discover the light of better days. But with the dawn of this light, how few have come to our help. Only let the churches know that there are suitable men waiting to brave the perils of this wilderness, and I am confident they will supply the funds to send them. The fact must be told, that the competent ministers of all denominations are so few, that many portions of this State can never be properly brought under the influence of the Gospel, without an annual increase of laborers, of more than five to one that has come here for four years past. What can two missionaries of our denomination do, one hundred and fifty miles from each other, in a region of country larger than both the States of Connecticut and Massachusetts, and with a population of 40,000 souls, which is increasing, at this season of the year, at the rate of one hundred souls every day for two or three months ?

Does not a country thus populating from various parts of the United States, justly claim the notice and commiseration of the American Home Missionary Society ? And can an enlightened religious community behold our increasing demand for help, without increased efforts to send us able and faithful heralds of the cross ? For this I shall hope and pray, with the full expectation that the great Sun of Righteousness will soon shine upon this infant portion of the Church, and cause the gentle showers of divine grace to descend, the plants of righteousness to revive, and the seed which in many places has long been sown in this comparatively desolate region, to spring up and ripen into an abundant harvest.

The idea that men of ordinary talents can be more useful in a new country, than in an old one, can never apply to Missouri. Four active and able Missionaries are this moment wanted north of the Missouri river. But how are they to be obtained ? Is there any prospect that we can be furnished ?

Two hundred and fifty miles above me is Clay County, which in population ranks among the largest counties in the State. Liberty, the county seat, is a flourishing village. A Missionary is much needed there. It is an out-post which ought to be immediately occupied. The same may be said of Palmyra, upwards of one hundred miles above me upon the Mississippi, in Marion County. Our demand is yearly increasing, and I feel confident you will not forget us. In much haste, I am yours affectionately.

EAST FLORIDA.

From our Missionary at St. Augustine, East Florida.

There must necessarily, not long hence, be a most important post for the operations of Christian benevolence, either here or in the neighbourhood. The form and situation of our peninsula, place it beyond a doubt, that a communication will be effected between this part of the Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico. Wherever this channel may terminate on this side the peninsula, there a town will rise up as if by magic, where moral power will be concentrated, and where a moral influence will go forth, conveying the streams of life or death, into all this southern region. This important spot will undoubtedly be Augustine, or some point within forty miles of it. I hope the first builders of this future city, will have a missionary to point them to Babylon, and Tadmor, and Tyre, and Sodom, whose sunken remnants are set forth to warn the wicked of the judicial visitations of a sin-hating God. Though this place is not commercially flourishing, it is of incalculable importance that the little band which have been collected here, should be kept together, and that a well-disciplined Church of Christ should be maintained. For not only is this the single place where true religion has any foot-hold on this side the peninsula, but it is the only place where the ordinances can be enjoyed for the present, so scattered is the population around us. In the mean time, this is, and must continue to be, a place of resort for strangers. The present population of this town, is probably not more than two thousand ; and that of the eastern division of the Territory, cannot, I think, exceed six thousand. But the solitary Protestant Church among these thousands, must still be to the benevolent mind an intense object of interest, especially when it is considered, that should the project of internal improvement now before the nation, go into execution, ten years would be sufficient to render this one of the most important situations in the United States.

 NEW-ORLEANS.

In June last, a highly valued correspondent in New-Orleans, laid before the Committee an appeal in behalf of that city, containing the following statements :

The population of New-Orleans is from 45,000 to 50,000. Nominal Catholics 25,000—A few Jews, perhaps 100.—The residue of population nominal Protestants, say 20,000. There are a few Baptists, a Methodist church which is doing good, one Episcopal, and one Presbyterian church. But among all who belong to these several denominations, there are probably not more than 120 decidedly pious individuals.

There are in the city six licensed Gambling Houses, paying to the Government $5,000 each. Their annual expenses, besides their licenses, are not less than $10,000 each, making in all an expenditure of $90,000 annually ; and every means are taken to introduce strangers to visit these haunts of dissipation and crime. There are also two Theatres, one of which is usually open on Sabbath evening, and is numerously attended.

In connection with these statements, let it be considered that New-Orleans exerts a powerful influence upon the inhabitants of all those States and Territories that border on the Mississippi, and the water courses emptying into it : That most of the exports and a large portion of the imports of the western part of Pennsylvania and Virginia, of a large part of Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois—all Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas Territory, Mississippi, Louisiana, and a large portion of Alabama, centres in New-Orleans.—The contaminating moral influence of this city is throughout this wide extent of territory, and these millions of our free and enterprising inhabitants.

I hope that I anxiously desire the salvation of those around me, and sometimes almost tremble with horror, when I look around this great city—when I reflect, that in a country called Christian, a city should be found containing forty-five thousand, and often, in the season of business, containing from sixty-five to seventy thousand souls, and that city, having a greater moral influence on other sections of country than any city on the continent, visited, too, almost annually, by the destroying angel, in which hardly a single Evangelical Minister of the Gospel should be found, to preach Christ crucified to the dying thousands. If some poor wanderer is, like myself, inquiring what he shall do to be saved : he looks around in vain for a guide and instructor—the enemy of souls, in the mean time, assails him with temptations, from within and from without. The thoughtless sinner hears no warning voice, and, mingling with the thousands of his own character, they rush on madly in one unbroken column to death and the judgment ; and in dreadful numbers people the regions of despair ! Oh, my dear sir, are the bowels of compassion of Christians, wholly shut up to the cries of this devoted city ? For twenty years it has been an integral part of the United States : thousands of the friends and relations of northern Christians have here found their graves ; thousands are flocking in to fill up the ranks which the destroying angel has thinned—but no Christians appear, no messenger of good news, no ardent apostle comes to this people. Will not Christians cast their eyes upon this place—they can look at Asia and Africa, and the savage tribes, and the islands of the sea ; but to this place, where many of the inhabitants are bone of their bone, and flesh of their flesh, their eyes are blinded, and hearts hardened. Do not think I am disposed to find fault with what they have done elsewhere—far from it—this ought they to have done, but not to leave the other undone.

Let me entreat you, my dear sir, to take this subject into consideration, to lay it before men of influence and piety, around you. Let me beseech you and them, by the love you have for the souls of men, by the love you bear to that Redeemer, by whom you have been redeemed from the curse of the law, to make at least one effort on behalf of this place. If there is a spot on the globe, from which an appeal can be made to the hearts of the Christian community, it is New-Orleans : but from some unaccountable cause, they seem to have forgotten that the place exists. Do not rest contented, I beseech you, until some Protestant Clergyman, of talents, of learning, of prudence, of experience, of ardent piety and zeal, is sent to this place.

INTERESTING FROM NEW-ORLEANS.

The patrons of the American Home Missionary Society will doubtless receive with gratitude, the following notices of the Rev. J. L. De Fernex's mission to New-Orleans. [See page 19.]

From our Correspondent there, under date of April 13, 1827.

MY DEAR SIR—The Board of Directors of the American Home Missionary Society will, I am sure, rejoice with us at what has been done already here, and at the prospect which is before us of establishing a French Protestant Church in this city. In the newspaper sent herewith, you will find an account of our meeting on Monday evening last. The subscription already amounts, I believe, to upward of $1000. There is little doubt but that it will rise to $1500. Almost every day, Protestants, or descendants of Protestants, are discovered. Several Catholics and four Jews have subscribed or given money. Several Catholics have attended the preaching of Mr. De Fernex, and others declare their intention of hearing. There is now no doubt that we shall employ Mr. De Fernex for twelve months; and if his life and health are spared, and the blessing of God is with him, that in time a church will be regularly organized, and that he will be invited to become its pastor for life.

Every thing appears favourable; much more favourable than even our most sanguine hopes had anticipated. Pardon me for saying that the Christians of the north have too much fear of climate: in other words, of death. I rejoice that Mr. De Fernex is free from fear; is bold, though I have no doubt, prudent. His preaching has thus far given universal satisfaction. From present appearances, I think it probable that he will have large audiences; and I feel quite confident that a blessing will attend his labours. His style of preaching is calculated to interest, convince, and instruct. His situation and prospects are so much more flattering than he anticipated, that he is highly gratified and quite happy. We have all great reason to be thankful; we looked for much opposition, and find none; and the way is at once opened for him to go on without difficulty in his labours of love. From his conversation, I think his great desire is, to win souls to Christ; not to make nominal converts. He says that it is his wish to establish a Sunday School, as soon as he can see a prospect of doing good. Your Society have, I think, great reason to rejoice that they sent Mr. De Fernex hither; and I am persuaded they would see equal cause for rejoicing if they were to send out one or two able missionaries to preach in English. But I have said so much on this subject before, that I will not detain you with it.

CONSTITUTION.

&c. &c.

General Plan of Auxiliary Societies and Associations.

The Executive Committee recommend the formation of Church or Congregational Associations, for Home Missions, wherever there exists ability to contribute to this object. These, in the city of New-York, and its vicinity, are respectfully advised to become immediately Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society. In all places too remote for the convenience of such a connexion as is above recommended, two kinds of Societies are desired; the one large and the other small; and the larger to embrace the smaller, as recommended in the following form of a Constitution. The larger Societies are intended for cities or counties, or a number of towns, to be immediately Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, and thus to become the medium of communication between the Parent Institution and the smaller Societies, which, for the sake of distinction, may, if thought best, be called Associations. And it is recommended, that in every town or parish, there be formed two such Associations, the one composed of males, the other of females.

Form of a Constitution for Auxiliary Societies.

ART. I.—This Society shall be known by the name of the Domestic Missionary Society of _____; and shall be auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

ART. II.—This Society shall be composed of such individuals as shall contribute annually to its funds, together with the members of the several Church and Congregational Associations for Home Missions within the limits of . *

ART. III.—The officers of the Society shall be a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, and a Secretary, to be chosen at the annual meeting. These officers, in connexion with at least one person elected from each of the several Associations of Gentlemen composing the Society, shall constitute a board of Directors, of whom not less than five shall be a quorum at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. IV.—It shall be the duty of the Board of Directors to meet at the call of the President, as often as shall be necessary for the transaction of business; to fill their own vacancies; to adopt the most energetic measures in their power to accomplish the object of the Society; especially by distributing such publications as may be committed to them by the Parent Institution; by deputing some of their number to attend the annual meetings of the several associations; and in general, by using all suitable means to excite an interest in the cause of Home Missions.

ART. V.—The funds of the Society, after defraying incidental expenses, shall be paid over to the Treasurer of the Parent Society, with directions as to the section of country in which it shall be expended in Missionary labour, should the Board deem it important to give such directions.

ART. VI.—The Society shall meet as often as called by the Directors; and annually on the of March, when the officers shall be elected; the accounts of the Treasurer, properly audited, shall be presented; and the annual report of the Directors received; and when this Constitution may be amended by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

ART. VII.—A copy of the Constitution, authenticated by the

* In some cases the territory of a county may be found too large for one Auxiliary Society, and it may be expedient to form two in it, each embracing a smaller number of towns, in which meetings may be more easily convened.

Secretary, together with the names and the residences of the officers annually elected, and also a copy of each annual report, shall be transmitted to the Corresponding Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, as early as the first of April in each year.

Rules for the Government of Church, or Congregational Associations, or Societies for Home Missions.

1. This Association shall be called the [or Female] Missionary Association, or Society of Church, [or Congregation,] Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of .]

2. Every person who shall contribute annually to the funds, shall be a member.

3. The affairs of the Association shall be conducted by a first and second Director, [or Directress,] a Secretary, a Treasurer, and four Collectors, who shall be chosen annually, and together shall constitute a Committee.

4. It shall be the duty of the Committee to meet at least once in three months; to appoint assistant Collectors, and transact such other business as may come before them.

5. The first Director, [or Directress,] and in case of his [or her] absence, the second Director, [or Directress,] shall preside in all meetings of the Association, and shall have power to call special meetings at pleasure.

The Secretary shall keep the records, and manage the correspondence.

The Treasurer shall take charge of the money collected, and after deducting incidental expenses, shall pay the same to the American Home Missionary Society, [or to the Auxiliary Society of .]

It shall be the duty of the Collectors to solicit and receive contributions. For this purpose they shall make a suitable division of their labours, call upon the individuals within their respective limits, take the names of persons disposed to contribute, together with the sums which they will give for the year, and shall pay the amount of their collections to the Treasurer, previous to the next annual meeting of the Association.

6. The Association shall meet annually, on the second Monday in March of each year, when the Report shall be read, and the election of officers held; and when these rules may be altered by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

7. The Annual Report of this Association shall be transmitted by the Secretary, to the Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society [or to the Auxiliary Society of] immediately after the annual meeting of the Association.

SECOND ANNIVERSARY.

The American Home Missionary Society held its Second Annual Meeting in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Beekman Street, New York, on the evening of Wednesday, May 7, 1828. The Hon. Stephen Van Rensselaer L. L. D. President of the Society, took the Chair, and the Meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. Heman Humphrey D. D. President of Amherst College, Massachusetts.

The Rev. Absalom Peters, Corresponding Secretary of the Society, then read the Second Annual Report of the Committee with the exception of the detailed account of congregations aided and Missionaries employed; after which the following resolutions were adopted viz:—

1. On motion by Hon. Roger M. Sherman, of Connecticut, seconded by Rev. William S. Plumer, of North Carolina,

Resolved. That the report of the Executive Committee be approved, and adopted, and that it be published under their direction.

2. On motion by Rev. L. G. Bingham of Ohio, seconded by the Hon. Judge Woodworth of Albany, Resolved. That devout thanksgiving is due to the Great Head of the Church, for his signal blessing on the efforts of the society, both in the conversion of souls, and in the impulse which it has already given to the work of Home Missions in the United States.

3. On motion by Rev. Professor Dewey of Massachusetts, seconded by Joseph C. Hornblower Esq. of New Jersey.

Resolved. That this Society regard with approbation and lively interest, the design of the Executive Committee to publish a Monthly Periodical to be entitled "the Home Missionary and American Pastor's Journal."

4. On motion by the Rev. T. Pomeroy of Maine, seconded by the Rev. Mr. Williston of New York.

Resolved. That in the opinion of this society it is the duty of all men to do what they can for the conversion of the world, and that no step can be taken by Americans. more effectual towards the accomplishment of this grand result than to seek the conversion of the Millions of this free and happy country.

5. On motion by Rev. Beriah Green of Vermont, seconded by Rev J. F. Schermerhorn of New York:

Resolved. That it is not only important, but practicable, and ought to be the aim of this Society to know that churches are planted, and the preaching of the Gospel established, and perpetuated in every township in the nation.

In support of the foregoing resolutions, several of the gentlemen named, addressed the meeting.

A letter was then read from Peter Hawes, Esq. expressive of the pleasure with which he had hitherto served the Society as Treasurer, but resigning his office on account of its interference with other imperious duties. Whereupon,

On motion by the Rev. M. Bruen; seconded by Rev. Dr. Spring.

Resolved. That the thanks of the Society be presented to Mr. Hawes for his gratuitous services, as Treasurer of the United Domestic Missionary Society during the four years of its continuance, before it was merged in the National Institution, and for the increased responsibilities and labor, with which he has faithfully discharged the duties of the same office, two years, for the American Home Missionary Society.

The Society proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year, and unanimously made choice of the following, viz:

CONSTITUTION

OF THE

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 1. This Society shall be denominated "THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY."

ART. 2. The great object of this Society shall be to assist congregations that are unable to support the Gospel Ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute, within the United States.

ART. 3. The Officers of the Society shall be a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, a Corresponding Secretary, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors, who shall be annually appointed by the Society; and who, together with the Directors for life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. 4. The Officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of thirteen, (including the Treasurer, the Corresponding Secretary, and the Recording Secretary,) residing in the City of New-York and its vicinity; seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened. This Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society; shall appoint Missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labours; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing Missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the Institution may require ; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

ART. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds annually to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

ART. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society by contributing annually to its funds ; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for life ; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for life ; and any person, on the payment of a sum, which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for life. An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for life ; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute him a Director for life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Corresponding Secretary a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a Missionary, or Missionaries, to labour in such field as it may designate ; at least to the amount of its contributions ; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be, ex-officio, Directors ; and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of this Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the City of New-York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

ART. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution without a vote of two-thirds of the Members present, at an annual meeting, nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

SECOND REPORT.

THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY has enjoyed, from its beginning, the peculiar favor of a beneficent Providence. It came into being with no funded property, and issued its earliest pledges on the responsibility of the christian public. Its only resources were in the faith, hope, and charity of its friends, and all its measures have been sustained by the blessing of God on the free-will offerings of the benevolent. These have been multiplied in some happy proportion to the growing necessities of the Institution, and the Executive Committee in presenting their Second Annual Report, rejoice in being able to say, almost without any abatement, that whatsoever the Society hath done hath prospered.

In the first year of its existence, this Society extended aid to 196 congregations and missionary districts in the support of 169 ministers. Of these congregations and districts, 143 were on the books of the Society at the commencement of the second year, and of the ministers employed, 112 were still in commission, the terms of whose engagements have since been fulfilled. Of these 74 have been re-appointed, and are still in the service of the Society, together with 89, who have been received as missionaries and agents during the year, making the whole number of ministers employed since May 9, 1827, 201, and the number of congregations and missionary districts aided, 244.*

The following is a full list of the congregations and fields of labor, to which the names of the Society's missionaries and agents are annexed in alphabetical order, with the number of months for which each missionary has been appointed, and the proportion of aid granted in his support.

1. The Rev. Eli Adams, late of the Seminary at Andover, was appointed October 26, 1827, for the term of 12 months from the day of his arrival there, to labor in such place or places in South Carolina as should be designated by the S. C. Missionary Society; with an outfit of $50, and a pledge of support during the year. It being understood that the S. C. Missionary Society desired to obtain more missionaries than they had been able to procure, Mr. Adams was recommended to that Society, with liberty to enter its service, if desired, in which case his outfit was to be refunded to this Society. No report from him has yet been received.
2. The Presbyterian congregation of Syracuse, Onondaga Co. N. Y. received aid during the last year in the proportion of 2 months. Commission dated May 4, 1827, for 12 months. At the date of our last Report, the Church there, which was organized April 6, 1826, consisted of 45 members. Since that time, 10 have been reported as added. A Foreign Miss. Assoc. and a Female Benevolent Society have been formed, with the prospect of considerable efficiency, and that congregation, in connexion with the village of Salina, have supplied the township with 200 bibles. They have a flourishing Sunday School and Bible Class, and the monthly concert is regularly observed.

Rev. John W. Adams, Pastor.

* In this estimate the fields occupied by agents are embraced, and the congregations supplied in whole or part by the missionaries are numbered except in those stations which embrace more than 3 congregations, in which cases each station is denominated a missionary district, and counts but one in this enumeration.

3. The congregation of Milan, Huron Co. Ohio, received aid in the proportion of 1 1-2 months for six months from October 14, 1827. Commission renewed April 14, 1828, for 12 months, aid 3 months. Rev. Wm. M. Adams, Minister

- *4. Presbyterian congregations of Lawrenceburgh and Aurora, Dearborn Co. Indiana. The reports from these congregations have been interesting,—7 have been added to the church during the year. Our missionary there has been instrumental of forming 4 Sabbath Schools, with libraries, one of which has 100 scholars and 18 teachers, and all of which are flourishing. There is need of more ministers in the vicinity. Commission renewed for 12 months from January 8, 1828. Proportion of aid, 3 months. Rev. Lucius Alden, Minister.

5. Rev. Samuel R. Alexander, late of the Seminary at Princeton, was appointed Aug. 8. 1827, to labor 12 months within the bounds of the Muhlenburg Presbytery, Kentucky, in such place or places as should be designated by the Missionary Society of that Presbytery. Outfit, $100, and pledge of support during the year. Commenced labor as directed, December 1, 1827, in Russelville and Caneyfork, Logan county, Kentucky, where he has labored with apparent usefulness. He has recently obtained permission to change his location after the first of April, to labor in Indiana, under advice of the Missionary Society of that state.

6. The congregations of Lexington, Davidson county, and Hope-well, Randolph county, North Carolina. Commission for 12 months from January 1, 1828. Proportion of aid 4 months. This is a destitute region, and is regarded by the Committee as an interesting field of missionary labor.

Rev. Darius C. Allen, Minister.

7. The Presbyterian congregation of Hampden, Delaware county, N. Y. This congregation is in its infancy, and is making laudable efforts to erect a house of worship, and its prospects are in other respects encouraging. A Sabbath School has been established. Commission for 12 months from May 14, 1827. Aid, 3 months.

Rev. Samuel T. Babbitt, Minister.

* This mark denotes that the aid granted to each congregation, against which it is placed, is furnished by an individual in the city of New-York, and appropriated by request.

8. Rev. Rufus W. Bailey, having been twice journeying to the South and West, for his health, has been authorized by the Committee to act as agent for this Society. He has travelled through the states of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, and the Carolinas, and has communicated some valuable information on the wants and resources of those states. His collections have been small.

9. Presbyterian congregation of Montrose, Susquehanna Co. Penn. During the year preceding our last report 30 had been added to the church there, and since that time 10 have been reported as received as the fruits of a revival which commenced in the summer of 1826.—The Sabbath School consists of 100 scholars, the Bible Class of 25, and they have a Tract Society with a depository. Our Missionary there writes, under date of Oct. 1827 “The happy results of the revival are manifest in the christian department of all the young converts connected with the church.” Commission renewed May 1, 1827, for 12 months—proportion of aid 3 months, one quarter⁷ of which to be raised by the Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. Burr Baldwin, Pastor.

10. The Presbyterian congregation of York, Livingston Co. N. Y. have received continued aid. Commission renewed for 12 months from Dec. 20, 1827—proportion of aid 2 1-2 months, about one third of which to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. This congregation have a Sabbath School of 130 scholars, a Monthly Concert and Tract Society—12 have been reported as added to the church during the year.

Rev. Johnson[†]Baldwin, Pastor.

11. The united congregations of Hamburg and East Aurora, Erie Co. N. Y. have received continued aid. Commission renewed for 12 months, March 9, 1828—proportion of aid 3 months—a Bible Class and Sabbath School in each congregation, and prospects encouraging.

Rev. John T. Baldwin, Pastor.

12. The High-lands west of the Hudson river, Orange Co. N. Y.

[†]This mark designates the congregations which have been aided by funds derived from the “Western Agency,” and on recommendation of that board.

have received continued aid. Commission renewed for 12 months Nov. 7, 1827—proportion of aid 3 months. Two Sabbath schools have been formed in this district and the faithful and persevering labours of our Missionary have been blessed. Here is a large tract of country very destitute.

Rev. Hosea Ball, Missionary.

13. The Presbyterian congregations of Wooster and Apple Creek, Wayne Co. Ohio. Commission for 12 months ending Aug. 24, 1827 and has not been renewed—proportion of aid 1 1-2 months—Additions to the churches there since the last anniversary 20.

Rev. Thomas Barr, Pastor.

- †14. First and second Presbyterian congregations in Howard, Steuben Co. N. Y. These congregations have no meeting house, and the people being generally in debt for their lands are unable to build. Two Sabbath Schools in the town, and a Bible Class in each congregation. Commission for 12 months ending April 9, 1828—aid about 3 months, 1-5 of which raised by Auxiliary Societies there.

Rev. Lyman Barrétt, Minister.

15. Presbyterian congregation of Peru, Huron Co. Ohio, has received continued aid. Commission renewed Nov. 9, 1827—aid 4 months. A Bible Class has been established with success.

Rev. John Beach, Pastor.

16. Presbyterian congregation in Cairo, Green Co. N. Y. has been again aided. Commission for 12 months from May 14, 1827—aid months. This Congregation we learn is increasing and its prospects encouraging—it has a Sabbath School.

Rev. Daniel Beers, Pastor.

17. Rev. John L. Bellville, late of the Seminary at Princeton, N. J. was appointed March 10, 1828 to labour 12 months in the congregations of Miamisburg and Washington, Montgomery Co. Ohio. Proportion of aid about 3 months. Mr. B. commenced his journey to the field of his appointment in April.

- †18. Presbyterian Congregation of Rush, Monroe Co.—Appointment for 7 months from Sept. 1, 1827—aid about 3 months.

Rev. Abner Benedict, Minister.

19. Presbyterian congregation in Patterson, Putnam Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months dated May 28 1827—aid 3 months. Monthly concert has been regularly attended, and three sabbath schools have been established with about 120 scholars. The congregation is increasing in resources and its prospects are encouraging. Our Missionary there has preached occasionally in the Fishkill mountains where his labours have been apparently blessed to the conversion of some souls.

Rev. Epenetus P. Benedict, Minister.

20. Rev. Luther G. Bingham, of Marietta, Ohio, was appointed, in January, 1828, to act as agent for this Society in that state, to collect funds, and form auxiliary societies, as much time, during one year, as he should deem it expedient to be absent from the people of his charge. He has spent about one month in this service, during which time he and his associate, Rev. Augustus Pomeroy, (whose name will be found in its alphabetical place,) formed four County Home Missionary Societies auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. sixteen congregational associations, and raised a subscription of nearly $1800! [See letter in The Home Missionary, vol. 1, p. 8.]

21. Presbyterian congregation in Twinsburgh, Portage county, Ohio. Commission for 12 months, dated March 24, 1828. Aid, 3 months. No report has been received.

Rev. Samuel Bissell, Minister.

22. Presbyterian congregation in Farmington, Trumbull county, Ohio. Commission for 12 months, two-thirds of the time, from July 9, 1827. Proportion of aid, 2 months. Sabbath School and Bible Class flourishing; a Tract Society has been formed, and the monthly concert regularly observed. Prospects of the congregation encouraging.

Rev. Enoch Bouton, Minister.

23. Presbyterian congregation of Gorham, Ontario county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, dated March 13, 1828. Aid, 3 months, one-fourth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society to be formed there. No report has been received.

Rev. Moses B. Bradford, Minister.

24. Presbyterian congregation of Cleaveland, Cuyahoga county, Ohio, has received continued aid. Commission renewed for 12 months, from January 22, 1828. Aid, 3 months. General state of things encouraging. Only 3 reported as added to the church during the year. Cleaveland was visited with a severe sickness the last summer and fall, which has retarded temporarily the growth of the congregation. Monthly concert observed. Sabbath School of 100 scholars, and Bible Class flourishing. A Tract Society and a Home Missionary Association have been formed.

Rev. Stephen J. Bradstreet, Pastor.

25. Rev. Eleazar Brainard has been appointed for 12 months to labor in such place or places in the state of Ohio, as shall be designated by our agents there, on his arrival in that state. Commission dated March 14, 1828. Proportion of aid pledged for the year, 3 months. Mr. B. is expected soon to enter on this mission.

†26. Presbyterian congregation of Moscow, Livingston county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, dated July 28, 1827. Aid, 1 1-2 months. Prospects encouraging,—6 have been added to the church. Monthly concert observed. Sabbath School and two Bible Classes flourishing.

Rev. Amos P. Brown, Minister.

†27. The congregational society of Brutus, Cayuga county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending November 16, 1827. Proportion of aid, 2 months for the year. A division of the town having caused a separation of the congregation, our missionary left the field the last of May, 1827.

Rev. A. K. Buel, Minister.

28. Congregational church in Atwater, Portage county, Ohio. Commission for 12 months, dated November 12, 1827. Aid, 3 months.

Rev. William L. Buffett, Pastor.

†29. The congregations of Williamson and Marion, Wayne county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, dated July 27, 1827. Aid, 3 months. These congregations are making efforts to erect a house of worship in each town. They have several Sabbath Schools in a flourishing condition, and are doing something for Foreign Missions and the Bible Society. One only has been reported as added to the church by profession; but the last return from our missionary informs us of a revival in Marion—40 or 50 hopeful conversions, and the work was advancing.

Rev. Jacob Burank, bMinister.

30. Rev. George Bush, of Indianapolis, Indiana, being a member of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church at Philadelphia in May last, was induced to remain a few weeks in this part of the country as agent for the A. H. M. S. He spent from June 14th, to August 1st 1827, in this service, and visited a number of congregations in New-Hampshire and Massachusetts. Though his collections for the object were small, his appeals were those of an eye witness of the desolations of the west, and the Committee are happy in the assurance, that they have exerted a favorable influence wherever they were heard.
31. Rev. Calvin Butler from the Seminary at Andover, was appointed, Aug. 20, 1827 to labour in such place or places in the State of Indiana as should be designated by the Indiana Missionary Society, for the term of 12 months from his arrival there. Outfit $75, and support pledged during the year. He arrived in Indiana and commenced his missionary labors as directed Nov. 14, 1827. He is stationed at Princeton, Gibson Co. and preaches a part of time in Evansville, Vanderburg Co. 30 miles distant from P. He has entered upon his work with much apparent industry and zeal, and with encouraging prospects of success—has established the Monthly Concert, and Bible Classes in both places. His last return was under date of Feb. 18, 1828. Great need of more Missionaries in the vicinity.
32. The congregational society of Fort Covington, Franklin Co. N. Y. and the Presbyterian Congregation in Moira, St. Lawrence Co.—Commission to labor half the time in each place 12 months from Feb. 21 1827—aid in both places about 3 1-2 months. Six have been reported as added to the church in the former, and three in the latter place. They have a Sabbath School, and the Monthly Concert is observed.
- Rev. Joseph Butler, Minister.
33. The Presbyterian congregation of Newark, (Arcadia,) Wayne Co. N. Y. has received continued aid—Commission renewed for 12 months Nov. 14, 1827—aid 3 months, 1-4 to be raised by an Auxiliary Association there. This congregation with great enterprise and extraordinary sacrifices on the part of individuals have erected a commodious house of worship, and its prospects are now very encouraging. The labours of our Missionary there appear to have been greatly blessed. Not less than 20 hopeful conversions have taken place, and 14 have been added to the church, within the year. Sabbath School and Bible class flourishing, and $30 has been raised to procure a Sabbath School library.

Rev. Alfred E. Campbell, Pastor.

34. The Union congregational Society, Kennebunk, Maine.—Commission for 12 months, dated March 31, 1828—aid 2 months. No return has been yet received.

Rev. Daniel Campbell, Pastor.

Durfee of the Andover Seminary, was appointed Oct. 12, 1827, to labor in such place or places in the states of Illinois or Missouri, as should be designated by our Missionaries there, 12 months from his arrival. Outfit $100, and pledge of support during the year. Mr. D. is stationed in 2 congregations in Callaway Co. Mo. where he commenced his labours Nov. 16, 1826. His reports are interesting and encouraging; a Tract Society has been formed in that County.

56. The Rev. Elijah M. Eagleton has been re-appointed to labor in several destitute places in Knox Co. Tennessee. Commission for 12 months from Jan. 22, 1828,—aid 2 months. He has 2 Bible Classes, and his labours appear to have been useful, 20 have been added to the churches under his care.

†57. The Rev. Chauncey Eddy was appointed Nov. 26, 1827, to labor 6 weeks in destitute places in Yates Co. N. Y. Mission to be performed within 12 months.—aid 6 weeks:

†58. The Presbyterian congregation of Jamestown, Chataaugue Co. N. Y. Continued aid 1 1-2 months, commission renewed for 12 months from Nov. 14, 1827. Sabbath School and Bible Class established, and Monthly concert attended. Our Missionary there has preached a part of the time in Ashville, where his labours have been blessed; 12 or 15 hopeful conversions have been reported in that place.

Rev. Isaac Eddy, Minister.

59. The congregations of Kaskaskia, Illinois, and St. Genevieve, Mo. continue to enjoy the labors of our Missionary there; his reports are highly interesting, and prospects encouraging. He has a Bible Class and a Sabbath School in each congregation. This location is regarded by the Committee as highly important.—Commission renewed Jan. 1, 1828, for 12 months,—aid 4 months.

Rev. John M. Ellis, Minister.

60. The Rev. Thomas Espy, of the Princeton Seminary, was appointed April 1828, to labor in Burke Co. North Carolina, 12 months from his arrival there. Outfit $75, and pledge of support during the year. Mr. E. has liberty to enter the service of the Young Men's Missionary Society of Concord Presbytery, in which case his outfit is to be refunded, and his obligations to this society will cease.

61. The Rev. Jacob T. Field was commissioned May 28, 1827 for 3 months to labor in Mauch Chunk, Northampton Co. Pa.; that place being occupied, Mr. F. commenced labor in Smithfield, Stroudsburg and Dutotstown in the same Co. He relinquished his mission at the end of 2 months, 11 or 12 hopeful conversions having taken place under his ministry.

†62. The Presbyterian congregation of Fayette, Seneca Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from May, 25, 1827,—aid 1 1-2 months. 10 hopeful conversions have been reported, and 8 added to the church. Bible Class, Bible Society and Tract Society flourishing.

Rev. Henry Ford, Pastor.

†64. First Presbyterian congregation in Geneseo, Livingston Co. N. Y. Commission two-thirds of the time for 12 months from May 14, 1827. Aid three months. The labours of our Missionary there, appear to have been highly useful—a revival has been enjoyed under his ministry, and by our last returns 40 converts were re-reported; they have a Sabbath School and Tract Society and the Monthly concert is observed.

Rev. Horace Galpin, Minister.

†65. Presbyterian congregations of Port Bay and Rose, Wayne Co. N. Y. Commission for twelve months from April 9, 1827. aid 2 1-2 months: Sabbath School and Bible Class have been established, and the monthly concert is observed.

Rev. Nathan Gillet, Minister.

66. The congregations in the eastern part of Nassau and western part of New Lebanon, Columbia Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months from Feb. 11, 1828, aid 3 months.

Rev. Charles Goodrich, Minister.

67. Presbyterian congregation of Tabor, Iredell county, N. Carolina, has received continued aid; our missionary there to spend a part of the time, at discretion, in the neighboring destitute country. Commission renewed for 12 months, from May 15, 1827. Aid, about 3 months. Reports favorable.

Rev. Daniel Gould, Minister.

68. Presbyterian congregation in Allen-street, New-York. Commission for 12 months, ending August 21, 1827. Aid, 4 months, as reported last year; since which no further aid has been afforded by this Society, our missionary having left his charge at the close of his commission.

Rev. William Gray, Minister.

*69. Presbyterian congregation of Milford, Pike county, Pa. has received continued aid. Commission renewed Jan. 8, 1828,—two-thirds of the time for 12 months. Aid, 3 months, half to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there, and the remaining half pledged by an individual in New-York. The meeting house, which was in progress at the date of our last report, has been erected. They have a Sabbath School of more than a 100, and a Tract Society. Under date of Oct. 26, 1827, our missionary informs us, that the church had been increased to 170 members, 116 of whom had been added during the last year, and that 8 or 10 more were prepared to unite the first opportunity.

Rev. Thomas Grier, Pastor.

70. The congregational church in Somers, West Chester county, N. Y. has been aided as reported last year. Commission for 12 months, ending May 4, 1828. Aid, 2½ months—one-fourth raised by the Auxiliary Society there; has a Sabbath School, and six have been added to the church.

Rev. Griffith H. Griffith, Pastor.

71. Presbyterian congregations of De Kalb and Russell, St. Lawrence county, N. Y. as reported last year. Commission for 12 months, ending Sept. 8, 1827. Aid, 3 months. Eight have been reported as added to the church in De Kalb, and 6 in Russell,—2 Sabbath Schools in the former, and 1 in the latter place.

Rev. Lemuel Hall, Minister.

72. Presbyterian congregation in Gouverneur, St. Lawrence county, N. Y. has received continued aid. Commission for 12 months, from July 16, 1827. Aid, 3 months, one-fourth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. 14 have been added to the church. Bible Class and Sabbath School flourishing, and monthly concert attended. This is regarded as an important station—the country around it is very destitute.

Rev. Richard C. Hand, Pastor.

73. Rev. Solomon Hardy, from the Andover Seminary, was appointed, Oct. 12, 1827, to labor in such place or places in Illinois, as should be advised by our missionary there, for the term of 12 months from his arrival in that state. Outfit $100, and pledge of support during the year. Mr. H. commenced his missionary labors Nov. 19, 1827, and after spending about 4 months very usefully, in visiting and preaching in several counties, and in supplying the place of our missionary at Kaskaskia, during his absence on an exploring tour in the northern counties, became permanently stationed, March 13, 1828, at Shoal Creek, Bond county, where his labors appear to have been acceptable, and his prospects are encouraging.

74. The congregation of Cherry Springs, near Lexington, Kentucky. Commission for 12 months, ending Dec. 11, 1827. Aid pledged, 3 months. The Committee have received no intelligence from this mission since the last anniversary.

Rev. Joseph C. Harrison, Minister.

75. The congregation in De Ruyter, Madison county, N. Y. has received continued aid. Commission renewed for 6 months, half of the time, from May 4, 1827. Aid, 1 month. Spiritual prospects of the congregation unpromising.

76. The congregation of Bloomfield, Trumbull county, Ohio, as reported last year. Commission for 12 months, ending January 8, 1828. Aid, 3 months, one-fourth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. Monthly concert attended—Bible Class flourishing. Sabbath School had declined.

Rev. Edson Hart, Pastor.

77. The Presbyterian congregations of Chateaugay and Constable, Franklin county, N. Y. have received continued aid. Commission renewed, August 24, 1827, for 12 months. Aid, 3 months. Our missionary there has a Bible Class and Sabbath School—prospects encouraging.

Rev. Jacob Hart, Pastor.

†78. The congregational society of Great Falls, Somerworth, Strafford county, New-Hampshire: Commission for 12 months, dated Jan. 28, 1828. Aid, 3 months. This is a flourishing manufacturing village, and the labors of our missionary there appear to have been greatly blessed. The state of the congregation is highly interesting—a Sabbath School and Bible Class flourishing, and the monthly concert is attended.

Rev. Josiah T. Hawes, Pastor.

79. Presbyterian congregation in Union, Broome county, N. Y. has received continued aid. Commission renewed for 12 months, from June 17, 1827. Aid, $2\frac{1}{2}$ months, one-third to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. This congregation is increasing in strength,—between 20 and 30 hopeful conversions within the year—16 added to the church. They have a Sabbath School of 100, Bible Class, and Tract Society, and the monthly concert is observed.

Rev. Oliver Hill, Pastor.

80. The first Presbyterian congregation of Southwark, Philadelphia. Commission for 12 months, from Aug. 2, 1827. Aid, 8 months, to be paid by funds derived from the Auxiliary Societies of the 5th and the 1st Presbyterian churches, Philad. The congregation has more than doubled under the labors of our missionary there—3 Sabbath Schools, and a large and interesting Bible Class have been established; a Tract Society has been formed, and is efficient; the monthly concert observed; and efforts are making to promote the cause of temperance. There have been 18 or 20 hopeful conversions, and an unusual awakening exists at the present time—several have been added to the church.

Rev. Charles Hoover, Minister.

81. Rev. Elbridge G. Howe has been re-appointed as a missionary. Commission for 12 months, from May 1, 1817, aid, about 3 months, to labor in Paris, Edgar county, Illinois, and New Hope, Vermillion county, Indiana, half the time in each place. Mr. H. has labored with faithfulness as far as his health would permit, but has been much afflicted with sickness the last 8 months, and the Committee regret to learn, that on this account he will probably find it his duty to leave his interesting field of labor. He has had a Sabbath School and Bible Class.

- †82. Presbyterian congregation of Springport, Cayuga county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, from May 1, 1828. Aid, 3 months, one-fourth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there.

Rev. Lewis D. Howell, Minister.

- †83. The churches in Centreville and vicinity have received continued aid until January 22, 1828, since which our missionary there has been directed to confine his labors principally to Centreville. Commission renewed for 12 months, from January 22, 1828. Aid, 3 months.

Rev. Silas Hubbard, Minister.

84. The congregation of Worthington, Franklin county, Ohio. Commission for 12 months, from June 11, 1827. Aid, 4 months, one-fifth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. They have a Bible Class and Sabbath School, and 5 have been reported as added to the church. Prospects favorable.

Rev. Hiland Hulburt, Pastor.

- †85. Presbyterian congregation of Middlebury, Genesee county, N. Y. as reported last year. Commission for 12 months, ending Feb. 25, 1828. Aid, 1½ months.

Rev. Eli S. Hunter, Minister.

86. The Congregational Society in Clarendon, Rutland county, Vermont, have received continued aid. Commission for 6 months, from April 10, 1827. Aid, 1½ months. The labors of our missionary there were highly useful, and we understand it was with reluctance that his people yielded to his desire to leave them, for the purpose of serving this Society and the cause of Home Missions in a wider field.

Rev. Henry Hunter, Pastor.

87. The Rev. Henry Hunter was appointed Nov. 1, 1827, for the term of 12 months, to act as agent of this Society, within the bounds of the Massachusetts Missionary Society, to collect funds for the last named, as auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. He entered on this service as soon as practicable, and has pursued it as directed by the Executive Committee of that Society; excepting about six weeks, during which time, by their consent and that of the Committee of the Parent Society, he has labored with efficiency and very encouraging success within the bounds of the Hampshire Missionary Society in the same state. The amount of Mr. Hunter's collections for the Massachusetts Missionary Society has not yet been specifically reported to the Parent Institution, though we have been assured that his agency has been satisfactory to the Society, and that he has been favorably received by the churches of Massachusetts. We are happy to learn also, from the communications of our agent, that the cause of Home Missions is gradually rising in interest in that state.

†88. Presbyterian congregation in Allen, Alleghany county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, from Aug. 16, 1827, half the time. Aid, 1 month.

Rev. Moses Hunter, Minister.

†89. The congregations of Cuba, Friendship, and Haight, Alleghany county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, from Jan. 1, 1828. Aid, 3 months, one-third to each congregation. A church has been formed in Cuba of 10 members, and 11 have been added to the church in Haight, and a Bible class and Sabbath School have been reported. Prospects of usefulness encouraging.

Rev. Reuben Hurd, Minister.

†90. Presbyterian congregation of Stafford, Genesee county, N. Y. as reported last year. Commissions renewed for 12 months, from May 1, 1827. Aid, 2 1-2 months, one-third to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. Prospects of the congregation encouraging—Sabbath School increasing in interest. Only two additions to the church have been reported.

Rev. Milton Huxley, Pastor.

91. To the Presbyterian church in Indianapolis, Marion county, Indiana, the Committee appropriated $100, to aid them in the support of the following individuals, who were invited to supply the place of their Pastor, Rev. Mr. Bush, during his absence on an agency for the Society in the eastern states, viz.

Rev. David Merrill, Rev. Mr. M'Farland, and Rev. Wm. Lowry.

†92. The congregations of Sardinia, Erie county, and Freedom, Cataraugus county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, from May 10, 1827, one-fourth of the time in each place—aid, 1½ months—3 Sabbath Schools have been reported, and the monthly concert is observed.

Rev. Edmund Ingalls, Minister.

93. The congregational Society in Wilmington, Vermont. Commission for 12 months, from June 1, 1827. Aid stipulated, 3 months, one-fourth to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. A Sabbath School and Bible Class was reported, and monthly concert observed. 5 were added to the church during the first three months of this commission—at the close of which time our missionary left that station, on account of ill health.

Rev. Leonard Johnson, Minister.

†94. Second Presbyterian congregation, Genoa, Cayuga county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending Oct. 13, 1827—aid, 1 1-2 months. This congregation has been much strengthened—17 have been added to the church since our last report, as the fruits of a revival enjoyed there the preceding year. Sabbath Schools are reported in each common school district, and a church Bible Class, at which all the members are expected to attend.

Rev. Nathaniel E. Johnson, Pastor.

†95. The congregational Society in Barre, Orleans county, N. Y. has received continued aid. Commission for 12 months, ending Oct. 24, 1827—aid, 3 months. We understand a revival of religion has been enjoyed in this congregation, but the results have not been reported.

Rev. William Johnson, Minister.

96. Presbyterian congregation in Madison, Jefferson county, Ind. Commission for 12 months, from December 10, 1827—aid, 4 1-2 months. A Sabbath School and Bible Class, and a Bible and Tract Society have been reported, and monthly concert observed. Our missionary there is faithful and efficient in labors in his own congregation, and in seeking the prosperity of Zion in the destitute country around him; and the prospects of his people are encouraging.

Rev. James H. Johnston, Pastor.

†97. Presbyterian congregation of Byron, Genesee county, N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending October 4, 1827—aid, 1 1-2 months. A Sabbath School and Bible Class have been reported.

98. The Rev. Aratus Kent was appointed, April 4, 1828, with the concurrence of the New Hampshire Missionary Society, to labor as agent of this Society in New Hampshire, to collect funds for the State Society as auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. It is expected that Mr. K. will enter upon his agency the present month.

99. The Rev. Robert W. B. Kennedy was appointed, June 12, 1827, for 12 months, to labor in Uchee Valley and its vicinity, in Florida, as should be directed by the Presbytery of Alabama—aid, 6 months. Mr. K. has been laboring as directed, and with encouraging success, principally in four congregations, viz. Uchee Valley, W. Florida, and in Pike county, Greenville, Butler C. H. and Salem, Covington county, Alabama. Up to Oct. 15, 1827, the date of his last return, 46 had been added to the churches in these several places, and his ministry appeared to be greatly blessed.

†100. The Presbyterian congregation in Henrietta, Monroe county, N. Y. has received continued aid in the proportion of 3 months. Commission for 12 months, from Oct. 1, 1827. A Bible Class and Sabbath School are reported.

Rev. George P. King, Minister.

101. The churches in Warren and Orwell, Bradford county, Pa. have received continued aid, in the proportion of 3 months, one-fourth to be raised by the Auxiliary there. Commission for 12 months, ending March 17, 1828. A house of worship has recently been erected in Orwell, and that congregation has been so much strengthened as to have the prospect of sustaining the undivided labors of a Pastor. The monthly concert is observed, and two Sabbath Schools and a Bible Class are reported.

Rev. Salmon King, Minister.

102. The church in Ticonderoga, Essex county, N. Y. has received aid for one year, ending November 6, 1827. Proportion of aid, 3 months. As the results of the revival which was mentioned in the last report, 26 have been added to the church. The whole number of hopeful converts was between 40 and 50. The monthly concert for prayer has been observed. Sabbath Schools, with a library, and a Tract Society organized.

Rev. Ezra D. Kinne, Minister.

103. The Rev. William S. Lacy has been commissioned for 12 months, from Jan. 14, 1828, to labor in Dardenne and the vicinity. St. Charles county, Missouri. Proportion of aid, 3 months.

104. The church in Elyria, Lorain county, Ohio. Commission for 12 months, ending March 21, 1827. Aid, 3 months—one-sixth to be raised by an auxiliary there. A church Bible Class, and a Tract Association are reported.

Rev. Daniel W. Lathrop, Pastor.

105. The church in Lincklaen, (Catlin's settlement,) Chenango Co. N. Y. Commission for 12 months, ending June 27, 1827. Proportion of aid, 2 1-2 months—one-third to be paid by the auxiliary there.

Rev. E. T. Leavenworth, Pastor.

106. The congregation in Evans, Erie Co. N. Y. has received continued aid in the proportion of 3 months. Commission renewed for 12 months ending August 11, 1827. The Monthly Concert and 2 Sabbath Schools have been reported, and the state of the congregation is improving.

Rev. Samuel Leonard, Pastor.

107. The 12th and 13th townships in Constantia, Oswego Co. N. Y. have received continued aid in proportion of 2 1-2 months. Commission for 12 months from Aug. 24, 1827. The Monthly Concert, and 5 Sabbath Schools have been attended, 2 Tract Societies formed, and 9 reported as added to the church.

Rev. Clement Lewis, Minister.

108. Rev. James Hervey Logan has continued his missionary labors in several destitute places within the bounds of the Louisville Presbytery, Kentucky, and receives his support principally from the people and from funds received from the Auxiliary Missionary Society of that Presbytery. His labors have been well received and greatly blessed ; 13 have been reported as added to the churches under his ministry, and in several places within his circuit there are appearances of revivals.

109 The congregations of Greenburgh and White Plains, Westchester county, N. Y. Commission renewed for 12 months from May 1, 1827—Aid 3 months. These congregations having been much strengthened by the aid afforded them, are now resolved to maintain their minister without assistance. Bible classes and Sabbath Schools have been attended in both places, and 7 have been reported as added to the churches.

Rev. Chester Long Pastor.

101 Rev. William Lowry, late of the Seminary at Princeton was appointed July 9. 1827, to labor in such place or places in the state of Indiana, as should be designated by the Indiana Missionary Society, 12 months from the day of his arrival there. Outfit $40, and pledge of support during the year. He commenced his labors, Oct. 6, 1827, in the counties of Hamilton, Johnson, and Rush, Indiana, in all of which we are assured, the people became warmly attached to him, and several congregations had taken measures to procure his permanent settlement among them. His prospects of usefulness were in every respect encouraging. But the great Head of the church was pleased to call him suddenly away from this wide and interesting field of promise. Our highly esteemed Missionary was drowned on the 11th of February 1828, in attempting to cross a branch of the White-river, at a high stage of water.

Mr. Lowry was a man of great maturity of character for one of his age in the ministry. Industrious, persevering, and wholly devoted to his work, he was prepared to endure with cheerfulness the self-denials of a Missionary's life. The Committee as well as the churches to whom he had ministered in Indiana, had expected much from his growing influence in that State ; and we look with earnest solicitude for another, like-minded, who will naturally care for the state of the people who have been thus bereaved by his death, and who will enter into his labors.

It may not be improper to add here, that we have been favored with a published sermon of Mr. Lowry, preached at the funeral of the late Mrs. Bush of Indianapolis, a few weeks before his death. We have only room for a single extract, the sentiment of which is very strikingly applicable to the example of our departed friend, and deeply impresses our own minds with a sense of the loss to the cause of Home Missions incurred by his death.

“Brethren, the example of a faithful child of God generally shines the brightest, and comes with the most power to those who behold it when that life is finished—when it is seen that it has not been the excitement of a moment—when through life the same course of holy living has been pursued, and the hour of death has borne testimony to its sincerity. Insensible indeed must be that professor of religion, who can view such an example of a departed child of God, and have no desire, make no effort to imitate it.—And who can tell, but that the memory of many of the faithful children of God has been a greater blessing to his people than their life, and thereby those dispensations of the Lord’s providence, in removing his most faithful servants, which now appear so afflictive and discouraging to the church of Christ, may at last be found among her choicest mercies and greatest blessings.”

months. A flourishing Sabbath School was reported, and the prospects of our missionary were encouraging, until the failure of his health compelled him to suspend his labors there, at the end of about 9 months, Aug. 1, 1827.

Rev. Daniel Young, Minister.

From the foregoing details it appears, that of the 201 missionaries employed within the last year, 125 are settled as pastors, or are statedly engaged in single congregations; 43 divide their labors between two or three congregations; and 33, including agents, are allowed to exercise their ministry in a larger extent of country. Of the whole number, exclusive of agents, 113 have been employed in the state of New-York, 27 in Ohio, 9 in Pennsylvania, 9 in Indiana, 5 in Michigan, 5 in Missouri, 4 in Kentucky, 3 in Illinois, 3 in North Carolina, 2 in South Carolina, 2 in Tennessee, 2 in Virginia, 2 in New-Hampshire, 2 in Vermont, 1 in Maine, 1 in New-Jersey, 1 in Alabama, 1 in East Florida, and 1 in Lower Canada.

The amount of ministerial labor performed within the year, under commissions from this Society, has been 133 years, and, in most cases, this labor has been of a character which God has owned and blessed. In pursuance of their instructions, the missionaries, with very few exceptions, have been faithful and zealous in their preaching, in the visitation of families, and in conversation with individuals; in the institution and conducting of Sabbath Schools and Bible Classes; in the encouragement of social meetings for prayer and religious conference; in their observance of the monthly concert for prayer; in instructing their people, and inviting their co-operation in the great cause of Christian benevolence. Sabbath Schools* have been organized

* 206 Sabbath Schools have been reported, and 100 Bible Classes.

perhaps in every station, and in some with the most signal success, while Bible Class instruction has been pursued, in most of the congregations, with an influence equally benign and happy. These are regarded, both by the Committee and the missionaries, as among the most powerful auxiliaries to the successful prosecution of ministerial labor in all places, but especially in our new settlements, and in congregations where, from their recent organization or other causes, the importance of religion and of religious institutions is not generally known and felt. And it is delightful to witness that, in many of our congregations, who, without a minister, esteemed themselves unable to support one, there are now Sabbath School and Bible Class Societies, Tract Societies, Bible Societies, and Foreign and Home Missionary Associations, all receiving the little mites of their several contributors, while the people themselves are astonished at the apparent paradox, that, in the whole of this process, their resources for the support of their own minister, and for the education of their children, are increasing in proportion as their benevolence to others is expanded. Add to this, that no less than 39 of the congregations aided have been visited with the special blessing of God, in revivals of religion; that not less than 1300* souls have been made the hopeful subjects of renewing grace, and the direct and immediate effects of the operations of this Society in a single year, and that the second of its existence, are seen in a most interesting and animating light. If there ever was an enterprise in which Christians might walk by sight as well as faith, it is here exhibited in the visible and tangible results of the limited and partial efforts of the churches of our country, concentrated in the object of this Institution.

* It has been found, by a careful examination of the returns of the missionaries, that 1000 have been reported as added to the churches aided by this Society during the year. The hopeful conversions are doubtless more than the additions to the churches, but they have not been reported with sufficient accuracy to be stated with precision.

The occasion of the large proportion of Missionaries in the State of New-York, was explained, at length, in our last Annual Report, (page 43.) It need only be remarked here, that, of the 113 employed in this state during the last year, 69 have been aided wholly by funds derived from the Western Agency, and other Auxiliary Societies and individuals within the state, in compliance with the expressed wish of the donors; while the whole amount received from this state is $8,361 80 more than the amount appropriated towards the support of all its Missionaries.

In conducting the affairs of the Society, the Committee have been guided by the constitution, and have strictly adhered to the principles which characterized the proceedings of the previous year. They have endeavoured, in all their appropriations, to unite caution and economy, in expenditure, with a due regard to the encouragement and assistance needed by the congregations and destitute places to be aided; and have uniformly granted the least sum which appeared sufficient to answer the purpose for which it was intended. They have yielded a prompt attention to the numerous calls of the destitute, and have supplied them as far as men could be found of suitable qualifications to be employed. They have exceeded, in their pledges, the income of the Society. This they have done deliberately, and under a deep sense of their responsibility to the christian public. They have trusted in God that all these pledges would be redeemed by the churches, and have never yet refused an application that was, in all respects, satisfactory; while they have not ceased, in their endeavours to extend the influence of the Society to those destitute portions of the country, which had not before shared in its benefits.

The Committee have also very much enlarged their correspondence with other Domestic Missionary Societies, for the purpose of inviting their more direct co-operation with the National Institution. This effort has been attended with the blessing of the Great Head of the Church. Eighty-five Societies and Associations have been recognized as Auxiliary since the last Anniversary. Among these are the "Massachusetts Missionary Society," the "New Hampshire Missionary Society," the "Vermont Domestic Missionary Society," the "Hampshire Missionary Society," (Mass.) the "Missionary Society of the Presbytery of South Alabama," and several County Societies recently formed in Ohio and other states. All of these, excepting the Mass. Missionary Society, have adopted, as the basis of their connection with the Parent Institution, the provisions of the Eighth Article of its constitution, in accordance with which, by paying the whole of their annual income to the Parent Society, they are entitled to control and dictate the appropriation of the same, within their own limits, under certain conditions specially stipulated by the Executive Committee, in conformity with the spirit of the above-named article. (See terms of stipulation in the Appendix.)

dient adopted by the Committee, to avoid the expense of conducting a publication exclusively devoted to the interests of the Society, and answered well the purposes for which it was originally intended. At length, however, it became apparent that the enlarged operations of the Institution, and the increasing importance of the cause of Home Missions, demanded the publication of a new periodical, in the name of the Society, which might be more extensively circulated, and be received as the authentic vehicle of its communications. Accordingly, on the 5th of Feb. last, having been encouraged by the liberal offer of $500 from one of the Vice-Presidents* of the Society, to aid in sustaining such a publication, the first year; the Committee resolved to commence a Monthly Periodical, to be edited by the Corresponding Secretary, and to be denominated "THE HOME MISSIONARY, AND AMERICAN PASTOR'S JOURNAL." The first number of this work was issued on the 1st of May, inst. and is now before the public. The Committee confidently believe it will be worthy of extensive patronage, and its circulation in every part of the United States is deemed of indispensable importance to the successful prosecution of the object of the Society; and it is hoped, that, at no distant day, it may be a source of revenue to the cause.

The amount in the Treasury at the beginning of the year was $6,047 04, and the Committee were then under engagements in more than the sum of $10,000. The amount received during the year from May 9, 1827, to May 1, 1828, as appears from the Treasurer's Report, is $20,035 78, which added to the above $6,047 04, makes an aggregate of $26,082 82. Of this sum

* Rev. Dr. Codman, of Dorchester, Mass.

$17,849 22 have been expended, leaving a balance now in the Treasury of $8,233 60. This balance, however, is nearly twice pledged by the engagements of the Committee, in more than the sum of $13,000, to congregations, missionaries, and agents, now on the books of the Society, leaving a balance of engagements, above the present means of the Committee to discharge, of more than $4,766 40; and applications for aid are increasing both in number and in urgency. Let it be remarked also, that the month of April is the season in which Auxiliary Societies usually make their annual returns; that the Treasury is far better replenished at this season than at any other; that, though the last year was commenced with a balance on hand, nearly equal to the present, the means of the Society were exhausted in a few months; that for a number of weeks in the autumn there were less than $100 at any time in the Treasury, and it is manifest, that while the Society appears to stand, in the possession of ample means to answer all present demands upon its Committee, its friends have urgent occasion to take heed lest it fall.

The Boston Society for Home Missions, whose remittances, as stated in our last Annual Report, were nearly $1000, has since become auxiliary to the Massachusetts Missionary Society, and as no official return has yet been received of the income of the last named Society, the Committee are unable to report the amount it may have designed to appropriate to the use of the Parent Institution.

The Young Men's Missionary Society of the city of New-York, which has heretofore been one of the most active and efficient auxiliaries of the Parent Society, has continued its operations but a part of the year, and has contributed less than in the year preceding. Its Directors found their measures, as a separate Board, embarrassed in this city by the plan of the Parent Society of organizing Associations in the several congregations, and after consultation with the Executive Committee, deemed it expedient that the society should be dissolved, for the purpose of giving the efficient and increasing influence of its members to the Associations in the congregations to which they belonged. To this measure the Committee yielded their cordial assent, because, though it blots from the list of auxiliary Societies a name which was dear to them, they are confident that, under the present arrangement, the energy and enterprise of the late members of that Society will act with more effect upon the general cause which they have learned, in their youth, to love and to cherish.

The Monroe County Home Missionary Society, whose remittances as reported last year, were $400, has since dissolved its direct connection with the Parent Institution and has been merged in the "Western Agency," through which its contributions have been greatly increased.

The Committee are unwilling to pass from this topic of their report without calling the attention of the Society to the signal and surprising blessing of God upon the measures of the Agency above named.

The field of its operations is all that portion of the State of New York which lies West of the Counties of Onondaga and Courtland, embracing seventeen counties, and a population of about 500,000. From this field, the settlement of which, as the Agency inform us in their report, was commenced but about thirty years since, they have collected the means of sustaining all the appointments of this Committee within its limits, have aided 71 congregations in the support of 59 ministers, have paid the salary of the Society's Agent, who is also Secretary of the Agency, and have furnished, in addition, $670, 27 to the Treasury of the Society.—[See Report of Agency in the Appendix.]

From the preceding statements it appears that the receipts of the Society, the last year have been $1,895,02, and its expenditures $3,865, 05 more than in the previous year. The number of congregations and missionary districts aided, has increased 49, and the number of Missionaries and Agents employed in the second year of the Society has been 32 more than those of the first; and the engagements of the Committee are, at this time.

$3,000 more than they were under at the beginning of the year.

These facts exhibit an encouraging advance in the operations of the society ; and the manner in which it has thus far been sustained and prospered may be regarded as a pledge of the continued favor of the christian public and the blessing of God. But the details of the separate action of this Society present but a partial view of its influence on the cause of Home Missions in the United States. The facts alone that this national Institution has in two years, employed 259 different Missionaries in the performance of 243 years of ministerial labor, in 297 congregations and destitute townships and counties, and rendered essential aid in their support, while they have preached the gospel statedly to not less than 200,000 souls, and been instrumental in the conversion of more than 2,300, are in themselves important, and call for gratitude and praise. But these facts are only an item in the account of good which the Society has already effected. Though laboring under all the embarrassments of an infant Institution, it has embodied and laid before the community at large much information on the subject of the spiritual wants of our country, and has done much towards awakening a national sympathy in its object. This is a sort of influence, it is true, which it is impossible to trace with perfect accuracy ; but the Committee have reason to believe that it has been by no means inconsiderable in exciting to renewed and more vigorous action several Societies before existing, while a number of Auxiliary Societies and Associations of great efficiency in different parts of the country owe their being to the influence of the national Institution. In this way, much doubtless has been saved to the cause, and an interest and a zeal have been produced which, it is believed, no obstacles can hereafter discourage. The churches, and our citizens generally, are beginning to be convinced by this extended effort, and the blessing which has attended it, that the design of supplying all the destitute in this nation with the preaching of the gospel is practicable. The friends of Home Missions are thus possessed of new courage, and God is raising up new friends every month, who will no sooner forget the cause of this Society than they will forget to pray for the peace of Jerusalem.

The direct co-operation of the churches with this Institution hitherto has perhaps not been sufficient to justify entirely all of the preceding remarks. It ought however, to be considered that an organization sufficiently extended to complete the design of such a Society requires many years to reach its perfection. There is a salutary caution in the christian community, which delays its assent to new measures for the accomplishment of the best of objects until they are proved ; and especially, as in the present instance, when local Societies were already occupying with success many portions of the field to be covered by the new Institution it was not to be expected that they would, at once yield their entire confidence to its untried measures. Hence it is that several State Domestic Missionary Societies remain yet unconnected with the national Institution, though many of the patrons and conductors of each have expressed their warm approbation of the plan of this Society, and it is believed that the time is not far distant when most of them will be numbered among its Auxiliaries.

But this extended preparation for future and continued efforts in the great work to be done by the American churches, is, by no means, the most important point already gained in the general influence of the national Society. It has also invited and sustained an enlarged correspondence with the destitute portions of our country, and has thus opened and rendered accessible, a wide and most important field for the future bestowment of its benefits. It has been the organ of a discovery in this respect surprizing as it is important. It has elicited the fact formerly but partially known, that there are, in the West and South, large sections of country, embracing numbers of contiguous counties, and, in some instances, whole states and territories, and tens of thousands of inhabitants almost entirely destitute of the administration of gospel ordinances; while, in the middle, and even in the northern states there are not wanting similar examples, though less extensive, of the existence of a famine of the hearing of the word of the Lord.

It has been found also that, in most of these fields of desolation, there is a readiness to receive and treat with respectful attention the faithful ministers of Christ; and in many of them, there is an earnest and anxious waiting for the blessings of salvation. Many hundreds of destitute villages, townships and settlements need only be encouraged to believe that such blessings are possible, and a portion of their inhabitants are ready to exert themselves to the extent of their ability to obtain them. And why are they not possible?—Not because our countrymen are poor and unable to furnish the pecuniary means; nor is it because there is an insurmountable unwillingness in the community to contribute of its abundance for this object. The experience of another year, with its increased claims upon the benevolence of the public, has confirmed the committee in their confidence, that in respect to pecuniary means they have only to show that there is need, and there is a readiness in the christian community to come up to the help of this Society. Its appeal is to parents on behalf of their children, to brothers and sisters, on behalf of the companions of their youth, to patriots on behalf of their country, and to christians on behalf of sinners, who die because there is no vision. It is an appeal which never has been, and we trust, never will be resisted by the friends of this Institution. But we have been compelled, in numerous instances, to turn away from the cry of the needy, because we had no one to go for us. There was no hesitation felt as to the practicability of obtaining the means to sustain the enterprize, and the field was white already unto the harvest, but there was no laborer to enter in and gather it; and we cannot make ministers:—we can make tracts, and multiply Bibles, to the extent of the means which the community may entrust to our disposal; but the Lord of Hosts by his spirit, and he only, can make christians and christian ministers. “Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest.” It is on this account, principally, that the Society fails to effect all that it desires to accomplish for the destitute in the United States. In the single State of Ohio, 100 ministers might be employed in the next 12 months, and as many more in the States and Territories West and South of it, and as many more in the Middle, and as many more in the Northern and Eastern States; and the Committee do not hesitate to believe that the operations of this Society might be increased fourfold, in a single year, if a sufficient number of suitable men could be found to enter its service. These facts have been told.—They are known and read of in the churches, and while the christian public is regarding them with an interest new and increasing, it is delightful to witness among the young men in our Theological Seminaries, a deepening sense of their obligations, and a growing desire to give themselves to the service of the preaching the gospel to the poor.

Here then is an unseen influence of this Society in aid of the great object for which it was formed, superior perhaps in importance to any other which it has hitherto exerted. It has brought those who have need into a more intimate acquaintance with such as have the heart and the ability to relieve them, and has opened a channel, through which the former may pour their complaints and petitions into the bosom of the latter ; while it has furnished a medium for the transmission of every healthful and saving influence from the churches of the older states to their sister communities in the West and South.

On the whole, the Committee have great occasion to congratulate the friends of this Society, and to adore the goodness of God, in view both of the benefits it has already conferred on the destitute and perishing, and of the bright and cheering aspect with which it looks onward to the accomplishment of still greater and more glorious results. And here we take pleasure in adverting to the admirable adaptation of the plan of this Society, to reach the perfection of all that was hoped by its founders. While it regards with special interest the destitute condition of our frontier settlements, it does not forget that there are many waste places in the older states ; and by the terms on which it invites the co-operation of local Societies, it strengthens and stimu-lates each of its auxiliaries in supplying the destitute within its own state, county, or territorial limits. Thus the work of the National Society is completed as it advances, and while it sends a voice before to cry in the wilderness, saying, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, it is strengthening the religious community to move forward; and every new auxiliary, by building first its own desolations, is preparing to become an efficient helper in the general cause. In this way, as the field enlarges, they are multiplied, who are ready to go in and possess it; and soon, it may be expected, they who dwell on the Alleghanies, and the increasing millions of the valley of the Mississippi, strengthened by the charities of those who are now going to their help, will join their voices with ours in proclaiming the words of eternal life to the inhabitants of the Rocky Mountains and the valleys beyond. Another generation will scarcely have passed away before all this, in the progress of the plan of this Society, may be realized, and a stone may be set up on the shore of the western ocean, and our children's children that dwell there, may write upon it, EBENEZER, and read the interpretation thereof, in their mother tongue, "HITHERTO THE LORD HATH HELPED US."

But it is well to be reminded, that before all this shall have been accomplished, we who are now permitted to put our hands to this sublime and glorious enterprise, shall have ceased from under heaven. Since our last anniversary, two of the Vice-Presidents and one of the Directors of this Society, the Hon. William Phillips, the Rev. Samuel Blatchford, D. D. and the Rev. Edward Payson, D. D. have been called to their final account. They all shed a sweet influence on the cause of Christian charity in the world, and all died in faith. The word that they sent back to us from the land of Beulah,* and from the borders of eternity, as they went to their rest in the heavens, may be expressed in a single sentence,—Brethren, live for eternity, and work while the day lasts.

* A letter from the Rev. Dr. Payson to his sister, dated a few weeks before his death, which has been extensively published, is introduced with the following remarks: "Were I to adopt the figurative language of Bunyan, I might date this letter from the land of Beulah, of which I have been for several weeks a happy inhabitant. The celestial city is full in my view. Its glories beam upon me; its breezes fan me; its odors are wafted to me; its sounds strike upon my ears, and its spirit is breathed into my heart."

APPENDIX.

WESTERN AGENCY.

The Board, formerly denominated the GENEVA AGENCY, was re-appointed by the Executive Committee, August 23, 1827, under the title of the WESTERN AGENCY OF THE A. H. M. S. FOR THE STATE OF NEW YORK. It acts as a Board of inquiry and reference, for the district comprising the seventeen western counties of the state, and is composed of the following individuals :

Rev. HENRY AXTELL, D. D. Geneva, Chairman.

Rev. HENRY DWIGHT, Geneva, Treasurer.

Rev. MILES P. SQUIER, Geneva, Secretary.

Mr. ABRAHAM B. HALL, Geneva.

Rev. JAMES RICHARDS, D. D. Auburn.

Rev. DIRCK C. LANSING, D. D. Auburn.

Rev. HENRY P. STRONG, Phelps.

Rev. ANSEL D. EDDY, Canandaigua.

The following is extracted from the report of the Agency.

REPORT.

The settlement of the region assigned to this Board, embracing that part of the state of New York which lies west of the counties of Cortland and Onondaga, and extending over seventeen counties, was commenced a little more than thirty years since. The population now is not far from 500,000. Twenty years since, but one Presbytery existed on this field : now, there are eight Presbyteries and one Consociation, in the denominations associated in the labours and ministrations of the A. H. M. S., having 134 ministers, as pastors or stated preachers of the gospel, and 202 organized churches and congregations.

Of these ministers fifty-nine are this year missionaries of the A. H. M. S., who labor steadily in word and doctrine, in 71 of these congregations, supplying forty of them, the whole, and the remainder steadily, one half, or a less portion of the time.

The following is a list of the names and locations of the missionaries within the bounds of this Agency, with the amount of aid granted to each, and the date and period of his appointment.

[The names in this list will be found in their alphabetical places, in the catalogue of Missionaries appointed by the Executive Committee, and are there designated by an appropriate mark. See page 21. and onward of the Report.]

The aggregate expense of these missionaries to our funds, for the year, including the compensation of the Agent of the A. H. M. S. (who is also the Secretary of this Board,) together with the incidental expenses of the Agency, such as postage and stationary is $5000. Our receipts for the same period, have been $5670 27; leaving a balance in favor of the general Treasury of $670 27.

The sources from which funds have been derived, are, organized auxiliary associations, collections in churches on thanksgiving day, and on the sabbath, benevolent societies not auxiliary, the monthly concert for prayer, and individual donations.

Thirty five auxiliary associations have been formed the past year, making in all, sixty-nine. Associations are now formed in most of the principal congregations within the limits of the Agency, and are a prompt and efficient source of income.

In November last, a circular was issued to the congregations within the district allotted us, soliciting a collection in behalf of the Home Missionary cause, on the day of thanksgiving appointed by the Governor of the state; and we are happy to record the fact, that, upwards of $600 were on that day contributed by them to our Treasury. In the more central and wealthy congregations, individual subscriptions have been made; and in this way about $2500 have been received. The remainder of the sum now reported, has been derived from benevolent associations not auxiliary, from collections on the sabbath, and at the monthly concert for prayer.

The subject of Home Missions continues to be viewed with an evidently increasing interest in this section of the church. There are those in our congregations, who, both by their language and their deeds, authorize us to "expect great things, and to attempt them," in that work of love, on which we have entered. To this accession of interest, the judicious arrangement of the Executive Committee in diffusing Home Missionary information, has contributed. It has grown, too, out of the increasing intelligence and piety of the community; out of the new movements in behalf of benevolent institutions generally, and especially from the manifest success of the missionary work in this region, and the recognition of it by the great Head of the church, as his own cause, by the sealing operations of his Spirit.

In respect to the success which God has given us in the descent of the Spirit upon the field immediately under our eye, the past year, we feel bound to speak with confidence and gratitude. It has been with us, in many respects, a year of the right hand of the LORD. Twenty five new stations have been occupied, where congregations are now gathered, and are stately supplied with the ministry of the word through the instrumentality of the Society. Fourteen houses of worship have been erected, or are in progress, to be completed the ensuing season: and the gracious visits of the Most High in the outpourings of his Spirit, have been granted to about one-eighth part of all the stations under the care of this Board. The congregations of Sodus and Marion, in Wayne county, of Lakeville, (first church in Geneseo,) Livingston county, of East Genoa, in Cayuga county, and of Parma and Greece, in Monroe county, have shared the most largely in the effusions of the Holy Spirit. About fifty in each of these congregations, have, in the judgment of your missionaries, passed from death unto life ; and the most of them, by the last reports, had connected themselves by the public profession of piety, with the people of God. In Port Bay, Wayne county, about thirty-five have gained the hope of pardon and acceptance with Christ, twenty of whom have confessed his name on the second sabbath of the present month. The revival at this station still continues, as it does at some of those above mentioned. Twenty-two have been added to the church in Eden, Erie county. The congregation of Ashville, Chataque county, on the borders of our missionary station at Jamestown, has been blessed with the descent of the Spirit, and strengthened by the addition of a considerable number to the standard of the Lord at that feeble outpost of Zion. A period of refreshing was granted, the winter past, to the congregation of Spencer, Tioga county, and to that of Niagara Falls, and has much strengthened the hands and encouraged the hearts of God's people in those places. The Spirit is now breathing upon the weary valley of the Chemung, and refreshing to some extent, the missionary congregations of Big Flat and Painted Post, on the borders of the counties of Tioga and Steuben. Considerable additions have been made to the churches at various other stations ; and at all, with few exceptions, the congregations have increased in numbers and in strength, and have been confirmed in "the faith once delivered to the saints."

From many facts of a similar nature, as illustrating the success of the Home Missionary effort, and to encourage its friends in its prosecution, the following may be selected: A congregation at the commencement of the year applied, after much effort among themselves, for fifty dollars, it being indispensable to the needful salary for the minister of their choice. They have since reported an addition of forty-seven members to their church, the contribution of fifty dollars to benevolent institutions, besides twelve dollars to this Board, and an ability and determination to sustain the worship of the sanctuary, without missionary aid. Another, when the year commenced, could raise only two hundred dollars ; but being assisted in their extremity, have since reported an addition of forty-seven members to their church, and the bestowment on benevolent objects of a larger amount than was given them by the Missionary Board. They now subscribe upwards of one hundred dollars more for the support of the gospel among themselves, than last year. A new station, which enjoys the labors of one of our missionaries half of the time, sent us sixteen dollars as the result of a collection on Thanksgiving day. Two other stations under the pastoral labors of one missionary, and who were aided in the sum of seventy-five dollars, have organized auxiliary associations, and sent to our treasury the sum of thirty-one dollars. Two other congregations to which fifty dollars each were pledged at the beginning of the year, have since contributed to our funds, the one thirty-eight dollars and seventy-nine cents, and the other twenty-six dollars and forty-five cents. Others have shown a measure of grateful liberality which deserves commendation. Many facts, the language of which we cannot mistake, have wrought in us the conviction, that the presence and patronage of a Missionary Board, acting as an office of Intelligence, and a Board of Counsel and General Correspondence with the destitute and feeble Congregations on the subject of planting and sustaining gospel institutions among them, with a measure of temporary relief, viewed in:

the light of an advance of means for the present necessity; describe much of the nature and measure to a large extent, the usefulness of the Home Missionary effort within this Agency. More than four hundred and seventy dollars have been contributed this year to our funds from the stations occupied by our Missionaries; while those Congregations which have heretofore been built up through the patronage of the Society, are among its most devoted and efficient Auxiliaries. This, we are persuaded, will continue to be the fact. Congregations thus reared are like the beneficiaries among our candidates for the ministry. The law of benevolence first originated their existence and sustained their infancy. Their own history gives them additional ties of relationship and sympathy with the great body of Christians. They feel under peculiar obligations to the law of Christ, "Bear ye one another's burdens," and lie under the commanding influence of many motives, not only to discharge the debt they owe, but as ability increases, to move with alacrity forward in every benevolent enterprise for the advancement of the empire of truth and mercy in this apostate world.

Many of the stations now occupied are yet feeble, and will require a continuance of aid. More than fifty organized Churches and Congregations are still destitute of the preached gospel: and there is also a considerable amount of territory which lies, spiritually, a waste and desolate heritage. Like the mountains of Gilboa, there is on it "neither dew nor rain, nor fields of offerings." It is "like the heath in the desert that seeth not when good cometh." The county of Cataragus enjoys the labors of but one Presbyterian minister, (so far as is known to this Board,) and he is a Missionary. In Niagara County we have but two Missionaries, while the exigencies of the feeble Churches in that region imperiously demand more. Moreover, as the country becomes older, and the population more dense, Congregations naturally lessen in geographical extent, and new ones rise up on their borders.

Vacancies are now more numerous than they would have been if a sufficient supply of Missionaries could have been found to enter into the work. But for the dearth of labours to enter into fields already white unto the harvest, (and we deem it our duty to advert with emphasis to this fact,) many of the affecting appeals for men as well as means, which have lain upon our table from six to nine months, if not the whole year, would long since have been answered. Many stations, already visited by the Agent, and where every pre-requisite arrangement for the reception of the local Missionary is made, and where, in some instances, he could be supported with small expense to our funds, have waited and languished (and rather impatiently too,) throughout the year, because no one could be found by whom to send them the bread of life. The too straitened supply of well qualified Missionaries has been a constant embarrassment to us during the year. But for this, more means could have been raised, more fields occupied, and more of the harvest gathered. Our observation and sympathy extend equally over the wants of the whole field allotted to us; and we should like to send out men on the apostolic errand of organizing the entire waste places: but as yet we have not laborers for Congregations where more good can be done at less expense; and we are aware that the labors of a Missionary may be so widely spread out in extent, as to lessen the actual and permanent amount of his usefulness.

To the occupying of the whole field of our feeble and destitute churches we shall gladly hasten as fast as men and means are provided.

In concluding our report, we ought perhaps to advert to the satisfaction which the friends of Home Missions, within the Agency, express with the method adopted for conducting the work in this region by means of a Board emanating directly from the National Society. They prefer this form of organization, as it brings our Congregational Associations into immediate connection with the Parent Institution, and gives them a claim to its official publications and intelligence ;—as it embodies the entire Missionary business of this region in the Annual Reports of the Parent Society, as a part of its own ; and while it secures a sufficient local interest, associates the sympathies and efforts of the benevolent among us more fully with the entire field of want and labor which lies before the American Churches, and gives them a livelier interest in the whole range of the Society's operations.

Within this Agency we feel bound to believe that strength is coming in the place of weakness. Our receipts this year are more than twofold what they were last. What shall be the amount of the offerings of our Congregations the year to come, is yet to be ascertained. That they have cheerfully and liberally met the calls of Providence in this good work during the year now ending, we have the happiness to know and feel. And though there remaineth yet much land to be possessed within our border ; we are instructed by past experience to anticipate the period as not far distant when our congregations shall go out with those in the older country, and with a more full and undivided charity in behalf of the extended desolations of the South and West, and help to deepen and widen the channels of beneficence opening for their relief, until the darkness shall be past, and the true light shine on all the land, and "the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth."

By order of the Board,

MILES P. SQUIER,

Cor. Sec. of the Western Agency, for the A.H.M.S. in the State of New York.

TERMS OF CONNECTION AND STIPULATION,

Between the American Home Missionary Society and its Auxiliaries, recommended by the Executive Committee.

In the "Address of the Executive Committee of the A. H. M. S. to the Christian public," issued in June, 1826, and republished in the First Report of the Society, (page 58,) the correspondence and co-operation of all existing Domestic Missionary Societies, in our country, was respectfully solicited, and the formation of new Societies, for this purpose, recommended. A large number of Societies have already become Auxiliary as may be seen by the list embraced in this Appendix.

In the formation of these numerous branches of the National institution, it has been a subject of no little difficulty to determine upon a plan of co-operation suited to the condition of existing Societies in all parts of the United States, and equally adapted to promote the interests of the parent Society, and each of its auxiliaries. The Executive Committee have accordingly waited for the results of experience, that they might permanently pursue the best method to secure these objects. They are now prepared to recommend with confidence, the following as a plan altogether practicable, and equally suited, as it is designed, to promote the efficiency and harmony of the Missionary work in the several states and religious denominations represented in the National Society, viz :

PLAN OF LARGER SOCIETIES.

In those parts of the country where efficient organizations in aid of Home Missions do not already exist, the formation of two kinds of Societies Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. is desired: the one large and the other small, and the former to embrace the latter. Each larger Society may be formed to embrace the limits of a County, a City, a State, a Presbytery, or a Synod, as shall be judged most conducive to its activity and efficiency. The objects of all such Societies should be to raise funds to furnish, first, all needed aid to the destitute within their own limits, and secondly, to aid the parent Society in extending the Gospel to communities still more needy. To accomplish these objects most effectually, it is important that each Society be so small in extent of territory that its Committee or Executive Board may have a competent knowledge of the claims of the destitute within its limits, while it should be sufficiently large to furnish a field for the operations of an Agent, for the collection of funds, the formation of subsidiary organizations, and to act as its organ of communication with the parent Society. For this last purpose, it is judged expedient that, in all cases, where the auxiliary Society is sufficiently large to employ a permanent Agent, he be also its Corresponding Secretary.

FORM OF CONSTITUTION.

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

ART. I.—This Society shall be known by the name of the Domestic Missionary Society of _____ : and shall be auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

ART. II.—This Society shall be composed of such individuals as shall contribute annually to its funds, together with the members of the several Church and Congregational Associations for Home Missions within the limits of this Society.

ART. III.—The officers of the Society shall be a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, and a Secretary, to be chosen at the annual meeting. These officers, in connexion with at least one person elected from each of the several Associations of Gentlemen composing the Society, shall constitute a board of Directors, of whom not less than five shall be a quorum at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. IV.—It shall be the duty of the Board of Directors to meet at the call of the President, as often as shall be necessary for the transaction of business; to fill their own vacancies; to appoint an Executive Committee; to adopt the most energetic measures in their power to accomplish the object of the Society; especially by distributing such publications as may be committed to them by the Parent Institution; and by deputing some of their number to attend the Annual Meetings of the several associations; and in general, by using all suitable means to excite an interest in the cause of Home Missions.

ART. V.—The annual receipts of the Society, after defraying incidental expenses, shall be paid over to the Treasurer of the parent Society, with directions as to the section of country in which it shall be expended in Missionary labour, should the Board deem it important to give such directions. [See resolutions below.]

ART. VI.—The Society shall meet as often as called by the Directors; and annually on the _____ of March, when the officers shall be elected; the accounts of the Treasurer, properly audited, shall be presented; and the annual report of the Directors received; and when this Constitution may be amended by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

ART. VII.—A copy of the Constitution, authenticated by the Secretary, together with the names and the residences of the officers annually elected, and also a copy of each annual report, shall be transmitted to the Corresponding Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, as early as the first of April in each year.

STIPULATIONS.

For the purpose of producing uniformity in the operations of all Societies, Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. and the better to secure to each the control of its funds and appropriations, the following resolutions are recommended to their adoption; and the Executive Committee will engage, with every Auxiliary adopting them, to perform the stipulations which these resolutions require of the Parent Society; provided the proposed limits of Societies requesting to become Auxiliary, on this plan, be such as, in the opinion of this Committee, will facilitate the operations of the parent Society within the same; and provided these engagements having been formed with the Missionary Society of a State or a Synod, shall not be so construed as to debar this Committee from the liberty of co-operating, in the same manner, if desired, with any County, Presbyterial, or other Society within its limits, acting independently of said larger society.

RESOLUTIONS.

Recommended to the Adoption of the Auxiliary Societies.

1. This Society shall pay over to the Treasurer of the A. H. M. S. the whole of its income, from time to time, after deducting incidental expenses; provided however, that the permanent fund* of the Society shall forever remain, as to the power of investment, &c. under its own control—and provided also that the whole, or any part of said income, having been reported, as subject to the order of the Parent Society, shall be allowed to remain, if requested by the Directors of this Society, in the Treasury of the same, for the payment of Missionaries and Agents, as hereinafter stipulated.

2. The parent Society shall allow to this Auxiliary, the right to appoint, and pay Missionaries within the limits of _____ to any amount, not exceeding the above-named income; provided that all appointments of Missionaries by this Society, shall be made in the manner following, (viz.)

A sufficient number of blank Commissions shall be furnished to this Society, by the Executive Committee of the parent Society, signed by the Chairman and Corresponding Secretary of the same, which shall be filled and countersigned by the proper officers, and issued on the responsibility of this Society.

3. All Missionaries shall be paid from the income of this Society, in the manner following, (viz.) The Directors of this Society having reported the income or receipts of the same, to the parent Society, and having requested that so much of the income so reported, as they shall deem necessary to answer the engagements of this Society, may be retained for that purpose, the Executive Committee of the parent Society shall, in answer to such request, and without delay, direct the Treasurer of the same to issue an order to the Directors of this Society, to retain the whole or such portion of the said income, as shall have been thus requested, for the purpose of paying the same, as it shall become due to Missionaries appointed by this Society, under Commissions from the parent Institution.

4. Should appropriations of aid be needed, within the _____ to exceed the amount of the income of this Society, such appropriations shall be made directly by the parent Society on the sole responsibility of the same, provided however, that in all such cases, the advice and recommendation of the Directors of this Society shall be previously obtained.

5 This Society shall be governed in its appropriations, by the general principles, which govern the appropriations of the parent Society

6: This Society shall appoint no Missionaries or Agent, out of the limits of the same.

7. Agents for the collection of funds, for this Society, may be appointed by the Executive Committee of the parent Society, with the recommendation or consent of the Directors of this auxiliary, and all Agents so appointed, shall report the amount of their collections, both to the auxiliary, and the parent Society; and each Agent so appointed, shall receive his compensation from this Society, in the same manner that the Missionaries of the Society receive theirs.

Reasons of the foregoing Recommendations.

The above resolutions are in accordance with the spirit of the 8th article of the Constitution of the parent Society. They have been already adopted by the New Hampshire Missionary Society, the Vermont Domestic Missionary Society, the Hampshire Missionary Society, Mass. and substantially by a number of other Societies, as the basis of their Auxiliary connection with the A. H. M. S. In recommending the same to the adoption of Societies which may hereafter become auxiliary, the Executive Committee of the Parent Society are influenced by the following considerations :

1. Wherever these resolutions are adopted, they will bring the influence of the Parent Society to act on its Auxiliaries in the matter of raising funds, and thus a principle distinctly avowed in the formation of the National Institution will be most securely guarded, viz. : That local Societies should not be superseded, nor impeded in their operations, but strengthened and stimulated. On this plan the Agent of each Auxiliary will also be the Agent of the Parent Society, and by keeping advised of the operations and necessities of the latter, will be able to acquaint each congregation which he may address, with what the whole country is doing; and the influence of example will be fully felt, while the great national object, by being presented as one and undivided, will assume an importance as much superior to that exhibited by the separate claims of a local Society as the wants of the nation are more extensive than those of a single state or country ; and it is found that when facts are presented as the ground of appeal, Christians and patriots are every where disposed to contribute in proportion to the magnitude of the work to be accomplished by their beneficence. In this way the resources of each local Society may be greatly increased by a connection with the National Institution.

2. By these stipulations, each auxiliary Society is left to the independent and unembarrassed exercise of all its rights in the business of appropriating its own funds to the relief of the needy within its limits, while it secures to itself the additional advantage of directing other appropriations made by the parent Society within the same bounds. And this is an advantage which will be very gladly yielded to Auxiliaries, whose knowledge of the work to be done within their own limits, is in all cases, much more minute and particular than can be possessed through the medium of correspondence by the National Institution.

3. These stipulations, wherever they shall be adopted, will put it out of the power of the National Society to contravene the wishes of those whose business it is to manage the affairs, and guard the purity of the churches in the different sections of our country. It can plant no Missionary in stations yielded to the supervision of an auxiliary Society, without the approbation of the same, and when a missionary or Agent shall cease to be approved by the Auxiliary, the Parent Society will be bound to recal him or withdraw his support. Thus the National Institution claims to be the servant of the churches wherever it may be permitted to act in the benevolent work for which it has been formed and sustained. It pretends to no ecclesiastical authority. It interferes not with the discipline nor the peculiar views of any section of the church, but desires to act through its Auxiliaries, and to be directed in its operations by their united counsels. It will aid feeble Congregations in the support of such ministers only as shall have been approved by the Ecclesiastical bodies with which they are connected. This Society has no Charter, and no funded property. It has its being only in the confidence and co-operation of the Christian public, and should it ever, through unfaithfulness to its trust, cease to deserve these, its Auxiliaries may withdraw them, and the National Society must cease to exist.

4. The effect of this whole plan, should it become universal in the churches represented in this Society, will be the same which was contemplated in the formation of the National Institution.

It will prevent the interference and cross-action of a number of Independent Societies, occupying portions of the same field without concert and without agreement. The State, Presbyterial, and other local Societies will be confined in their appropriations, each to its own limits, and as fast as they are able, they will supply their own destitute, while the National Society, gathering strength from the increased resources of its Auxiliaries, will be the servant of all, in conveying their surplus charities to the new and increasing fields of desolation in our frontier settlements. For this service the National Society, sustained by the co-operation here recommended, will possess peculiar advantages. Its office will be the centre of intelligence on the subject of Home Missions, and the medium through which the numerous local Societies may communicate with each other. And what gives life and energy to this whole system is, that the National Society thus sustained, is enabled to employ permanent officers, and be in effect constantly in session. This is an advantage which can be enjoyed by no local Society, but which is indispensable to the prompt and successful prosecution of the work of Missions on a field so extensive and diversified as remains to be occupied in this country.

This plan is also suited to produce a uniformity of operation, and the Missionaries of the Auxiliaries being also the Missionaries of the parent Society, will be reported as such in our annual alphabetical list, with appropriate marks to denote by what Auxiliary Society they have been supported. Thus the influence of each Auxiliary will be embodied, and an annual Report presented which will embrace the doings of all; the local Societies will no longer be regarded as rivals of each other, but fellow-laborers in the same field, and their Missionaries as belonging to the same family.

SMALLER SOCIETIES.

Within the limits of each larger Society there should be organized Auxiliary Societies, or Associations. Of these Associations, it is recommended that there be formed two in each town, parish, or congregation, the one composed of males, and the other of females; and that they adopt the following Rules for the Government of Church, or Congregational Associations, or Societies for Home Missions.

1. This Association shall be called the [or Female] Missionary Association, or Society of Church, [or Congregation,] Auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of .]

2. Every person who shall contribute annually to the funds, shall be a member.

Director, [or Directress,] a Secretary, a Treasurer, and Collectors, who shall be chosen annually, and together shall constitute a committee.

4. It shall be the duty of the Committee to meet at least once in three months; to appoint assistant Collectors, and transact such other business as may come before them.

5. The first Director, [or Directress,] and in case of his [or her] absence, the second Director, [or Directress,] shall preside in all meetings of the Association, and shall have power to call special meetings at pleasure.

The Secretary shall keep the records, and manage the correspondence.

The Treasurer shall take charge of the money collected, and after deducting incidental expenses, shall pay the same to the American Home Missionary Society, [or to the Auxiliary Society of .]

It shall be the duty of the Collectors to solicit and receive contributions. For this purpose they shall make a suitable division of their labors, call upon the individuals within their respective limits, take the names of persons disposed to contribute, together with the sums which they will give for the year, and shall pay the amount of their collections to the Treasurer, previous to the next annual meeting of the Association.

6. The Association shall meet annually, on the second Monday in March of each year, when the Report shall be read, and the election of officers held; and when these rules may be altered by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

7. The Annual Report of this Association shall be transmitted by the Secretary, to the Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society [or to the Auxiliary Society of] immediately after the annual meeting of the Association.

A SUMMARY

Of the Operations of several Domestic Missionary Societies.

We regret that it is not in our power to furnish a complete summary of the number of Missionaries employed by all the Domestic Missionary Societies in this country. But, in relation to several important Societies, we have not been able to procure the necessary facts.* The following is selected from such Reports as have come to hand, and embraces only the Missionaries of such Societies as are not included in the Report of the National Society; viz. :—

The Missionary Society of the Reformed Dutch Church, in the year end—

* The Secretaries of all Domestic Missionary Societies in the United States, friendly to the object of the National Society, whether Auxiliary or not, are respectfully requested to forward their Reports to the Cor. Secretary of the A. H. M. S. that a more perfect sum-

ing May, 1828, employed 21 Missionaries and aided 43 Congregations in the support of their Pastors,* making in all	64
The Massachusetts Missionary Society, Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. in the year ending May, 1828, extended aid to 60 Congregations. The number of Missionaries employed is not stated, but it is probably not less than	55
The Western Domestic Missionary Society in the State of New York, Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. year ending May, 1828,	55
The Maine Missionary Society, year ending June, 1827,	43
The Vermont Domestic Missionary Society, now Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. year ending Sept. 1827,	28
The Missionary Society of Connecticut, year ending Feb. 1828,	25
The New Hampshire Missionary Society, now Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. year ending Sept. 1827,	20
The Pennsylvania Missionary Society, year ending May, 1828,	19
The Missionary Society of New Jersey, year ending Oct. 1827, probably not less than	15
The Hampshire Missionary Society, Mass. now Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. year ending Oct. 1827,	10
The South Carolina Domestic Missionary Society, year ending June, 1827,	7
The Indiana Missionary Society, now Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. year ending April, 1826,	6
The Domestic Missionary Society of Richmond, Va. Auxiliary to A. H. M. S. year ending April 1828, probably	5
The Missionary Society of the Londonderry Presbytery, year ending Aug. 1827,	2
The United Domestic Missionary Society of the counties of Orange, Ulster and Sullivan, N. Y.	2
The Domestic Missionary Society of Delaware County, N. Y. year ending July, 1827,	2

Total, 318

The above, added to the 201 Missionaries employed by the American Home Missionary Society, exhibits a grand total of 519, which is probably from 50 to 100 less than the whole number employed the last year in this country by Societies belonging to those denominations who patronize the National Institution. The whole number of Congregations and destitute regions, aided in the support of these ministers, and who enjoy their labors the whole or a part of the time, is probably not less than 700.

* These particulars have been furnished by the Rev. Dr. Brownlee, the Report being not yet published.

THE
AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY, PRESENTED BY THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, AT THE ANNIVERSARY MEETING, MAY 13, 1829.
WITH AN
APPENDIX, CONTAINING A LIST OF AUXILIARY SOCIETIES,
A SUMMARY OF THE OPERATIONS OF OTHER DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETIES, FORMS OF CONSTITUTIONS, &c. &c.

No. 64 Pine-street.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY.

THE American Home Missionary Society held its Third Annual Meeting in the Wall-street Presbyterian Church, New-York, on the evening of Wednesday, May 13, 1829. The Hon. Stephen Van Rensselaer, LL. D., President of the Society, took the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. W. W. Phillips, D. D., of New-York.

The Treasurer's account, with the Auditor's certificate, was read by Mr. Knowles Taylor, Treasurer.

The Rev. Absalom Peters, Corresponding Secretary of the Society, read the "Third Annual Report," after which the following resolutions were adopted, viz. :

1. On motion of the Hon. Charles Marsh, of Vermont, seconded by the Hon. John Woodworth, of Albany, Resolved, That the report now read be accepted, and printed by the Executive Committee.

2. On motion by the Rev. John Codman, D. D., of Massachusetts, seconded by the Rev. Elias Cornelius, Secretary of the American Education Society, Resolved, That this society regard, with gratitude to God, the success which has attended the labours of its missionaries, not only in the establishment of churches, and the conversion of souls, but in its influence upon other kindred enterprises of benevolence.

3. On motion by the Rev. Jacob Van Vecten, of Schenectady, N. Y., seconded by the Rev. James M. Matthews, D. D., of New-York,

Resolved. That the unequal distribution of ministerial labour in the United States, calls for the united co-operation of Christians in the older states, to supply the comparatively destitute states and territories of the south and west, with the preached gospel.

4. On motion by the Rev. Charles Hodge, Professor of Oriental and Biblical Literature, in the Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J., seconded by the Rev. Lyman Beecher, D. D., Boston, Massachusetts,

Resolved, That the cause of Home Missions in this country commends itself to the patronage and prayers of all good men, in view of the claims of the world upon American Christians.

In support of the foregoing resolutions, several of the gentlemen named addressed the meeting.

CONSTITUTION

OF THE

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 1. This Society shall be denominated "THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY."

ART. 2. The great object of this Society shall be to assist congregations that are unable to support the Gospel Ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute, within the United States.

ART. 3. The Officers of the Society shall be a President, Vice Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, a Corresponding Secretary, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors, who shall be annually appointed by the Society; and who, together with the Directors for life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. 4. The Officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of thirteen, (including the Treasurer, the Corresponding Secretary, and the Recording Secretary,) residing in the City of New-York and its vicinity; seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened. This Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society; shall appoint Missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labours; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing Missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the Institution may require; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

ART. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds annually to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

ART. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society by contributing annually to its funds ; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for life ; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for life ; and any person, on the payment of a sum, which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for life. An executor on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for life ; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute him a Director for life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Corresponding Secretary a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a Missionary, or Missionaries, to labour in such field as it may designate ; at least to the amount of its contributions ; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be ex-officio Directors ; and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of this Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the City of New-York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

ART. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution, without a vote of two thirds of the Members present, at an annual meeting, nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

THIRD REPORT.

IT has become one of the most delightful privileges of the servants of Christ, in our common country, to pause at stated periods, in the progress of their benevolent enterprise, and behold what God hath wrought. Though scattered over a wide field, and distinguished by a diversity of names, and shades of difference, yet moved by the same Spirit, in many of the things which accompany salvation, and in "holding forth the word of life," large portions of the American churches have become one. Called in one hope of their calling, and having one Lord, one faith, one baptism, they have united their prayers and efforts to promote the glory of one God and Father of all. And when the labours of the year are ended, it is among the sweetest of their luxuries, to meet, and renew their strength, and stir up one another's pure minds with the details of an anniversary. For such a purpose is the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY now convened.

The EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, in presenting their THIRD ANNUAL REPORT, resume the history of the Society's doings, at the point where they left it on the 7th of May, 1828. During the year which has since elapsed, the Committee have steadily pursued the work assigned them, and though they have occasion for deep humility in view of their own insufficiency for the magnitude of its demands, they thank God that their efforts have been blessed with uninterrupted and increasing success. This, indeed, has been a characteristic of the operations of this Society from its commencement. Each succeeding year has surpassed its predecessor in the amount of receipts and expenditures, and in apparent good accomplished, to a degree both unexpected, and most gratefully to be acknowledged by the friends of Home Missions.

NUMBER OF MISSIONARIES AND CONGREGATIONS AIDED.

In the first year of its existence, the Society extended aid to 196 congregations and missionary districts* in the support of 169 ministers. In the second year it aided 244 congregations and missionary districts in the support of 201 ministers; and in the third year, which is embraced in the present report, the number of congregations and missionary districts aided, has been 401, and the number of missionaries and agents employed 304. Of these 135 were in commission at the commencement of the year, the terms of whose previous engagements have been fulfilled, and 72 of the same have been re-appointed. The remaining 169† have been new appointments within the year, making, in all, 304.

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF MISSIONARIES, WITH THEIR FIELDS OF LABOUR.

The following is a full list of the congregations and fields of labour occupied within the last year, to which the names of the Society's missionaries and agents are annexed in alphabetical order, with the number of months for which each has been appointed, and the proportion of aid granted in his support.

* In this estimate, for each year, the congregations supplied, in whole, or in part, are numbered, except in those stations that embrace more than three congregations, in which cases, (including the fields of agents,) each station is denominated a missionary district, and counts but one in this enumeration.

† A portion of this number were previously in the employment of the Auxiliary Societies of Maine and Vermont, but have received their first appointments under commissions from the Parent Society within the last year.

EXPLANATIONS.

In this list the following abbreviations designate the Auxiliary Societies by whose funds the congregations and missionary stations, against which they are placed, have been aided.

W. A., Western Agency for the state of New-York. M. M. S.—Maine Missionary Society. V. D. M. S.—Vermont Domestic Missionary Society. Hamp. M. S.—Hampshire Missionary Society. Sab. S. M. A.—Sabbath Scholars' Missionary Association of Cedar-street Church, New-York.

1. The Congregational Churches in Newfield and Parsonsfield, York county, Maine. Proportion of aid for the year, two and a half months. Efforts have been made in these places to enjoy the stated means of grace, and in the former a minister was settled in September last. It is hoped, that ere long each will be able to support its own pastor; but, at present, our missionary judges it expedient to divide his labours between the two. Nine hopeful conversions have been reported. M. M. S.

Rev. Charles S. Adams, Pastor of the Church in Newfield.

2. The Rev. Isaac F. Adams was commissioned November 13, 1828, to labour twelve months in the western part of Virginia. No report has been received.

3. The Presbyterian congregation of Milan, Huron county, Ohio, has received aid, as reported last year, up to October 15, 1828. Proportion of aid one and a half months. A tract society, a female Sabbath society, a Sabbath school of thirty scholars, two hopeful conversions, and six additions to the church, were reported. The Monthly Concert attended, and a large number of destitute families supplied with the Bible.

In November, 1828, our missionary removed from the above station, for reasons satisfactory to this Committee, and has since laboured in the Presbyterian congregation of Painesville, Geauga county, Ohio. Commission in the latter place for twelve months, dated January 1, 1829. Aid, three months. Prospects encouraging.

Rev. William M. Adams, Minister.

4. Presbyterian congregations of Aurora and vicinity, Dearborn county, Indiana. Commission renewed for twelve months from January 3, 1829, to labour in Rising Sun and vicinity. Aid, three months. Our missionary reports three additions to the church, and a Bible class under his care; also twenty-five Sabbath schools, embracing about 2,000 scholars, and eighteen libraries in Dearborn county, and parts of Switzerland and Ripley counties adjoining; also, two Bible societies, and a county temperance society.

Rev. Lucius Alden, Minister.

5. The Rev. Samuel R. Alexander, having been permitted to leave the field of his labour in Kentucky, as reported last year, was appointed to labour in Indiana, under direction of the Indiana Missionary Society. He arrived in Vincennes, Knox county, Indiana, June, 1828, where his labours appear to have been greatly blessed. Three Bible classes with one hundred and eighty members, and five Sabbath schools with four hundred scholars; seventy-seven reported as having been added to the church. The people raise his support.

6. The congregations of Lexington, Davidson county, and Hopewell, Randolph county, North Carolina. Commission renewed for twelve months from January 1, 1828. Aid, four months for the year. The monthly concert, a Bible class a tract society, and three Sabbath schools, were reported. We regret to state, that our missionary deemed it his duty to leave this field in August last.

Rev. Darius C. Allen.

7. The congregation in Plymouth, Vt. Commission for twelve months. Aid, three months. V. D. M. S.

Rev. John A. Avery, Minister.

8. The church in Albany, Oxford county, Maine. Aid, three months. M. M. S.

Rev. Thomas Ayer, Pastor.

9. The Presbyterian congregation of Hampden, Delaware county, N. Y. Commission renewed for twelve months from May 14, 1828. Aid, three months. Our missionary has laboured a part of the time in Gilead, an adjoining town—has reported two Sabbath schools, embracing eighty scholars, twelve or fifteen hopeful conversions, a church formed of fourteen members, and a house of worship built in Hampden.

Rev. Samuel T. Babbitt, Minister.

10. The church in Sanford, York county, Maine. Commission for two and a half months, with the hope of the re-settlement of the gospel ministry in this place, which is comparatively new and destitute. M. M. S.

Rev. Elisha Bacon, Missionary.

11. Presbyterian congregation in York, Livingston county, N. Y., received continued aid. Year ending December 20, 1828. Aid, two and a half months; about one third of which was raised by the auxiliary society there. Reported monthly concert, a tract society formed, and a Sabbath school with sixty-five scholars—two additions to the church. W. A.

Rev. Johnson Baldwin, Pastor.

12. The congregations of Olean and Franklinville, Cataraugus county, N. Y. Commission for twelve months from September 7, 1828. Aid, three months. Our missionary laboured three months, under appointment as reported last year, in Hamburg and East Aurora, Erie county, N. Y., when his labours were suspended by ill health. Since resuming them in the above congregations, he has reported the monthly concert in both places, a Sabbath school and Bible class in Olean, and a church formed in Franklinville of from twenty to thirty members. W. A.

Rev. John T. Baldwin, Minister.

13. Highlands west of the Hudson river, Orange county, N. Y., have received continued aid for twelve months from November 7, 1828. Aid, three months.

Rev. Hosea Ball, Missionary.

14. Rev. John S. Ball was appointed for twelve months from June 9, 1828, in St. Louis county, Missouri. Aid, three months. His labours have been bestowed principally in Bonhomme, and another settlement about eighteen miles distant, and, it is believed, have been highly useful. [See Home Missionary, vol. i. page 168.]

15. Rev. Daniel C. Banks was appointed June 9, 1828, to labour as agent six months, within the bounds of the Missionary Society of the Louisville presbytery. No report has been received.

16. First Presbyterian congregation in Howard, Steuben county, N. Y., has received continued aid. Commission renewed for twelve months from September 19, 1828. Aid two and a third months, one third of which to be raised by an auxiliary society there. A Bible class, three Sabbath schools, and an efficient temperance society, have been reported. W. A.

Rev. Lyman Barrett, Minister.

17. First Congregational Society in Medina, Medina county, Ohio. Commission for twelve months from August 25, 1828. Aid, three months. The monthly concert, fifteen or twenty hopeful conversions, four added to the church, two Sabbath schools with one hundred scholars, and a Bible class with thirty members, have been reported.

Rev. S. V. Barnes, Minister.

18. Presbyterian congregations in Peru, Norwalk and Fitchville, Huron county, Ohio. Commission renewed for twelve months from November 9, 1828, half in the former, and one quarter of the time in each of the two latter places. Aid, about four months.

Rev. John Beach, Minister.

19. Presbyterian congregation of Cairo, Greene county, N. Y. Commission renewed for twelve months from May 14, 1828. Aid, three months, auxiliary society there to raise one quarter. The monthly concert, three or four hopeful conversions, a Sabbath school, with a library, tract and missionary societies, and measures in successful operation to suppress intemperance, were reported up to April 14, 1829, when our missionary accepted a call to the charge of a congregation in New-Jersey.

Rev. Daniel Beers, Pastor.

20. Presbyterian congregations of Miamisburgh and Washington, Montgomery county, Ohio. Commission for twelve months, dated March 10, 1828. Aid, four and a half months. A revival of religion in Washington, thirty-seven added to the church there, Sabbath schools and Bible classes in both places, have been reported, the former containing fifty-nine scholars, and the latter fifty members.

Rev. John L. Belville, Minister.

21. The Rev. Alanson Benedict was appointed November 25, 1828, to labour twelve months in Florida. After a protracted journey, which he rendered useful by preaching, conversation, and the distribution of tracts, Mr. B. arrived January, 1829, and commenced his labours in Gadsden county, Middle Florida, spending one half of his time in Quincy, one quarter in Atapulcus, and one quarter in Rocky Comfort. We regret to learn, that he will probably leave this field of labour on account of the failure of his health. [See Home Miss. vol. ii. p. 6.]

22. Presbyterian congregation in Patterson, Putnam county, N. Y. Commission renewed for twelve months from May 28, 1828. Aid, three months. This congregation has been blessed with the special influences of the Spirit. The monthly concert, a Bible class, a Sabbath school with twenty-five scholars, and more additions to the church than had been made in nine preceding years, have been reported.

Rev. Epenetus P. Benedict, Minister.

23. The Rev. John G. Bergen, late of Bottle Hill, N. J., having been appointed for twelve months to labour in the state of Illinois, arrived on the field November 1, 1828, and has been stationed at Springfield, Sangamon county, where he has been cordially received, and much encouraged in his labours. Outfit one hundred dollars, and support pledged during the year. Efforts are making to erect a house of worship in that place. [See Home Miss. vol. i. pp. 182, and 205.]

24. The Rev. Xenophon Betts, commissioned to labour twelve months, in the northern part of Ohio, arrived November 21, 1828, and was stationed at Wakeman and Clarkesfield, Huron county. Outfit thirty dollars, and support pledged during the year: has reported three additions to the church. The monthly concert attended, Bible classes and Sabbath schools in both places, a tract society in Wakeman, and encouraging advances in the cause of temperance. [See Home Missionary, vol. i. p. 202.] Mr. B. was installed Pastor of the church in W. March 8, 1829.

25. The Rev. Luther G. Bingham, of Marietta, Ohio, laboured two months as agent of this Society, principally in Vermont, and on behalf of the Vermont Domestic Missionary Society. Commission dated May 12, 1828. Labour performed in June and July following, and attended with happy results.

26. Rev. Chester Birge was appointed October 21, 1828, to go to New-Philadelphia, Tuscarawas county, Ohio. Commission twelve months from his arrival; thirty dollars outfit, and support pledged for the year, including receipts from the people.

27. Congregational church in Clinton, Kennebec county, Maine. Commission for twelve months; aid, 3 months. This church has been recently organized, and their minister was settled in November last. Though the people make laudable exertions, assistance seems indispensable for a time. M. M. S.

Rev. Nelson Bishop, Pastor.

28. Presbyterian congregation in Twinsburg, Portage county, Ohio. Commission renewed for twelve months, from March 24, 1829. Aid, three months; one quarter of which to be raised by an Auxiliary Society there. The Monthly Concert, a revival of religion, seventeen added to the church, a Sabbath school, a Bible class with twenty-five or thirty members, and measures for the promotion of temperance, have been reported.

Rev. Samuel Bissell, Pastor.

29. First Presbyterian congregation in Cold Spring, Putnam county, N. Y. Commission for twelve months, from June 1, 1828. Aid, three months. Reports interesting. During the year a house of worship has been finished, a small church formed, and a Sabbath school of one hundred and forty scholars, and a Bible class, have been organized.

Rev. William Blain, Pastor.

30. The Rev. Robert J. Blair was commissioned November 12, 1828, to labour six months in South Carolina, in such field as should be designated by the S. C. Missionary Society. No report has been received.

31. The Presbyterian congregation in Centreville, Wabash county, Illinois. Commission for twelve months, from November 10, 1828. Aid, three months. In this place a small church exists in the midst of a wide region, where ministerial labour is much needed. Reports encouraging, and a few give evidence of conversion.

Rev. Stephen Bliss, Minister.

32. Presbyterian congregations of Farmington and Ellsworth, Trumbull county, Ohio. Commission renewed for twelve months, from July 9, 1828. Aid, three months. The monthly concert, seven additions to the Church, four Sabbath schools, a Bible class, and a temperance society, have been reported. Hamp. M. S. Rev. Enoch Bouton, Minister.

33. Presbyterian congregation in Veteran, Tioga county, N. Y. Commission for twelve months from November 1, 1828. Aid, three months, with liberty to labour occasionally in the vicinity. W. A.

Rev. James Boyle, Minister.

34. Presbyterian congregation of Gorham, Ontario county, New-York. Commission to Rev. Moses B. Bradford, as reported last year, was not fulfilled, and the place has since been supplied by another appointment. [See Rev. C. Hinman, No. .] W. A.

35. Presbyterian congregation in Cleaveland, Cuyahoga county, Ohio. Commission renewed for twelve months, from January 1, 1829. The monthly concert, a Sabbath school, Bible class, and tract society, reported. General prospects encouraging.

Rev. Stephen J. Bradstreet, Pastor.

36. Rev. Eleazar Brainard was commissioned for twelve months, to labour in Ohio. Commenced labour July 8, 1828, at Portsmouth, Scioto county, and the vicinity. Three fourths of Mr. B.'s support is derived from funds contributed by the Scioto county Domestic Missionary Society. Nine additions to the church have been reported, also a Sabbath school of one hundred and thirty pupils. At Sandy Spring, five additions to the church, and a Sabbath school of one hundred and thirty pupils, have been reported. Efforts favouring the cause of temperance have been made.

37. Rev. Asa Brooks, commissioned for twelve months, from January 1, 1828—has laboured in Clarksburg, Harrison county, Va., and places in the vicinity. Aid, ten weeks. Hamp. M. S.

38. The congregation at Moscow, Livingston county, N. Y. Commission renewed for twelve months, from July 28, 1828. Aid, one and a half months. The Monthly Concert, a Sabbath school, two Bible classes, and four additions to the church, have been reported. W. A.

Rev. Amos P. Brown, Minister.

39. The congregational church of Atwater, Portage county, Ohio. Commission renewed for twelve months, from November 12, 1828. Aid, 3 months. The monthly concert, a Sabbath school, Bible class, and efforts in favour of temperance, have been reported. Consumption of ardent spirits diminished one half.

Rev. William L. Buffett, Pastor.

40. The church of New-Portland and Freeman, Somerset county, Maine. Commission for twelve months. Aid, three months. M. M. S.

Rev. Philip Bunnel, Pastor.

41. The Congregational society of Marion, Wayne county, N. Y. Commission for twelve months, from July 27, 1828. Aid, three months. Our Missionary reports a revival of religion, seventeen added to the church, a Bible class, five Sabbath schools, and efforts in the cause of temperance. From twenty to thirty of the Sabbath scholars became hopefully pious. W. A.

Rev. Jacob Burbank, Minister.

42. Presbyterian congregation of Princeton, Gibson county, and Evansville, Vanderberg county, Indiana. Commission for twelve months, ending November 14, 1828.

At Princeton a church has been formed of fourteen members: some conversions since. At Evansville seven were at one time added to the church.

Rev. Calvin Butler, Minister.

43. The congregational societies of Fort Covington and Moira, Franklin county, N. Y. Commission for twelve months, from February 21, 1828. Aid, 4 months. The monthly concert, a Bible class, a Bible society, six Sabbath schools, and two temperance societies have been reported.

Rev. Joseph Butler, Minister.

Rev. Simeon Woodruff, Minister.

EXTENT OF FIELDS OF LABOUR.

Of the missionaries named in the foregoing list, 186 are settled as pastors, or are statedly engaged in single congregations; 79 divide their labours, either as pastors, or stated supplies, between two or three congregations; and 39, including agents, are allowed to exercise their ministry in larger fields of labour. Thus, the extent of field appropriated to each missionary, has been modified by circumstances. In those states and territories, which have been most recently settled, and where religious societies are unformed, it has been judged important, in some instances, to allow the missionary a considerable extent of country as his circuit, while, in all cases where the denseness of the population, and the state of society, have encouraged the attempt, the committee have adhered to the original plan and object of the society, which was to sustain the stated administration of the gospel in such single townships and parishes as should need aid in the support of ministers of their own choice. The majority of our missionaries have, accordingly, been stationed in single congregations, or in congregations so contiguous as to receive an adequate supply from the labours of a single minister.

PROPORTION OF MISSIONARIES AND CONGREGATIONS AIDED IN EACH STATE.

The congregations and missionary districts aided within the last year, and the ministers who have occupied them, are distributed in the several states and territories as in the following table:

1. New-York,	140	117
2. Ohio,	67	43
3. Maine,	51	40
4. Vermont,	37	29
5. Indiana,	21	12
6. Pennsylvania,	12	10
7. Illinois,	10	8
8. North Carolina,	9	6
9. Missouri,	11	6
10. Michigan Territory,	7	5
11. Virginia,	5	3
12. Kentucky,	3	3
13. Alabama,	3	3
14. Tennessee,	3	3
15. Georgia,	3	3

States and Territories.	Congregations and Miss. Dist.	Ministers.
16. South Carolina, . . .	2	2
17. Florida,	4	2
18. District of Columbia, . . .	1	2
19. Louisiana,	4	2
20. New-Hampshire,	2	2
21. Lower Canada,	4	2
22. Massachusetts,	1	1
	401	304

PROPORTION OF INCOME DERIVED FROM THE SEVERAL STATES.

The income of the society during the year has been derived from the following states, in about the amounts placed against each, viz. :

New-York,	$16,221	Indiana,	$225
Massachusetts,	2,995	North Carolina,	126
Vermont,	2,735	Delaware,	87
Maine,	1,685	South Carolina,	85
Pennsylvania,	684	New-Hampshire,	70
Connecticut,	609	Tennessee,	58
New-Jersey,	448	Virginia,	53
Ohio,	346	Illinois,	25
Georgia,	285	Unknown,	260 31

AUXILIARY SOCIETIES AND ASSOCIATIONS.

During the year, 52 societies and associations have been recognised as auxiliary, making the whole number now in connexion with the national institution 241. Of these the following have contributed the largest amounts to the treasury of the parent society, viz. :

The Western Agency,	$6,007 47
The Vermont Domestic Missionary Society,	2,735 89

Maine Missionary Society,	$1,685 66
Hampshire Missionary Society, Mass.	753 09
Brick Church Male Association, N. Y.	714 50
Cedar-street Male Association, N. Y.	632 00
Garden-street Association,	555 25
Boston Society for Home Missions,	520 00
Bleecker-street Male Association, N. Y.	368 46
Society of the Fifth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia,	360 00

The Western Agency, embracing the 17 western counties in the state of New-York, has continued, through the last year, to pursue its work with its usual energy and success, and has been sustained with a liberality worthy of imitation. It has occupied about 30 new fields of labour within the year, and employed 67 missionaries, at an expense of about 5,700 dollars, leaving a balance in the treasury of the society of nearly 300 dollars. (See Appendix.)

The Vermont Domestic Missionary Society has employed 29 missionaries in 33 congregations at an expense of 1,651 dollars, and has furnished to the order of the parent society, 1,189 dollars and 3 cents, with the request that it may be principally expended in Vermont, as appropriated by that auxiliary, under commissions furnished by the parent society, according to the terms of its connexion with the same. (See Appendix.)

The Maine Missionary Society has also acted under the stipulations proposed to auxiliary societies who will report all their receipts as subject to the order of the parent society, and its efficiency and usefulness has, doubtless, been increased by this arrangement. From the 27th of June, 1828, to the first of April, 1829, its receipts were 1,639 dollars and 87 cents, all of which has been, and is to be expended, within its own limits. In addition to the above, the parent society have appropriated, in that state, about 1,000 dollars, to aid that efficient auxiliary in the support of 40 missionaries, in 48 congregations. (See Appendix.)

The Hampshire Missionary Society has employed missionaries in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Virginia, and Michigan, who receive their commissions from the parent society, and are supported by funds derived from the above auxiliary.

It gives us great pleasure also to state, that three of the missionaries of this society have derived the aid granted in their support from the Sabbath scholars' missionary association of the Sabbath school No. 5, belonging to the Cedar-street Presbyterian church, New-York, an extract from whose report is inserted in the Appendix.

STATE OF THE TREASURY, AND FINANCIAL PROSPECTS OF THE SOCIETY.

From the foregoing statements, and also from the treasurer's account, it appears that the receipts of the society, from May 3, 1828, to May 1, 1829, have been, $26,997 31
Balance on hand at the commencement of the year, 8,233 60

Whole amount at the disposal of the society during the year, $35,230 91
Whole amount expended during the year, . . . 26,814 96

Balance now on hand, May 1, 1829, $8,415 95

But the above balance exhibits a state of the treasury more favourable in appearance, than it is in fact. The engagements of the committee, at the present time, to congregations, missionaries, and agents, all of which must be discharged within the coming twelve months, are, $24,907 32
Deduct from the above the amount now on hand, 8,415 95

And the balance against the society, in engagements, is, $16,491 37

This excess of engagements above the means in hand to discharge them, furnishes no ground of alarm, when it is remembered that the silver and the gold are the Lord's, and that all the past experience of this society evinces that its object is dear to the Master whom we serve. With confidence in God, therefore, and assured of the readiness of the Christian public to sustain this enterprise, as far as it may be judiciously extended, the committee have not hesitated to pledge the society in the above amount. Applications for aid are also multiplied in proportion as the plan and benefits of the society become known, and it is delightful to witness an increasing disposition among the ministers of Christ, and the young men of our theological seminaries, to plant themselves on the western and southern frontiers. The number who seek this service is annually multiplied. It cannot be doubted, therefore, that the expenditures of the coming year must far exceed those of the last. To meet future appropriations, and fulfil the present pledges of the society, the committee have made arrangements to exert an efficient agency in several sections of the country, in which their labours have been invited, but where the aid of the churches has not hitherto been specially solicited. The results of these arrangements, if prosecuted with vigour, together with what may be expected from 241 auxiliary societies and associations embracing the states of Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New-Hampshire, Vermont, New-York, Indiana, Illinois, and numerous presbyteries and counties in other states at the west and south, it is confidently believed, will promptly meet the increasing demands of the cause. If the friends of this institution, in whose prayers and alms it has had its being, in the length and the breadth of this country, will still cherish it in their affections, there can be no lack of pecuniary means to accomplish, with the blessing of God, its highest aim. There is a spirit in the churches which is beginning to enlarge itself in proportion to the demands which are laid upon it by the known necessities of the destitute; and the committee, with renewed confidence, repeat their belief, expressed in the last annual report, that "the operations of this society might be increased four-fold in a single year, if a sufficient number of suitable men could be found to enter its service." The field is wide, and already white unto the harvest, and while the inquiry is lifted up, "Whom shall we send, and who will go for us?" the Spirit of missions in our land will not withhold bread and water from the men who will leave all to cultivate it.

HOME MISSIONARY AND PASTOR'S JOURNAL.

The committee have been much aided in their work by the publication of their monthly periodical, denominated the Home Missionary, and American Pastor's Journal. This work, the first yearly volume of which was closed on the 15th of April last, was commenced, as stated in our last annual report, in consequence of the liberal offer of five hundred dollars from the Rev. Dr. Codman, towards defraying the expenses of it the first year, and without which the committee would not have assumed the responsibilities of such a publication at so early a date. But the experiment having been made, they have reason to regard the occasion of its commencement with gratitude. It has greatly facilitated the communication of Home missionary intelligence to all parts of the United States, and done much to awaken interest in the plan and object of the society.

Aware of the obstacles which exist to the introduction of a work of this sort to extended pecuniary support, the most that the committee hoped for it, the first year, was, that it might not bring the society in debt. In this their expectations have been more than answered. The receipts from subscribers for the first volume, (including the donation of Dr. Codman, which has been received, and a few subscriptions not yet paid,) have more than defrayed the expense of printing, and distributing the work. On the whole, therefore, the committee feel that they have occasion to congratulate the society on the success and great usefulness of the above publication. But, assured as they are by numerous testimonials, of the estimation in which it is held by the friends of missions generally, who have received it, they do not doubt that the number of subscribers will be increased hereafter, and that ultimately it will become a source of income to the society, while its continuance appears indispensable to the successful prosecution of its extended operations.

Having related the doings of the committee, together with the present financial state and prospects of the society, our attention is properly turned to their results. These, so far as they are definitely known, may be contemplated under the following particulars, viz. :

AMOUNT OF LABOUR PERFORMED.

It is found, by an accurate estimate, that the 304 missionaries of this society, within those portions of the last year, covered by their appointments, as such, have performed the full amount of labour which would employ a succession of single individuals 186 years and 8 months. This they have doubtless done with different degrees of faithfulness, as their labours have been attended with different degrees of success; but the committee have great pleasure in reporting, that, almost without any exception, they have fulfilled their ministry in a manner acceptable to the people among whom they have been chosen and appointed to labour, while the influence of their preaching has been at least equal to that which ordinarily accompanies the well-directed efforts of the ministers of Christ. This may be seen, in part, in the success, and great benefits, which, in the congregations aided, have attended the formation and continuance of

SABBATH SCHOOLS AND BIBLE CLASSES.

The committee are not aware, that any of the missionaries of this society have failed to promote the interests of the above institutions within the fields of their labour. With very few exceptions, each has reported the existence, and successful operation, of one or more Sabbath schools under his care. The whole number of schools reported during the year has been 289, and the number of pupils embraced in them all, is estimated at not less than 15,000. A large proportion of these, through the facilities afforded by the "American Sunday School Union," are furnished with libraries and other Sabbath school requisites, by benevolent individuals in the congregations, or by associations formed for that purpose. Thus, while these numerous nurseries of piety, in many instances, owe their existence to the labours and exertions of the missionary, and bring a multitude of children to the knowledge of saving truth, through the medium of carefully selected juvenile books, as well as the familiar instructions of pious teachers, they furnish, in return, a field the most happily prepared to receive a life-giving influence from the preaching of the gospel. Hence a number of revivals of religion have been reported as having had their commencement, and much of their fruits, in the enclosures of the Sabbath school, in which many, both of the teachers and the taught, have been savingly benefited.

Special attention has also been given, by most of the missionaries, to the instruction of the youth and others of their charge in Bible classes. 134 such classes have been reported within the year, which are estimated to embrace, in all, not less than 8,000 members. These, as well as Sabbath schools, have been found to be powerful auxiliaries to the successful prosecution of the work of the ministry, especially in new settlements. The Bible class is under the special superintendence and instruction of the minister himself, and affords him opportunity of familiar access to the most interesting portion of his charge, viz. such as desire to be taught more perfectly in the way of life. In these little circles, the teachings of our missionaries have not unfrequently been made the wisdom of God, and the power of God unto salvation. Apart from the public preaching of the word, no department of labour to which they have applied themselves, appears to have been so productive as this, of immediate good to the cause of Christ.

OTHER BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS.

Distribution of the Bible.

The committee also contemplate with satisfaction the influence of the operations of this society in the promotion of other kindred objects of benevolence. It was to be expected, that 304 ministers of the gospel, planted and sustained in different and distant sections of the United States, would exert an agency which would be felt in the distribution of the Bible among the 3,000,000 of our citizens who have it not. Especially was this to be expected, in a year so distinguished as the last, by the resolutions which have been adopted in states and counties, embracing one half of the population of this country, to supply all the destitute within their limits with the word of life. In this expectation the friends of the Bible have not been disappointed. The quarterly returns from the missionaries have generally indicated a lively, and a growing interest in this cause, while most of them have made laudable efforts to supply all the destitute within their several fields of labour, and the influence of some has been extensively felt in calling the public attention to this subject, and in the formation and increased efficiency of state and county Bible societies auxiliary to the national Institution.

Distribution of Tracts.

Nor have they been less active and vigorous in their efforts to promote the distribution of religious tracts. Societies auxiliary to the American Tract Society, or some of its branches, have been reported in most of the stations occupied by the missionaries of this society, a large proportion of which have been zealous and efficient in their work. In addition to the above, through the liberality of the American Tract Society in Boston, 55 of our missionaries have been furnished each with 5,000 pages of tracts, and others have received different quantities, making, in all, not less than 300,000 pages, which have been gratefully received, and actively distributed. These, we are assured, by the reports of our missionaries, have been found highly useful in the destitute regions, in which many of them have the fields of their labour.

The Cause of Education.

But the indirect influence of this society has, perhaps, in no other way, been exerted with so much power as in the impetus which it has given to the cause of education. The truth of this remark would be indisputably sustained, by a reference only to the advancement of the Sabbath school and Bible class systems, which we have already named, and to the ordinary influence of the gospel, and of the faithful labours of the ministry, in promoting common school education, and in advancing the science, and elevating the intellectual character of a community. But we have respect more especially to the effect of the operations of this society in advancing the cause of benevolent education for the gospel ministry. It is a subject of rejoicing, and of devout thanksgiving, that the recent revivals of religion in several denominations of Christians in this country, have brought many young men of talents and promise within the pale of the church, who desire the work of the ministry. It is stated, in a late official circular of the American Education Society, that the number of applications for the aid of that institution, in the first stage of education, "has increased nearly five-fold within two years." In the mean time, public attention has been extensively awakened to the importance of the object, and the means of furnishing education to young men of talents and piety, for the work of the ministry, have been multiplied in some happy proportion to the number of those who need aid in this respect. How far the operations of the Home Missionary Society have contributed to these propitious results, is not in our power to estimate. But it cannot be doubted, that the reports, and other publications of this society, have done much to discover the destitute condition of large sections of our country, and how greatly the blessings of the gospel are desired and needed by thousands in our frontier settlements who have them not. These discoveries have touched the hearts of many young men of piety, and urged them to seek a due preparation for the labours of the ministry in fields so full of interest and promise. The same causes have called forth the prayers and alms of the benevolent, to select, and prepare for this service, a multitude of labourers, while this committee has not ceased to reiterate the cry of the West and the South for hundreds of ministers more than it has been in the power of the society to obtain. Thus, the cause of missions has waited for the progress of the cause of education, while the latter has been urged to the accomplishment of its purpose by a knowledge of the increasing, and unutterably interesting claims of the former, and the friends of both have had occasion to tremble and rejoice together in the labours, and difficulties, and anticipated triumphs of a common enterprise.

Foreign Missions.

The cause of foreign missions has also been warmly espoused by the missionaries of this society generally. Probably, without a single exception, they have urged their congregations to the duties and enjoyments of the monthly concert for prayer, and have united with the feeble bands of the faithful in supplications for the conversion of the whole world, while the little mites which, of their poverty, the congregations aided have consecrated to the cause of the heathen, have evinced, that the progress of this society's efforts is but an extension of the sympathies of that enlarged benevolence which seeks the salvation of the human race.

Sanctification of the Sabbath.

It need hardly be added, that, in this eventful crisis of our country's history, and when the voice of the churches has been raised in defence of the Christian Sabbath, the example and the teachings of 304 ministers of the gospel, have not failed to be extensively felt, in promoting the better sanctification of the day of rest. The committee have reason to believe, that most of the missionaries have deeply appreciated the importance of this divine institution, and have faithfully withstood the tendency, especially in new settlements, to its neglect and abuse.

Cause of Temperance.

They have, also, in common with men of other professions, patriots, philanthropists, and Christians, in all parts of the United States, participated in the just alarm which has been occasioned by the prevalence of intemperance. Their influence has, accordingly, been exerted to discountenance the use of intoxicating drinks among the people of their charge. This influence has been assisted by many of the most respectable citizens, and been attended, in many instances, with signal success. A large number of our missionaries have reported the formation of temperance societies on the principle of total abstinence from the use of distilled spirits as a beverage, while they have not been backward to encourage and aid the prosecution of other approved measures to avert the curse of drunkenness from this nation, and save a free people from that raging fire which feeds its flame with the bodies and souls of men.

REVIVALS OF RELIGION, AND ADDITIONS TO THE CHURCH.

We might extend this enumeration to embrace whatsoever things are pure, lovely, and of good report, and show that the influence of this society's missionaries, like the ordinary effect of an uncorrupted and efficient gospel ministry, has tended to the promotion of every thing, on the field of their labours, which attaches itself to the best interests of man. But every particular which might be named, is implied and comprehended in the great end of the doings of this society and its missionaries, the turning of sinners from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God. Within the year, 34 of the churches under the care of our missionaries, have enjoyed special revivals of religion. These we have briefly noticed in the preceding list of stations occupied, in connexion with the names of the missionaries under whose ministry they have occurred. But the converting influences of the Spirit have not been confined to these signal displays of his saving power. They have accompanied, with different degrees of energy, the labours of all our missionaries, and it is most gratifying to learn, from a careful review of their quarterly returns, that, in many of the fields occupied by the society, the missionaries have rejoiced over the successive ingathering of many souls as the fruit of their ministry. The number of additions to the churches, reported during the year, in all the stations, has been 1678. The number of hopeful conversions, though not accurately reported, may be safely estimated at not less than the above. If this estimate be correct, so many souls have been saved from perdition, through the blessing of God on the labours of the missionaries of this society; so many lights have been kindled in a dark world, which, when they shall have shone before men all their appointed time, and "turned many" others "to righteousness," will become "as the brightness of the firmament," and "as the stars for ever and ever."

THE LAST YEAR COMPARED WITH THE TWO PRECEDING YEARS.

The following table exhibits the annual results of the operations of this society, in several particulars, from its formation, May, 1826.

GOOD ACCOMPLISHED.

The amount of good accomplished by these results, remains for other generations to estimate more adequately than we now can, while it will be fully known and appreciated only in eternity. For all future efforts and disclosures, we wait in humble dependence on Him who alone giveth the increase. But, apart from what may be known hereafter, enough has already been effected, as exhibited in the preceding details, to call for the most devout expressions of gratitude and praise, and enough to inspire the highest confidence in the excellence of the object, and the practicability of the plans of this society. If ever the indications of Providence may be allowed to interpret the will of God, we have the best ground of assurance that he regards both with approbation. May not this committee, therefore, be permitted to commend them both to the increased affection and confidence of the Christian public?

OBJECT AND PLAN OF THE SOCIETY.

ANOTHER year has shed its light on the desolations of our land : and the eyes of this committee, with the best advantages of observation, have been abroad over the whole field. In this survey, they have beheld large regions of country, where the blessings of the life that now is, have been scattered down in the richest profusion, and where the facilities of worldly enterprise give great promise of temporal wealth and prosperity, but one thing is lacking. Thousands and tens of thousands are destitute of evangelical instructions in the things which belong to their peace. Passing over other sources of evidence, on this subject, which have interested the sympathies of the committee, the official documents of the Presbyterian, Congregational, Reformed Dutch, German Reformed, and Associate Reformed churches, show that nearly two thirds of the ministers of these denominations in the United States, reside in New-Jersey, New-York, and the New-England states. Add to the above, Episcopalians, Baptists, Methodists, and all other evangelical denominations in this country, and still nearly one half of the whole number of ministers are embraced in the states above named. But these states contain but about one third of the population of the Union, while the states and territories west and south of New-York and New-Jersey embrace two thirds of the population, and only about one half of the ministers. If, therefore, we could send into those states a number of labourers, equal to the whole number of evangelical ministers, of all denominations, now settled in New-England, New-York, and New-Jersey, they would still, considering the extent of their territory, be no better supplied with the preaching of the gospel than the northern and eastern states now are. And the causes which have hitherto contributed to produce this unequal distribution of ministerial labour, without a vigorous effort on the part of the churches to prevent it, will continue in future, to produce the same results in a rapidly increasing ratio. The responsibility of preventing it lies, in the providence of God, upon Christians and patriots throughout the nation. A part of this responsibility belongs to every citizen, while the magnitude and difficulty of the enterprise demand, under God, the strength of union, and the energy of Christian concert among all who have "a mind to work."

With a view to such union and concert among Christians of different denominations, who agree in essential doctrines, and do not materially differ in government and order, the American Home Missionary Society was organized. Its plan was, accordingly, with great deliberation, adapted to the existing state of the churches, and its constitution was so framed as to bind the Parent Institution, on specified conditions, to appropriate the funds derived from auxiliary societies in subserviency to the expressed wishes of the same. The committee have since repeatedly published this provision of the constitution, together with explanations and stipulations in accordance with it, yielding to state, county, synodical and presbyterial societies, who will avail themselves of this provision, the entire disposal of their own funds, and the direction of the operations of the parent society, within their several limits. Under these stipulations, a number of important societies, connected with different denominations of Christians, have become auxiliary ; and this plan, it is believed, as far as it has been understood, has been universally approved. It assumes to the society no ecclesiastical authority, but subjects the character and labours of its missionaries to the approval of the several ecclesiastical bodies, to which they are amenable as the ministers of Christ. The committee appoint none except on due evidence of such approval, and withdraw their aid when that evidence ceases to be satisfactory. Thus the national society becomes the servant of each ecclesiastical body, or other organization which chooses to avail itself of the privileges of an auxiliary, and each is secured against the reception of a missionary or agent within its bounds, whom it does not itself select or approve. And the auxiliary, if it have need, has a claim on the parent society for aid; if it have funds to spare, it may appropriate the same, through the parent society, without danger of collision with the operations of other auxiliaries. It is plain, therefore, that if all the local societies embraced in the several denominations of Christians represented in the American Home Missionary Society, were to become thus auxiliary, there would be produced, in the whole extent of these denominations, entire harmony of action, without the least interference with the preferences of the different sections of the church. The power and resources of the parent society would exist in its auxiliaries, and be directed by each within its own limits, while the parent society would be the medium of their communication with each other, and the organ of their concentrated efforts to accomplish the grand object for which all labour, the supply of every destitute parish in the nation with a faithful minister.

CONCLUSION.

Your committee, having already had opportunity to witness the operations of this plan, to a large extent, cannot do justice to their own sense of its admirable adaptedness to the existing state of the Home Missionary enterprise in our land, without commending it to the consideration of all the denominations of Christians concerned in the formation of this society. Let it be adopted in spirit, and in fact, and then every prayer that goes up to God from the different portions of the field, will mingle with ten thousand other prayers asking the same thing, and every effort that is put forth will combine with ten thousand other efforts, to urge forward the common cause; the distant sections of the church will sympathize with each other, and all the congregations aided, and all the missionaries of the common brotherhood.

will rejoice in each other's blessings and labours. Then "the wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them, and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Then shall the Christians of this land, moved by one Spirit, say to each other, "Let us rise and build on the other side of the waters;" and then the scattered influences which we now send to the heathen world, will only be remembered as drops of rain in the desert, when the Lord shall "extend peace" to all lands "like a river, and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing stream."

APPENDIX.

WESTERN AGENCY.

THE "WESTERN AGENCY OF THE A. H. M. S.," constituting a board of inquiry and reference, for the district embracing the seventeen western counties in the state of New-York, was re-appointed August 23, 1828, composed of the following gentlemen, viz.

*Rev. HENRY AXTELL, D. D., Geneva, Chairman.
Rev. HENRY DWIGHT, Geneva, Treasurer.
Rev. MILES P. SQUIER, Geneva, Corresponding Secretary.
Mr. ABRAHAM B. HALL, Geneva.
Rev. JAMES RICHARDS, D. D., Auburn.
Rev. DIRK C. LANSING, D. D., Auburn.
Rev. HENRY P. STRONG, Phelps.
Rev. ANSEL D. EDDY, Canandaigua.

The following is their THIRD ANNUAL REPORT.

Geneva, May 1st, 1829.

THE Western Agency, in submitting to the Executive Committee of the A. H. M. S., their third Annual Report, would gratefully acknowledge the favour which the Supreme Head of the church and his people have bestowed, this year also, on the work of their hands. Nothing has occurred within our bounds to interrupt the harmony of the friends of Zion in respect to the Home Missionary cause, or to divert them from a united effort in behalf of an object in which they take a common and affectionate interest. In prosecuting the endeared work intrusted to us, we have felt ourselves to be eminently sustained by the prayers, and counsels, and co-operation of the churches and congregations within whose borders our labours have been distributed.

The seasons have been unpropitious; the fruits of the earth were, to a large extent, cut off in this section of country, and an unusual depression experienced in all monied transactions among us, and we anticipated a diminished ratio of increase in the means and missionary labour of the year. But this result has not followed. More labourers have been employed on the field assigned to this board, and more means received from our congregations, this, than any previous year; and we can adopt the apostolic declaration in respect to numbers of them, that "the abundance of their joy, and their (comparative) poverty, have abounded unto the riches of their liberality."

This year sixty-nine missionaries, including the agent, have been employed within this agency, and at stations within the respective counties, as here designated, beginning on our west line.

alphabetical places in the list of missionaries and stations of the parent society. See page 11, &c.]

The aggregate expenditure of the year, in support of these labourers, has been, including the incidental charges at the agency, for postage, printing, and stationary, 5,700 dollars, or a little rising of 30 dollars to each missionary, including the entire expense on the field of conducting the work.

Our receipts for the year, as will be seen by the accompanying papers, have been 6,007 dollars 47 and a half cents, leaving a small balance of about 300 dollars, in the general treasury.

The sources from which aid has been derived are, public collections in churches, and at the monthly concert, organized auxiliary associations, and individual donations.

Ninety-five auxiliaries are now formed within the agency, which continue their regular and efficient contributions in behalf of this cause. A collection was taken up for it, very extensively throughout our congregations, in December and January last, and much has been added by individual donations. The largest public collection was 33 dollars; the largest annuity from any one congregational auxiliary, 34 dollars 25 cents; the largest individual donation 1000 dollars.

The results of this year exhibit a growing interest in favour of the cause of Home Missions, on the part of the friends of the Redeemer, and of intelligent citizens generally, within our bounds. This is a charity in behalf of the poor of their own neighbourhoods. It ministers to the necessities of those to whom they are bound by many ties of sympathy and affection; its beneficial effects rise up under their own eye; it diffuses intelligence and virtue over communities with which they are acquainted; it contributes to the prosperity of their beloved country; they see its importance in the temporal and immortal good of those to whom it sends the preached gospel, and they cheerfully give it their confidence and support.

The blessing of God has attended the labours of our missionaries this year also. The congregations, with few exceptions, have increased and strengthened, at the stations to which they have been appointed, and numbers have been added to the fellowship of the people of God. Revivals of religion have prevailed to some extent. Those congregations which have been most distinguished in this respect are, Sheridan, in Chataque county, North Clarence, in Erie county, Wilson, in Niagara county, Mendon, in Monroe county, Spencer, in Tioga county, and Milan Village and West Groton, on the borders of the counties of Cayuga and Tompkins. The congregations of Ashville, Westfield, Pembroke, Attica, Parma and Greece, Lakeville, and Moscow, and the Union congregation of Bergen, Byron and Clarendon, as the fruits of former revivals, and through the gentle dews of divine influence, have received considerable accessions to the number of the professed children of God among them. It is this attested approbation of the Lord of the harvest, that, more than any thing else, has fixed the affections and sustained the confidence of the friends of Zion, on whose aid we have depended in prosecuting our work. This confidence and these affections we have endeavoured not to disappoint. By a reluctant though indispensable investigation of the qualifications of missionaries, and of the real necessities of applicant congregations, and care in locating new fields of labour; and by reducing all incidental expenses, as far as was consistent with the intelligent and faithful discharge of our trust, we have endeavoured to commend our work to the great Head of the church, to our own consciences, and our helpers in Christ. Our aim has been to unite economy with efficient action, that we might accomplish the most good, with the least means; and while we highly appreciate the spirit which appears prevailingly to have dwelt in those heralds of the gospel connected with us, and rejoice with them in the fruit of their labours, as seen in their quarterly reports, we cannot but desire that they may yet be more universally distinguished, for what may be denominated executive talent, for wise, systematic, and efficient action at the posts of duty and responsibility which they occupy.

An intimate acquaintance, for some years already, with the missionary work in more than a hundred congregations, convinces us that a judicious arrangement of labour, a persevering course of measures, prosecuted with system and vigour, is to none more requisite than to the missionary of the cross, in building up the waste places of Zion. Mere desultory attempts at usefulness are insufficient. Well directed and continuous effort, with the Spirit of God, must do the work. He must preach the word, be instant in season and out of season, and by a wise arrangement of his time, opportunities, and strength, in the pulpit and from house to house, and through the auxiliary channels of influence, endeavour to bring the whole mass of mind within his reach, under the steady action of divine truth, and the word of God will accomplish at his hands, that whereunto it is sent. The seed will take root, and grow up, and ripen into a rich harvest; it shall not disappoint his hope and prayer, and as he has gone forth weeping, bearing precious seed, so shall he doubtless come again rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.

During the year, about thirty new fields of labour have been taken up by this board, where congregations are now organized, and churches planted or revived, to whom the gospel is statedly preached the whole or the half of the time; and though many feeble congregations are yet to be found within our borders, and there yet remains much land to be possessed, we contemplate the period as advancing, when all the destitute communities within our bounds shall be furnished with the messengers of salvation, and wait with thankful hearts on the instructions of the word of God.

In the furtherance of this work, sustained by the prayers and charities of those who love Zion, and the souls of men, we are willing renewedly to engage. Its accomplishment is what we ardently desire, and in affecting it no time should be lost. The character of communities, as well as of individuals, is rapidly forming; the enemy is sowing tares in the field, which should be preoccupied by the good seed. Every principle of duty, of obligation, and of interest, prompts us to united effort, and persevering prayer, until this work is finished, and so much the more as we see the day approaching.

We would call upon the friends of the cause, then, to go up with us to the work. They have cheerfully, efficiently, and promptly met and sustained it another year. We asked only for what, with the best economy, was needed, and this, in full measure, has been given. May we, then, depend on their united and vigorous co-operation for the year to come? The work has pressing claims, and we doubt not they will be ready. Past experience gives as-insurance that they will, and He who sends rain and sunshine, will look down propitiously on the purpose of their hearts, and give the means of help. Thus sustained and encouraged, we cheerfully go forward again in this endeared charity, leaning on Him, whose grace is sufficient for his people under the pressure of every responsibility which his providence throws upon them, and whose strength is made perfect in their weakness.

One much respected missionary has this year been taken away, while just entering the field of his labours. But this is not the extent of our loss. The angel of death has been commissioned among the members of our board. The revered and beloved Axtell, who, from the organization of this agency, presided over it as chairman, has ceased from his earthly labours, and now sleeps in the grave. By the many affecting remembrances of him, which our work recalls, and our deep affliction in his removal from us, and from the church on earth, are we admonished to be diligent in our Master's service, for the time is short. Over the grave of this much lamented servant of God, and devoted friend of the cause for which we are associated, would we say to all who take an interest in its prosecution and accomplishment, "the night is far spent, the day is at hand." Let us, therefore, awake unto righteousness, "for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed."

By order of the Agency,

M. P. SQUIER, Corresponding Secretary.

TERMS OF CONNEXION AND STIPULATION,

Between the American Home Missionary Society and its Auxiliaries, recommended by the Executive Committee.

In the formation of the numerous branches of the national institution, it has been a subject of no little difficulty, to determine upon a plan of co-operation suited to the condition of existing societies in all parts of the United States, and equally adapted to promote the interests of the parent society, and each of its auxiliaries. The Executive Committee have, accordingly, waited for the results of experience, that they might permanently pursue the best method to secure these objects. They are now prepared to recommend with confidence, the following as a plan altogether practicable, and equally suited, as it is designed, to promote the efficiency and harmony of the missionary work in the several states and religious denominations represented in the national society, viz.:

PLAN OF LARGER SOCIETIES.

In those parts of the country where efficient organizations in aid of Home missions do not already exist, the formation of two kinds of societies auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., is desired; the one large, and the other small, and the former to embrace the latter. Each larger society may be formed to embrace the limits of a county, a city, a state, a presbytery, or a synod, as shall be judged most conducive to its activity and efficiency. The objects of all such societies should be to raise funds to furnish, first, all needed aid to the destitute within their own limits, and, secondly, to aid the parent society in extending the Gospel to communities still more needy. To accomplish these objects most effectually, it is important that each society be so small, in extent of territory, that its committee, or executive board, may have a competent knowledge of the claims of the destitute within its limits, while it should be sufficiently large to furnish a field for the operations of an agent.

for the collection of funds, the formation of subsidiary organizations, and to act as its organ of communication with the parent society. For this last purpose, it is judged expedient, that, in all cases where the auxiliary society is sufficiently large to employ a permanent agent, he be also its corresponding secretary.

FORM OF CONSTITUTION,

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

ART. I.—This society shall be known by the name of the Domestic Missionary Society of _____, and shall be auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

ART. II.—This society shall be composed of such individuals as shall contribute annually to its funds, together with the members of the several church and congregational associations for Home missions within the limits of this society.

ART. III.—The officers of the society shall be a president, _____ vice-presidents, a treasurer, and a secretary, to be chosen at the annual meeting. These officers, in connexion with at least one person elected from each of the several associations of gentlemen composing the society, shall constitute a board of directors, of whom not less than five shall be a quorum at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. IV.—It shall be the duty of the board of directors to meet at the call of the president, or as often as shall be necessary for the transaction of business; to fill their own vacancies, to appoint an executive committee, to adopt the most energetic measures in their power to accomplish the object of the society; especially by distributing such publications as may be committed to them by the parent institution, and by deputing some of their number to attend the annual meetings of the several associations, and, in general, by using all suitable means to excite an interest in the cause of Home missions.

ART. V.—The annual receipts of the society, after defraying incidental expenses, shall be paid over to the treasurer of the parent society, with directions as to the section of country in which it shall be expended in missionary labour, should the board deem it important to give such directions. [See resolutions on next page.]

ART. VI.—The society shall meet as often as called by the directors, and annually on the _____ of March, when the officers shall be elected; the accounts of the treasurer, properly audited, shall be presented, and the annual report of the directors received, and when this constitution may be amended by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

ART. VII.—A copy of the constitution, authenticated by the secretary, together with the names, and the residences of the officers annually elected, and also a copy of each annual report, shall be transmitted to the corresponding secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, as early as the first of April in each year.

STIPULATIONS.

For the purpose of producing uniformity in the operations of the larger societies, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., and the better to secure to each the control of its funds and appropriations, the following resolutions are recommended to their adoption; and the executive committee will engage, with every auxiliary adopting them, to perform the stipulations which these resolutions require of the parent society; provided the proposed limits of societies requesting to become auxiliary, on this plan, be such as, in the opinion of this committee, will facilitate the operations of the parent society within the same; and provided these engagements having been formed with the missionary society of a state, or a synod, shall not be so construed as to debar this committee from the liberty of co-operating, if desired, with any county presbyterial, or other society within its limits, acting independently of said larger society.

RESOLUTIONS,

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

1. This society shall pay over to the treasurer of the A. H. M. S. the whole of its income, from time to time, after deducting incidental expenses: provided, however, that the permanent fund* of the society shall for ever remain, as to the power of investment, &c. under its own control; and, provided, also, that the whole, or any part of said income, having been reported as subject to the order of the parent society, shall be allowed to remain, if requested by the directors of this society, in the treasury of the same, for the payment of missionaries and agents, as hereinafter stipulated.

A sufficient number of blank commissions shall be furnished to this society, by the executive committee of the parent society, signed by the chairman and corresponding secretary of the same, which shall be filled and countersigned by the proper officers, and issued on the responsibility of this society.

3. All missionaries shall be paid from the income of this society, in the manner following, (viz.) The directors of this society having reported the income, or receipts of the same, to the parent society, and having requested that so much of the income so reported, as they shall deem necessary to answer the engagements of this society, may be retained for that purpose, the executive committee of the parent society shall, in answer to such request, and without delay, direct the treasurer of the same to issue an order to the directors of this society, to retain the whole, or such portion of the said income, as shall have been thus requested, for the purpose of paying the same as it shall become due to missionaries appointed by this society, under commissions from the parent institution.

4. Should appropriations of aid be needed within the _____ to exceed the amount of the income of this society, such appropriations shall be made directly by the parent society, on the sole responsibility of the same; provided, however, that in all such cases, the advice and recommendation of the directors of this society shall be previously obtained.

5. This society shall be governed in its appropriations, by the general principles which govern the appropriations of the parent society.

6. This society shall appoint no missionaries or agent out of the limits of the same.

7. Agents for the collection of funds for this society, may be appointed by the executive committee of the parent society, with the recommendation or consent of the directors of this auxiliary, and all agents so appointed shall report the amount of their collections, both to the auxiliary and the parent society; and each agent so appointed, shall receive his compensation from this society, in the same manner that the missionaries of the society receive theirs.

* Societies which have no permanent fund, will, of course, omit this stipulation in adopting these resolutions.

Reasons of the foregoing Recommendations.

The above resolutions are in accordance with the spirit of the eighth article of the constitution of the parent society. They have been already adopted by the New-Hampshire Missionary Society, the Vermont Domestic Missionary Society, the Hampshire Missionary Society, Mass., and substantially by a number of other societies, as the basis of their auxiliary connexion with the A. H. M. S. In recommending the same to the adoption of societies which may hereafter become auxiliary, the executive committee of the parent society are influenced by the following considerations:

1. Wherever these resolutions are adopted, they will bring the influence of the parent society to act on its auxiliaries in the matter of raising funds, and thus a principle distinctly avowed in the formation of the national institution, will be most securely guarded, viz.: That local societies should not be superseded, nor impeded in their operations, but strengthened and stimulated. On this plan the agent of each auxiliary will also be the agent of the parent society, and by keeping advised of the operations and necessities of the latter, will be able to acquaint each congregation which he may address, with what the whole country is doing; and the influence of example will be fully felt, while the great national object, by being presented as one and undivided, will assume an importance as much superior to that exhibited by the separate claims of a local society, as the wants of the nation are more extensive than those of a single state or county; and it is found, that when facts are presented as the ground of appeal, Christians and patriots are every where disposed to contribute in proportion to the magnitude of the work to be accomplished by their beneficence. In this way the resources of each local society may be greatly increased by a connexion with the national institution.

2. By these stipulations, each auxiliary society is left to the independent and unembarrassed exercise of all its rights in the business of appropriating its own funds to the relief of the needy within its limits, while it secures to itself the additional advantage of directing other appropriations made by the parent society within the same bounds. And this is an advantage which will be very gladly yielded to auxiliary presbyteries, synods and societies, whose knowledge of the work to be done within their own limits is, in all cases, much more minute and particular than can be possessed through the medium of correspondence by the national institution.

3. These stipulations, wherever they shall be adopted, will put it out of the power of the national society to contravene the wishes of those whose business it is to manage the affairs, and guard the purity of the churches in the different sections of our country. It can plant no missionary in stations yielded to the supervision of an auxiliary society, presbytery or synod, without the approbation of the same, and when a missionary or agent shall cease to be approved by the auxiliary, the parent society will be bound to recall him, or withdraw his support. Thus the national institution claims to be the servant of the churches wherever it may be permitted to act in the benevolent work for which it has been formed and sustained. It pretends to no ecclesiastical authority. It interferes not with the discipline, nor the peculiar views of any section of the church, but desires to act through its auxiliaries, and to be directed in its operations by their united counsels. It will aid feeble congregations in the support of such ministers only as shall have been approved by the ecclesiastical bodies with which they are connected. This society has no charter, and no funded property. It has its being only in the confidence and co-operation of the Christian public; and should it ever, through unfaithfulness to its trust, cease to deserve these, its auxiliaries may withdraw them, and the national society must cease to exist.

4. The effect of this whole plan, should it become universal in the churches represented in this society, will be the same which was contemplated in the formation of the national institution.

It will prevent the interference and cross-action of a number of independent societies, occupying portions of the same field without concert, and without agreement. The state synodical, presbyterial, and other local societies, will be confined in their appropriations, each to its own limits, and as fast as they are able, they will supply their own destitute; while the national society, gathering strength from the increased resources of its auxiliaries, will be the servant of all in conveying their surplus charities to the new and increasing fields of desolation in our frontier settlements. For this service, the national society, sustained by the co-operation here recommended, will possess peculiar advantages. Its office will be the centre of intelligence on the subject of Home missions, and the medium through which the numerous local societies may communicate with each other. And what gives life and energy to this whole system is, that the national society, thus sustained, is enabled to employ permanent officers, and be, in effect, constantly in session. This is an advantage which can be enjoyed by no local society, but which is indispensable to the prompt and successful prosecution of the work of missions on a field so extensive and diversified as remains to be occupied in this country.

This plan is also suited to produce a uniformity of operation, and the missionaries of the auxiliaries being also the missionaries of the parent society, will be reported as such in our annual alphabetical list, with appropriate marks to denote by what auxiliary society they have been supported. Thus the influence of each auxiliary will be embodied, and an annual report presented which will embrace the doings of all; the local societies will no longer be regarded as rivals of each other, but fellow labourers in the same field, and the missionaries as belonging to the same family.

SMALLER SOCIETIES.

Within the limits of each larger society, there should be organized auxiliary societies or associations. Of these associations, it is recommended that there be formed two in each town, parish, or congregation, the one composed of males, and the other of females; and that they adopt the following Rules for the Government of Church, or Congregational Associations, or Societies for Home Missions.

1. This association shall be called the [or Female] Missionary Association, or Society of Church, [or Congregation,] auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of . . .]

2. Every person who shall contribute annually to the funds, shall be a member.

3. The affairs of the association shall be conducted by a first and second director, [or directress,] a secretary, a treasurer, and collectors, who shall be chosen annually, and together shall constitute a committee.

4. It shall be the duty of the committee to meet at least once in three months, to appoint assistant collectors, and transact such other business as may come before them.

5. The first director, [or directress,] and in case of his [or her] absence, the second director, [or directress,] shall preside in all meetings of the association, and shall have power to call special meetings at pleasure.

The secretary shall keep the records, and manage the correspondence.

The treasurer shall take charge of the money collected, and after deducting incidental expenses, shall pay the same to the American Home Missionary Society, [or to the Auxiliary Society of .]

It shall be the duty of the collectors to solicit and receive contributions. For this purpose they shall make a suitable division of their labours, call upon the individuals within their respective limits, take the names of persons disposed to contribute, together with the sums which they will give for the year, and shall pay the amount of their collections to the treasurer, previous to the next annual meeting of the association.

6. The Association shall meet annually, on the second Monday in March of each year, when the Report shall be read, and the election of officers held; and when these rules may be altered by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

7. The Annual Report of this Association shall be transmitted by the Secretary, to the Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society [or the Auxiliary Society of] immediately after the annual meeting of the Association.

A SUMMARY

Of the Operations of several Domestic Missionary Societies.

We regret that it is not in our power to furnish a complete summary of the number of missionaries employed by all the Domestic Missionary Societies in this country. But, in relation to several important Societies, we have not been able to procure the necessary facts.* The following is selected from such Reports as have come to hand, and embraces only the missionaries of such societies as are not included in the Report of the National Society; viz. :—

* The secretaries of all domestic missionary societies in the United States, friendly to the object of the national society, whether auxiliary or not, are respectfully requested to forward their reports to the Cor. Secretary of the A. H. M. S., that a more perfect summary of their doings may be furnished in our next annual report.

Missionaries.

The Board of Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, according to an official statement dated February 25, 1829, had employed seventy-five missionaries within the nine months previous to that date. Their number within the year is probably about 100

The Missionary Society of the Reformed Dutch Church, in the year ending May, 1829, employed fifteen missionaries, and aided twenty congregations in the support of their pastors, making in all 35

The Massachusetts Missionary Society, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., in the year ending May 27, 1823, employed sixty-one missionaries. Their report for the last year has not yet been made, but their number is doubtless greater, perhaps 70

The Western Domestic Missionary Society, of the state of New-York, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., year ending May 9, 1829, 64

The Connecticut Missionary Society, year ending February, 1829, about 25

The New-Hampshire Missionary Society, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., year ending September, 1823, 12

The Missionary Society of New-Jersey, year ending October, 1828, probably 10

The United Auxiliary Missionary Society of Virginia, year ending April 16, 1829, 8

South Carolina Domestic Missionary Society, probably 10

The Indiana Missionary Society, year ending October 15, 1823, 4

WESTERN DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Extract from a letter from Rev. J. F. Schermerhorn, Corresponding Secretary, pro tem. of the W. D. M. S., dated Utica, May 9, 1829, to the Corresponding Secretary of the Parent Society.

The Western Domestic Missionary Society of the state of N. York, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., Report:

That they have great cause for gratitude to the Lord, for the continued manifestations of his favours to this institution, in inclining the hearts of his people to contribute so liberally towards its support, as to enable them during the last year, to increase the number of their missionaries, and thus extend their operations and field of usefulness. We have had in the field, in the course of the last year, sixty-four missionaries, who have preached, statedly, in upwards of one hundred congregations. The number of persons received into the different churches, and hopefully converted under their labours, cannot be precisely ascertained; the committee not having, as yet, received reports from all of the missionaries. As far as we can ascertain, about 150 have been received into the churches, and upwards of 200 hope they have experienced religion. Four of our missionaries have been settled as pastors of the churches where they labour; and after another year, we trust they will need no further aid from us. Several meeting-houses have been finished, and others have been commenced under favourable auspices. Three new churches have been organized and two or three religious societies, or congregations, have been formed, in places where we hope soon to see churches organized.

The amount of expenditures and appropriations, this year, has been $6324.80, and the receipts and subscriptions, as reported at the meeting was $6431,28; since which, has been received $75, making $6506,28, leaving unappropriated, $171,48.

FROM THE LAST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY, DATED SEPT. 1828.

"One of the most important measures of your last annual meeting having been to form an auxiliary connexion with 'The American Home Missionary Society,' it may be proper to state, that the board have found this connexion, so far as it has yet been developed, to be highly pleasant and profitable. It affords us the strengthening of an extended missionary fellowship, and the lights of superior experience; and it is calculated to introduce more method into the business part of our society's operations.

"The Parent Society now commissions our missionaries, and furnishes plans for their reports, as well as other directions—its monthly publication called 'The Home Missionary and Pastor's Journal,' is gratuitously sent us; our doings are also recognised by them in their annual report, and we cannot but think that the whole operation will be found to have a benign influence, when once it shall have been more fully carried into effect."

NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY,

Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. From the last Annual Report, dated Sept. 1828.

"It will be recollected, that the New-Hampshire Missionary Society, at its last anniversary, became an auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society. And it was with no small degree of mortification, that, within one year after this connexion was formed, the committee of the board had occasion to approve applications to the parent institution for aid in building the desolations of New-Hampshire. But from the exhausted state of your treasury, and the vast importance of having the Evangelical Ministry established in the manufacturing villages above named,* the committee thought proper to approve an application from each of those places, to the American Home Missionary Society in the city of New-York: and the executive committee of that institution granted $100 to each of those applicants, towards the establishment of their pastors, and their support for the present year.

This favour from the parent institution we gratefully acknowledge. It was seasonable, and to those infant establishments, beyond conception important. The present consequences are glorious, and the final result, eternity will tell."

In February, the corresponding secretary stated that, through the patronage of the society, six pastors had been settled in the state since the anniversary in September last.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY,

Auxiliary to the A. H. M. Society. From the Annual Report, presented June 25, 1828.

There are now in this state 92 Congregational ministers who have a pastoral charge; 12 have been settled since our last annual meeting, and 56 still remain destitute. Of these Churches, about one fourth have the ability to provide for themselves; leaving 40 churches, and as many destitute places where there are no churches, which must be aided by the hand of charity, or continue without the stated means of religious instruction, a great while to come. Much indeed has been done in the twenty years past. The extended operations of this society, and its marked success, have surpassed the most sanguine expectations of its early friends. More than half of the Congregational ministers now settled in the state, have been in its employ; and most of these have been aided in their establishment or continuance in the churches to which they minister.

In January, 1829, the corresponding secretary of the Maine M. S. wrote as follows:

"Fifteen Congregational ministers have been settled in this state, since the annual meeting in June last; and seven are now under a call, the most of whose ordinations are appointed for next month. Of these twenty-two, fifteen have charitable aid. Besides this, there are now eighteen who are preaching as candidates, several of whom are in a train of settlement. Of these eighteen last mentioned, about three fourths of those that settle must be aided."

SIXTH REPORT OF THE UNITED AUXILIARY MISSIONARY SOCIETY, V_A.

"The operations of the United Auxiliary Missionary Society, during the last year, if compared with those of former years, are suited to inspire us with lively gratitude to Him who hath helped us thus far, and to justify our mutual congratulations on the progress of that cause which is dear to us all. The amount of exertion in the work of domestic missions, has been greater than ever before; and He who gives the increase has crowned those exertions with more abundant success. But if we take for our standard, the plans proposed at our last annual meeting, and then sanctioned by the society, and the hopes then entertained, we are compelled to acknowledge, that our expectations have not been realized. Nor ought we to make this acknowledgment, without emotions of penitence and humility. The standard of exertion then proposed, was not more elevated, than our obligations to the Lord Jesus Christ, the talents he has intrusted to us, and the claims of our destitute brethren, justify. If then, as a society, we have fallen below it, it is because we have not made all the exertion we ought.

The whole amount of contributions to the society during the last year, was $1,560 46. By a comparison of the receipts of the last year with those of the preceding one, it will be seen that they are more than double.

The whole amount of payments from the treasury, exclusive of the book fund, which is entirely a separate concern, during the same time, was $1,254 40. The committee are under engagements to missionaries, to the amount of $658 33. Most of these are engagements now nearly complete, and will very soon become due. So that the actual expenditure of the year has amounted to nearly $1,900, and overrun the receipts more than $300. The committee have employed every suitable missionary they could obtain, believing that the urgent wants of the destitute, and the sentiments of the Christian community, would bear them out in doing so. But we have by no means been able to meet all the calls for aid. Urgent applications of this kind have been lying unanswered for more than a year, because we could not obtain suitable missionaries. Your committee have had under their direction during a part or the whole of the last year, eight preachers of the gospel, to whose support they have contributed, and who have laboured in the counties of Albemarle, Buckingham, Charlotte, Amelia, Nottoway and Brunswick, and at Old Point Comfort and the town of Portsmouth."

At the meeting of the society, April 16, 1829, it was Resolved,

1. That it is the duty of this society to attempt to raise funds for the work of domestic missions, to the amount of $3000, for the present year.

2. That the subscribers to the extra effort last year, be invited to continue or increase their subscriptions for the present year.

3. That it be given in charge to the executive committee, to take prompt and efficient measures to present this object to the Directors of the society, and the friends of domestic missions through the bounds of the Presbytery.

On motion—Resolved, That the executive committee be requested to invite all the missionary societies, within the bounds of this Presbytery, to aid us, by their funds, in the work committed to us by the Presbytery.

SABBATH SCHOLARS' MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION,

Of Sabbath school No. 5, New-York, Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S.

The first report of this interesting association exhibited an income of $113,56. The second report, presented April 8, 1829, states the income of the last year at $243,72. This sum was raised by the joint efforts of a male and a female branch. The following is extracted from the report.

"The children manifest a willingness to deny themselves some of the luxuries which children of their age value, that they may send the blessings of the gospel to those less favoured than they, and who are in danger of perishing for lack of the bread of life.

"Your committee have still pursued the plan of receiving and distributing Tracts, Books, &c. The collections have amounted to 4539 pages of tracts, 4 Bibles, 2 Testaments, and 351 books of various descriptions.

"The number of contributors to the Association has been about 500. The largest amount received from one person, $5, the least, 1 cent, and the average 47 cents."

FOURTH ANNIVERSARY.

THE American Home Missionary Society held its Fourth Anniversary in the Murray-street Presbyterian Church, New-York, on the evening of Wednesday, May 12, 1830. The Hon. Stephen Van Rensselaer, LL. D., President of the Society, took the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. Ezra Fisk, D. D., of Goshen, N. Y.

The Treasurer's account, with the certificate of the Auditor, was read by Mr. Knowles Taylor, Treasurer.

The Rev. Absalom Peters, Corresponding Secretary of the Society, read the Fourth Annual Report; after which the following resolutions were adopted, viz.:

1. On motion of the Rev. Frederick A. Ross, of Tennessee, seconded by the Rev. C. C. Cuyler, D. D. of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.,

Resolved, That the Report, now read, be accepted and printed by the Committee.

2. On motion of the Rev. Benjamin H. Rice, of New-York, seconded by the Rev. William Wisner, of Ithaca, N. Y.,

Resolved, That the multiplication of the Society's missionaries, and the blessings which have attended their labours, demand fervent gratitude to God from every friend to the best interests of men.

3. On motion of the Rev. Richard S. Storrs, of Massachusetts, seconded by the Rev. John H. Rice, D. D., of Virginia, Resolved, That this Society regards the present exhausted state of its treasury as the best of evidence that the Executive Committee have well appreciated the wants of the 500 congregations which they have aided, while it furnishes a ground of appeal to the Christian public, which ought to enlist the more fervent prayers, and the more liberal contributions, of all who desire to see the salvation of our country hastened in its time.

4. On motion of the Rev. Thomas H. Skinner, D. D., of Philadelphia, seconded by the Rev. Thomas MacAuley, D. D., LL. D., Philadelphia,

Resolved, That the light which the publications and reports of this Society have shed on the spiritual condition of our frontier states and territories, furnishes increasing evidence of the adaptedness of its plan to the wants of our common country.

In support of the foregoing resolutions, addresses were made by the Rev. Mr. Ross, Rev. Mr. Rice, Rev. Mr. Wisner, Rev. Mr. Storrs, Rev. Dr. Skinner, and Rev. Dr. Mac Auley.

The audience was then dismissed, with a benediction by the Rev. Mr. Rice, and the Society proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year, and unanimously made choice of the following, viz. :

CONSTITUTION

OF THE

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 1. This Society shall be denominated "THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY."

ART. 2. The great object of this Society shall be to assist congregations that are unable to support the Gospel Ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute, within the United States.

ART. 3. The Officers of the Society shall be a President, Vice Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, a Corresponding Secretary, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors, who shall be annually appointed by the Society; and who, together with the Directors for life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. 4. The Officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of thirteen, (including the Treasurer, the Corresponding Secretary, and the Recording secretary,) residing in the City of New-York and its vicinity; seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened. This Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society; shall appoint Missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labours; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing Missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the Institution may require; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

ART. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds annually to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

ART. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society by contributing annually to its funds; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for life; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for life; and any person, on the payment of a sum, which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for life. An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for life; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute him a Director for life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Corresponding Secretary a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this society, shall be entitled to a Missionary, or Missionaries, to labour in such field as it may designate; at least to the amount of its contributions; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The Officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be ex-officio Directors; and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of this Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the City of New-York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

ART. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution, without a vote of two thirds of the Members present, at an annual meeting, nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

FOURTH REPORT.

IT is a characteristic of every enterprise which has God for its author, to hold on its way. When the Holy Spirit moves the friends of Christ to co-operate with himself in accomplishing any one of the eternal purposes of his love, he confers upon their influence a permanence answerable to that of its object. As God works in them to will and to do of his good pleasure, they work; and when they die, the Spirit that wrought in them still lives, and constrains others to enter into their labours. Thus the enterprise goes on. Its object is as immutable as its Author; and though they that serve in its accomplishment do not continue by reason of death, their instrumentality becomes perpetual by the successive efforts of others influenced and blessed by the same Spirit.

Such are the considerations with which it is deemed suitable to introduce the FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT of the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY. While the work which it has accomplished since the last anniversary has surpassed that of any preceding year—and its history exhibits increasing evidence that its plan and doings are owned of God, yet the Executive Committee have felt it to be a year of peculiar afflictions. Since they last met the Society, they have been called to weep with the wide circle of them that wept, when one of their own number, a distinguished and beloved minister of Christ, in the full tide of his extended and still increasing usefulness, was suddenly removed out of his place.

The Rev. MATTHIAS BRUEN was among the founders of this Society, and remained, to the end of his days, its undeviating friend. He comprehended and appreciated the importance of its plans, and bore its interests on his heart. While his life was devoted to every good work, and his influence was extensively felt in the promotion of kindred objects of benevolence in this and other countries, there was none which commanded so large a share of his affections, and none to which his continued labours seemed so essential, as the cause of Home Missions. Having been intimately associated with the previous Missionary Societies of this city, and having sustained the office of Corresponding Secretary of the United Domestic Missionary Society, out of which the National Society was formed, his experience and extensive acquaintance, as well as his quick perception, his practical wisdom, his facility in business, and the purity of his purposes, fitted him to bear an important part in the counsels and doings of the Committee; and his qualifications for these services were not greater than were the punctuality, interest, and industry, with which he discharged them. This amiable man, in the freshness of his youthful vigour, died on the morning of the Sabbath, September 6, 1829, in the thirty-seventh year of his age. As we followed him to his burial, each of us felt that we might have been better spared from the demands of this high and holy enterprise.

But He who sitteth in the Heavens, and who loves the cause of Missions infinitely better than we do, saw that we needed yet another voice from the throne. Scarcely had we ceased our lingering by the grave of Bruen, when another fellow labourer, equally dear to us, and equally valued for his devotedness to the object of the Society, and his qualifications to render it important service, was summoned to his final account.

PETER HAWES, Esq., late Treasurer of the Society, and one of the most judicious, punctual, and laborious members of its Committee, died September 30th, 1829, after a short illness, aged sixty-one years. He, too, had been with us from the beginning; and, as Treasurer of the United Domestic Missionary Society, as well as of this, the duties of both which he performed with great faithfulness and without charge, his life had been, and still appeared to be, of inestimable importance to the cause. But the sweetness of his spirit, and the maturity of his piety, had already evinced his preparation for the employments of a better world; and, doubtless, infinite wisdom perceived that the great end of the Society would be more promoted, by the chastisement of his death, than by the invaluable labours and counsels of his life. Thus, in a single month, in the midst of the year, the Committee were bereft of two of their most endeared and useful associates. "They rested from their labours;" but the Society moved on. Its agents were pleading its cause; its missionaries, in twenty-two states and territories, and in five hundred congregations, were preaching the gospel to the poor. These labours, the means by which they have been sustained, and the blessings that have attended them, it is now the privilege of us who survive to report. In doing this, we first lay before the Society a full

List of the congregations, and fields of labour occupied within the last year, with the names of missionaries and agents, annexed in alphabetical order, in the following

NUMBER OF MISSIONARIES AND CONGREGATIONS AIDED.

From the preceding table it appears that the number of Missionaries and Agents employed by the Society, during the last year, is 392, and the number of congregations and missionary districts which have been aided in their support is 500. Of the missionaries and agents above enumerated, 226 were in commission at the commencement of the year, the terms of whose previous engagements have since been fulfilled, and 151 of the same have been re-appointed. The remaining 166 have been new appointments during the year, making in all, 392.

EXTENT OF FIELDS OF LABOUR.

Of the above missionaries, 240 are settled as pastors, or are statedly engaged in single congregations, 87 divide their labours, either as pastors or stated supplies between two or three congregations, and 65, including agents, are allowed to exercise their ministry in larger fields. From these statements, it appears that a large majority of the missionaries employed have been stationed in single congregations, or in congregations so contiguous as to receive a stated supply, with more or less frequency, from the labours of a single minister. In this, the committee have steadily adhered to the original object of the society, which was, to sustain the permanent administration of the gospel, in such townships and parishes, as need aid in the support of ministers of their own choice. But this object could not, in every case, be attained at once; and in recent and remote settlements, where religious societies are unformed, it has been judged expedient to allow the missionary a larger extent of country, as his circuit, with a view to his ultimate settlement in some one or more of the congregations which may have been gathered under his ministry.

MANNER OF APPOINTMENTS.

In such fields, also, the committee have found it necessary to commission their missionaries, without regular applications from the people, and to assume their entire support, including such sums as they derive from the fields on which they labour. This, indeed, is the only method by which ministers can be introduced into those sections of the country which are the most destitute, and where congregations are not yet organized. No less than 42 of our missionaries, therefore, during the last year, have been thus appointed, which is a much larger number than had been sent out on the sole responsibility of the society in any previous year. These, however, are but a small proportion of the whole, while as a general rule, in places where the state of society has been such as to render it practicable for the people to apply, the committee have waited for a full expression of the wishes of the congregations needing assistance, before making their appointments. Thus the individuals, in whose support aid has been granted, have first been ascertained to be the chosen ministers of the people where they have been appointed to labour.

PROPORTION OF MISSIONARIES AND CONGREGATIONS AIDED IN EACH STATE.

On the foregoing plan of granting commissions, it is evident that the number of appointments in the different sections of the country, must bear some proportion to the interest manifested by the people to secure the blessings of a preached gospel, and to the character of their wants as made known to the committee. Those states and territories, therefore, whose correspondence has most clearly developed their necessities and prospects, will be found to have been best served by the society. Add to the above considerations the fact, that much has of necessity been left to the choice of the missionaries as to what portion of the great field they would occupy, and the reasons are manifest, why some states have been aided in a much larger amount than others. It is because the auxiliary societies in those states have raised more abundant means, and by their constitutional right of dictating the appropriation of their own funds to the extent of their necessities, have furnished increased facilities to the operations of the parent society, and greater inducements to ministers to enter upon their destitute fields. Thus the locations of missionaries have been governed, in a great measure, by the efficiency with which auxiliary societies and needy congregations have taken care to provide for the destitute, within their own limits, as may be seen by the following

AMOUNT OF LABOUR PERFORMED.

Distributed, as in the foregoing table, in 22 states and territories, the missionaries and agents of this society, within those portions of the last year covered by their appointments, have performed the full amount of ministerial labour which would employ a succession of individuals 274 years.

ECONOMY IN EXPENDITURES.

By a reference to the treasurer's account of disbursements it will be seen that the above amount of service has been performed at an expense to the society of $154 for each year of ministerial labour, including office rent, and all the incidental expenses of the society, while the whole amount expended during the last year, if equally apportioned to the 392 missionaries employed, would average only $108 paid to each. These facts exhibit, in a striking light, the economy with which the plan of this society secures the object at which it aims. The expense which it incurs is not worthy to be compared with the blessings attained. But economical as this method of doing good manifestly is, yet it will be readily seen, that, numerous as the missionaries of the society now are, and extended as its operations have become, a large annual expenditure is requisite to sustain them. To enable the committee to meet this increasing demand, they have hitherto depended principally on the following

SOURCES OF INCOME.

Individual contributions and donations made directly to the Parent Society, are becoming annually more numerous, as the plan and usefulness of the society are more extensively known; and we are happy to state, that in many instances, they are increasing in amount. The largest amount contributed by a single individual, during the last year, has been $1275. Under this, it has been our happiness to acknowledge donations of almost every amount from $1000, to the widow's "two mites," and the little child's contribution to the box of charity. These have afforded encouraging indications of an extended public sympathy in the object of the society, while many pastors and churches have testified their interest in its work of love, by collections taken up particularly at the monthly concert for prayer, and on the day of annual thanksgiving. But the largest amount submitted to the disposal of the committee, from any one source has been derived from

AUXILIARY SOCIETIES AND ASSOCIATIONS.

These have increased during the last year from 241 to 273. The following auxiliaries stand the highest on the list of contributors to the Parent Society, viz :

The Western Agency in the State of New-York, . . .	$4,384 53
The Maine Missionary Society,	3,493 71
The Vermont Domestic Missionary Society,	3,201 29
The New-Hampshire Missionary Society,	1,894 74
The Miss. Association in Bowery Presb. Church, N. Y.	1,000 00
The Male Association in the Cedar-st. Presb. Ch., N. Y.	949 00
“ “ “ in the 5th Presb. Ch., Philadelphia,	523 62
The Hampshire Missionary Society, Massachusetts, . .	500 00
The Male Assoc. in the Bleecker-st. Presb. Church, N. Y.	611 00
The Male Association in the Brick Presb. Church, N. Y.	468 00
The Sab. School Miss. Association in Cedar-st. Ch. N. Y.	200 00

Several of the above auxiliaries, on account of the extent of their operations, deserve an additional notice in this place.

The WESTERN AGENCY, in the state of New-York, embracing the 17 western counties in the state, continues, as heretofore, to take the lead in the amount of business which it has accomplished. Though its collections the last year, have been less than those of the preceding year, it is to be attributed to temporary embarrassments rather than to any diminution of interest in the cause. The number of missionaries employed on that field is 67, and the agency assure us of the hearty co-operation of the churches in sustaining their efforts. [See appendix.]

The MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY has sustained 38 missionaries within its bounds, and much increased its income during the last year ; while the Parent Society, by the appropriation of a part of the funds derived from the Mass. Miss. Society, have been enabled to support 9 more on that field, making in all 47. The Secretary assures us that the aspect of their religious concerns was never better; and it is hoped that this enterprising society will soon be able to sustain the work of supplying all the destitute in that state, and add something to the strength of the Parent Society, to aid the needy on the other border of the nation.

The VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY has also increased its operations during the last year. Its number of missionaries is 27, who are in general sustaining their positions with good effect. The Secretary writes, that "no recent revivals have been reported from these stations, though in some parts of our state they are now enjoyed in great strength. The temperance cause has been almost universally successful, and some new meeting-houses have been erected."

The NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY has come into active co-operation with the Parent Society during the last year, and has aided in the support of 28 missionaries, under our commissions, in that state. The Directors are pushing their enterprise with a laudable zeal, and with much encouragement.

The SABBATH SCHOLARS' MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION of the schools connected with the Cedar-street Presbyterian church, New-York, has furnished the entire aid granted by the Parent Society to two of its missionaries during the last year, and have resolved to assume the support of another for the year to come. This association, on account of its peculiarity, as well as the energy and discretion with which it has been conducted, has been regarded with deep interest by the Executive Committee. In three years, it has paid to the Parent Society $525, while its example has stimulated other Sabbath school scholars, in other churches, to adopt a similar organization to exert their youthful energies in so good a work. An association recently formed in the Sabbath schools connected with the Scotch Presbyterian church in Cedar-street, has already assumed the support of one missionary in a frontier station, and it is earnestly hoped that many such organizations will evince that even the children of our churches may do much to advance the cause of benevolent effort.

The Committee cannot conclude this review of the sources of the Society's income, without briefly noticing their monthly periodical, denominated

THE HOME MISSIONARY AND AMERICAN PASTOR'S JOURNAL.

This publication has been regularly issued during the last year, and the committee have reason to believe that it has essentially aided the cause of the society. Five thousand copies of each monthly number have been printed and circulated throughout the United States; while the number of subscribers has been constantly increasing since the commencement of the work. They are now sufficiently numerous to defray the expenses of its publication, and enable the committee to distribute a few copies gratuitously to the missionaries, the officers of auxiliary societies, and others, as the interests of the institution seem to demand. Thus widely circulated, it has borne to a multitude of readers in all parts of the country fresh intelligence every month of the doings of the society, and has doubtless been a means, by the light which it has diffused and the motives it has conveyed, of increasing the income to our treasury far beyond the amount received in payment of subscriptions, while it has furnished an accumulation of facts in relation to the moral condition and wants of our country, which must continue to act with increasing power on the public mind.

The first number of the third volume of this work was issued on the first of May instant, and the publication will be continued, though in an enlarged and improved form, at the same low price as heretofore. ($1 per an num.) It is not doubted that the religious public will avail themselves still more generally of the various information which it contains by increasing its number of subscribers, and thus extending its circulation.

STATE OF THE TREASURY.

From the treasurer's account, it appears that the receipts of the society the last year have exceeded those of the preceding year $6,932 13, while its expenditures have increased $15,614 54. The treasury is now overdrawn $84 11, and the amount of engagements to missionaries and agents now in the field is $31,170.

These engagements the committee are pledged to fulfil within the coming twelve months. And to the members of the society, and the Christian public generally, they look with unshaken confidence, under God, to enable them to redeem this extensive pledge. In entering into these engagements, the committee have not been unmindful of their high responsibilities. They have therefore maintained the strictest regard to economy on the one hand, and have made no appropriation which they could withhold without doing violence to every Christian feeling, and none to a larger amount than seemed absolutely necessary to the attainment of the object in view. On the other hand, they have not dared to reject the applications of the needy in a single instance, in which, after the most careful examination, it has appeared to their satisfaction that the petition of the applicant was such as the Christian public ought to grant. Their maxim has been, that "what ought to be done, can be done." They have, therefore, most of all been careful to keep the amount and the direction of their pledges plainly within the limits of that eternal obligation, which God has imposed upon the strong to bear the burdens of the weak; and then they have not hesitated to encourage the needy with the pledge of assistance, while they hold themselves responsible to solicit the much indulged Christians of the older states, and of the more wealthy churches, to do what the immutable principles of justice demand, on behalf of the destitute. These demands the churches will not reject. The liberality with which they have sustained the doings of this society up to the present time, confirms the confidence of the committee in the truth of this position.

The voice of the churches and the language of the providence of God in the signs of the times, are that the destitute in this land shall not long continue to die for the lack of vision.

The committee are aware that the amount of their present pledges exceeds, by several thousand dollars, the amount exhibited at any former anniversary. At the close of each previous year, there have been reported several thousand dollars in the treasury, while the amount of engagements remaining to be fulfilled has never exceeded $25,000. This year, as has been stated, we present to the society a treasury overdrawn, and an amount of engagements remaining to be fulfilled of $31,170.

This increased balance in engagements against the society may be attributed principally to two causes. First, embarrassments of the mercantile and manufacturing interests of the country generally, during the last year, have diminished the ability of the friends of the common cause to contribute to this and other benevolent institutions. The same has operated to increase the wants of the needy, and multiply their applications for aid. Thus, the two-fold effect has been produced, of lessening the income and increasing the expenditures of the society.

The only remaining cause, which we would name, of the present disproportion between the means and the pledges of the committee, is the special effort of the religious community to sustain the American Bible Society, in its noble resolution to supply each of the destitute families in the United States with a copy of the Scriptures within two years. This has doubtless diverted some of the gifts of the benevolent from the Home Missionary, and other charitable societies.

But in these causes of present embarrassment, the committee see nothing to discourage, but much to strengthen the confidence of the friends of the society in the favour of God, and in its continued and increasing efficiency and usefulness. The first of the causes named is of course temporary in its operation, and may be regarded as already in a great measure removed, by the returning prosperity of the mercantile and other pecuniary interests of our wide spread population. The other cause will be temporary in its present effect, and will ultimately result in the promotion of each of the other enterprises of benevolence, which it has tended for a season to embarrass. The Bible, when actually placed in the hands of every reader, will produce its fruits. Many that read it will learn the value and the obligation of its ordinances; and that generous enterprise, which the last year has demanded so much of the benevolent to put it in circulation, will doubtless increase the ability, both of them that have given and of them that receive, to contribute still more liberally to sustain the preaching of its doctrines.

Add to the above considerations, the fact that the income of the last year, though less than the expenditure, has still been greater by nearly $7000 than that of any previous year, and that the work accomplished has been greater. The plan of the society, also, is no longer to be regarded in the light of an experiment, but has become established in the public confidence. The present embarrassments of its treasury, therefore, will be viewed by its friends only as an argument for their increased liberality to replenish it. And whether it be not even more a privilege than a duty, to aid in extending the benign influence of this society throughout the nation, the friends of its object will judge, when they shall have contemplated the following ADDITIONAL RESULTS OF THE OPERATIONS OF THE LAST YEAR.

SABBATH SCHOOLS AND BIBLE CLASSES.

From a careful review of the correspondence of the missionaries, it is found that they have reported, under their supervision, within the last year, 369 Sabbath schools. These have been conducted with different degrees of efficiency and success, as the state of society, the facility of procuring teachers, and the zeal with which they have been prosecuted, have been various, in the numerous congregations aided. The number of pupils embraced in them all has not been accurately reported; but, judging from the data which have been furnished, we safely estimate them at not less than 19,000. So many children have been brought under the influence of familiar religious instruction in those numerous nurseries of piety, which, in many instances, owe their existence to the labours and exertions of our missionaries.

Bible classes have also been conducted in most of the congregations aided. These have been under the immediate instruction of the missionaries themselves, and by many have been regarded as constituting the most interesting and encouraging department of their labour. In these little circles, as well as in the Sabbath schools, several revivals of religion have had their commencement, in which many, both of the teachers and the taught, have been savingly benefited. The number of Bible classes reported is 203, which are estimated to contain at least 5,500 attendants.

OTHER BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS.

The details exhibited under this head in our last Annual Report would doubtless justify the inference that the addition since made to the number of the society's labourers has proportionally increased their influence in promoting the general cause of benevolence. This inference is happily accordant with the fact.

In common with other friends of the Bible, the missionaries of this society have, perhaps without exception, engaged with zeal in the special effort of the American Bible Society. Many of them have made laudable efforts to supply all the destitute within their own fields of labour ; while the influence of some has been extensively felt in increasing the efficiency of state and county societies auxiliary to the National Institution.

Societies also auxiliary to the American Tract Society have been reported in most of the stations, while the missionaries have continued, as heretofore, to acknowledge the benefit derived in the prosecution of their work, from the distribution of tracts among the people of their charge. Their influence in this respect has been greatly promoted by the continued liberality of the American Tract Society in Boston, which has furnished to several of our missionaries many thousand pages of tracts within the last year. These have been gratefully received and actively distributed.

It cannot be doubted, also, that the general operations of this society, its publications, and the reports of its missionaries, have continued to promote in an increasing degree the cause of charitable education for the Gospel ministry.

By these means, the reiterated cry of the south and the west for hundreds of ministers more than it has been in the power of the society to obtain, has been kept before the public mind ; and of the multitude of young men who have been brought to the knowledge of the Saviour through the instrumentality of our missionaries, many, it is to be presumed, will be induced to seek suitable preparation to enter into the work of the ministry, in fields so full of interest and promise.

Nor has the cause of Foreign Missions been forgotten. The churches aided, have, perhaps, without a single exception, united in the general concert of prayer, and many have consecrated of their poverty, a few mites to the cause of the heathen ; while the reports of the missionaries generally have evinced a spirit which identifies them with the number of those who seek the conversion of the whole world.

The sanctification of the Sabbath also, and the cause of Temperance, have continued to enlist the sympathies and call forth the zealous exertions of all who have laboured in the cause of this society.

In relation to the former, the example and the preaching of 392 ministers of the gospel in 500 congregations, could not fail to be extensively felt, while in regard to the latter, they have participated warmly and with surprising effect in that instrumentality which, within the last year, has wrought a change so great and extraordinary in the public mind, and in the practice of tens of thousands of our countrymen. Hardly a missionary who has been long enough on the field to make his first quarterly return, has failed to assure the committee, that the cause of Temperance, under his labours, was gaining ground ; and many have reported the formation, increase and great usefulness of temperance societies, on the principle of total abstinence from the use of intoxicating drinks. The number of such societies reported within the last year, is 164.

We might add to this enumeration of good influences exerted on other departments of the great cause which is beginning to enlist the benevolence of the church, and might thus recommend this society to the patronage and the prayers of all who desire the universal extension of the blessings which accompany that ordinance of God which is for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ, and the conversion of the world. But it is needful that we subjoin only one other particular, because it implies all that is comprehended in the great end of the doings of this society. It is the turning of sinners from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God. The whole number reported as added to the churches aided, during the last year, is 1959. The number of conversions in the same time, is doubtless greater than the above. Many of these have been the gradual ingatherings, and the successive seals of the ministry of those whose labours have been attended with no general awakening. Others have been the fruits of the more copious outpourings of the Spirit of God. Not less than 40 of the churches aided have been blessed with what are appropriately called revivals of religion, each of which has been attended with from 20 to 100 hopeful conversions. Let it be borne in mind, therefore, by all who have helped us in the labours of another twelve months, and let them remember it with gratitude, that after a few more years, when all the souls that have been converted, shall have been joined to the spirits of the just made perfect. then, through all eternity, 1900 angels will praise God, and bless the instruments of their salvation, and 392 missionaries, resting from their labours, and shining as the stars for ever and ever, shall mingle their rejoicings together ; and tens of hundreds whose prayers and alms have contributed to these glorious results, will add their grateful voices ; and then all that shall hereafter be gathered into the kingdom of God, from the 19,000 Sabbath school scholars, and from the 5,500 members of Bible classes which have been reported, and from 500 congregations, will unite in eternal thanksgivings for the doings of a single year of this society.

PLAN OF THE SOCIETY, AND PREPARATIONS FOR FUTURE EFFORTS.

Having reported the work accomplished during the last year, the committee deem it incumbent on them to lay before the society a brief view of the preparations which they have made for future and more extended operations. The light of another year has increased their conviction, that the organization of this society is most happily adapted to the wants of our country, and the condition of the churches, whose duty it is to supply them. These wants have been found to be so far extended beyond what was formerly believed, as to make it manifest that no separate efforts of any single denomination of Christians in the land, are adequate to supply them. They are also alarming, and if left unsupplied, will soon result in consequences which Christians of every name must deplore. The object, therefore, is of one common interest, and one which demands the sympathies of all hearts, and the efforts of all hands. But these sympathies will act more intensely, and these efforts be more efficient, in proportion as they are combined and concentrated. This has long been seen and felt by many of the most intelligent friends of the cause, in different parts of the country. To produce such a concentration of prayer and effort, was the object of the formation of the Home Missionary Society. To this its plan was originally adapted. We are aware that some have doubted its practicability, and have hesitated to fall in with its measures, under the apprehension that the acting of several denominations through a common organ, in the work of missions, would impair their individual or denominational prosperity. But these apprehensions of evil, no doubt, resulted from the want of a familiar acquaintance with the plan and real purposes of the society. The experience of four years of successful and extended effort has now convinced those who have most carefully watched its operations, that there is in its plan no tendency to such results. It serves each of the denominations embraced in its original organization, without the least interference with the denominational preferences of either. The reason of this is manifest. These denominations are on terms of intercommunion and ecclesiastical correspondence with each other. The ministers of each are regarded as in good standing in all of the others. Hence, when the interests of the general cause seem to require it, they pass from one denomination to another, at the call of the churches. This has become a common occurrence in the Presbyterian, Congregational and Reformed Dutch churches, which are the denominations principally represented in this Society. Here, then, is afforded the best of all facilities for their co-operating in the work of missions, and bearing one another's burdens by acting through a common organ. Such an organ is the Home Missionary Society. On the field, covered by each of the above denominations, it acts in entire subserviency to their rules of doctrine, discipline, and intercourse with each other, by requiring of every missionary to bear credentials acceptable to the Presbytery, Association or Classis within whose bounds he is appointed to labour. This condition attached to the commissions of missionaries, together with the published terms on which the society receives the co-operation of auxiliary societies, Presbyteries, Synods, &c. [see Appendix,] has made it manifest to all, that there is here no interference with ecclesiastical order, and no danger to be apprehended to the purity and distinctiveness of the denominations engaging in this work. The orthodoxy and correct ecclesiastical standing of the missionaries employed within the bounds of each denomination, are rendered as secure as the constitutions of the churches can make them; as secure as those of any other ministers belonging to the same ecclesiastical bodies.

These facts and provisions being now generally known, the Home Missionary Society is seen to be a wisely adapted and unexceptionable medium for the transmission of the charities of the older and more wealthy states, to the new and destitute settlements of the West and South. As such, the great body of the Christian public have given it their confidence, and ministers and churches, in all parts of the land, are seeking it as the organ of their action, in the work for which it was formed. Its plan and operations have also been repeatedly approved by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, by several Synods and Presbyteries, and by most of the associations of the Congregational churches. Thus recommended to the confidence of the Christian public, the committee are sensible, that much more is expected from this society hereafter, than it has ever yet accomplished. They have therefore sought, as far as practicable, to increase and extend its means of continued and enlarged efficiency. They have been constantly receiving new accessions of strength by the increase of the number of its auxiliaries; and where these have not been so organized as to co-operate to the best advantage directly with the Parent Society, they have appointed committees of correspondence, and boards of agency, for the better direction of their operations in particular districts. Of these, one of the most important which have been appointed during the last year, is the CENTRAL AGENCY FOR THE STATE OF NEW-YORK, ESTABLISHED IN THE SYNOD OF UTICA. This has already been in operation since the first of January, and is doing its work with an energy and vigour which promises much good to the cause, and especially to the interesting portion of the state over which it extends.

Another and still more important appointment recently made, is that of

THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF AGENCY FOR HOME MISSIONS IN THE WESTERN STATES, ESTABLISHED AT CINCINNATI, OHIO.

This is a measure which was entered on with much deliberation. It had been apparent to the committee, that the missionary business of the states west of the Alleghany mountains could not long be transacted with the best effect by a committee located in New-York or Philadelphia ; and that the western churches would call for the establishment of another centre of action within their own bounds. But it was important that that centre, when selected, should be so organized, as to assume the direction of western missions, under such stipulations with this committee, as should enable it to co-operate harmoniously with the same, without impairing the unity of the system adopted by this society. Such stipulations were at length agreed on by several clergymen and others in Cincinnati and its vicinity, and by them proposed, through the corresponding secretary, to this committee. The above Committee of Agency was accordingly appointed, February 22, 1830, and rules of government were forwarded, of which they have since signified their cordial acceptance, and have become organized under the same.

It was deemed expedient, however, with the hope of securing the entire harmony of the western churches in the work of missions, to suspend the operations of the above committee until June next. In the mean time, it is proposed to petition the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, to unite with this society in appointing the same committee at Cincinnati, (with such changes and alterations as may be mutually agreed on,) that it may be the organ of the Board of Missions of the General Assembly and of this society. In this measure, we are happy to state, that the gentlemen composing the committee at Cincinnati have expressed their cordial concurrence.

Thus, an arrangement has been proposed, and harmoniously prosecuted to the present time, which provides for the more vigorous action of the western churches in supplying the wants of their own destitute, while the operations of this society are combining the energies of the older states to afford them that aid which they need to enable them to bless the broad valley of the west with the ordinances of the Gospel.

In the course of the coming three months, the committee hope to see the above organization perfected and in full operation, affording a facility for prosecuting the work of Home Missions beyond the mountains, which has never yet been enjoyed. Then a permanent office may be kept at Cincinnati, and become to the western churches what the office of this society now is to the friends of the cause in the Atlantic states. The western committee will correspond with the eastern, and with such other organizations as shall choose to co-operate with it; and thus the strength of the western churches will be combined with the collected resources of their friends on the Atlantic slope, to plant the standard of the cross of Christ in every township in the nation. A bond of sympathy will be in this way created between the north and the south, and the east and the west; which, cemented by the mutual minglings of benevolent effort to do one another good, will become a fourfold cord which is not quickly broken.

With such a provision for united, harmonious, and extended action, it is presumed that those denominations who have hitherto sustained the operations of the American Home Missionary Society, will avail themselves of these new facilities, and still more generally give it the patronage of their prayers and their alms. Then, if the Lord build the house, it shall be builded in the length and in the breadth of this whole nation. Then, if infidels of every name should agree in this one thing, and combine all their energies to oppose the progress of light and salvation, a great army will be marshalled to meet them under the banner of that union which is strength, and under the guidance of Him, who is head over all things to the church, and who intercedes in heaven, as he prayed on earth, "THAT THEY ALL MAY BE ONE."

In the ardour of such an enterprise, and in the hope of these glorious results, the Executive Committee commend this society to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to keep it from falling; and conclude their report by repeating to its officers, its members, and its missionaries, the words of their late endeared fellow labourer, the lamented Bruen, in his last message to the committee, uttered with a faith already brightening into vision, and in the honest and simple brevity of a dying man:—"YOURS IS A GREAT WORK—THE WORK OF GOD—HOLD ON."

APPENDIX.

WESTERN AGENCY

OF THE A. H. M. S. FOR THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

THE "WESTERN AGENCY," which is a board of inquiry and reference, for the district embracing the seventeen western counties in the state of New-York, has been reappointed for the year commencing May, 1830, and is composed of the following gentlemen, viz.:

Rev. HENRY DWIGHT, Geneva, Chairman.

Rev. MILES P. SQUIER, Geneva, Corresponding Secretary and Agent.

Mr. ABRAHAM B. HALL, Geneva.

Rev. JAMES RICHARDS, D. D., Auburn.

Rev. HENRY P. STRONG, Phelps.

Rev. ANSEL D. EDDY, Canandaigua.

WALTER HUBBELL, Esq. Canandaigua.

Rev. JOSEPH PENNY, Rochester.

Rev. JOEL PARKER, Rochester.

From the Fourth Annual Report.

At no previous period has our work shown itself to be more vitally associated with the temporal or spiritual good of men than now, or shared more unequivocal tokens of the fostering care of the great Head of the church.

The field assigned to this board is one of continually growing interest. Its population is rapidly increasing, while its physical, intellectual, and moral resources are developing themselves in all that enterprise and strength, which are characteristic of young communities, possessing the local and relative advantages of this.

Within this field, containing now a population of 500,000 souls, are located 220 churches and congregations, in the Presbyterian and Congregational connexions, enjoying the stated labours of 150 pastors or ministers of Christ. Of those congregations whose pulpits are now supplied, 106 have received missionary aid through the Board: and about 75 of them are yet, to some extent, pensioners upon its bounty, and sharing this year the labours of 67 missionaries.

During this year, a number of congregations, heretofore aided by us, have assumed the entire responsibility of supporting the gospel among themselves; and about thirty new congregations and missionary districts have been taken up and placed under gospel instruction; and, with aid derived to the cause of truth and piety from the labours of other denominations of Christians, we may report that our most considerable centres of population and influence are, in a good degree, supplied with the administration of the word and ordinances of Christ's house.

But while this may be said, for the encouragement of those who are workers together with God, and our fellow helpers in this enterprise of love, it must not be forgotten that much benevolent exertion is necessary to sustain the congregations, yet in their minority, and to gather into the fold of truth that mass of population, which is crowding onward into all the remaining waste places of Zion within the Agency.

Upwards of fifty of our congregations are yet vacant, while there is room for fifty more, on those portions of this field, where, here and there, the scattered disciples of the Lord Jesus may be found, and where the Christian standard is not yet erected. These vacancies, many of which are peculiarly feeble and dependent, need an early attention; and as fast as labourers can be furnished, should be placed under the culture of the preached word.

The missionaries employed the year now past, under the care of this Board.

have been located within the several counties, as follows, having charge of one, two, and, in some cases, three congregations each, and deriving aid from our funds to the average amount of from $75 to $100.

These appointments have with few exceptions been for one year each, thus making an aggregate amount of more than fifty years of missionary service within the Agency; and from the quarterly reports of our brethren thus commissioned, as well as from actual observation of the ground on which they are located, we can assure the friends of missions that their labour has not been in vain in the Lord. The cause of science and of general education has derived extensive benefit from the instructions which have thus been thrown out upon the public mind, and the influences which have been brought to bear upon its intellectual training. The great principles of morality, also, are vitally sustained by the work of the Christian preacher. The gospel reasons from the first to the second table of the law, and teaches, that "he who loveth God should love his brother also."

The cause of temperance has very evidently advanced through the missionary labours of the year past, as has that of Sabbath school and bible class instruction.

The heralds of the gospel, who have been sent out through our borders, have been efficient coadjutors of the Bible Society in prosecuting the objects of its "extra effort." They have aided the cause of tracts, by bringing these winged messengers of mercy in contact with thousands of minds, in those retreats of ignorance, privation, and sorrow, where they will exert so benign an influence.

Nor in contemplating the direct results of our work in the conversion of sinners, and the edifying of the people of God, need we feel discouraged. Showers of grace have gladdened some portions of the missionary field under review. Most of the churches and congregations have received no small accession of numbers and strength, and several have signified their ability to dispense with further aid.

The conflict between light and darkness yet shows itself on this ground, and many of our missionaries have unequivocal evidence that they wrestle not against flesh and blood merely, but against principalities—against powers—against the rulers of the darkness of this world—against spiritual wickedness in high places;—yet the empire of light and love advances, and we have every encouragement which the gracious providence of God can furnish, to go forward in our work, knowing that "in due season we shall reap, if we faint not."

The pecuniary embarrassments of this section of country have somewhat diminished our receipts this year. The peculiarly urgent claims of the Bible and Education societies, which have been extensively pleaded in our congregations, may have contributed to this result, as have the efforts of the Assembly's Board of Missions within our bounds. The receipts at the Agency this year have been $4392 03. Some money has been transmitted directly to the parent Society, without passing through our treasury, and some is yet in the hands of receiving agents, and will soon be forwarded.

The receipts at this agency for the four years that have elapsed since its organization, have been rising of $19,000, and more than sufficient to balance the appropriations which have been made within our bounds during that period; and from the point at which we have now arrived, we witness in the friends of Christ no diminution of attachment to the Home Missionary work. They view it as the cause of their country, and the cause of God—as closely identifying itself with every interest of this life, and the life to come; and though temporary hinderances may be in its way, and depress its resources, yet the intelligence of its wants will awaken their solicitude, and incite them to new engagedness and self-denial in its behalf. To this we would urge them in the close of our report.

CENTRAL AGENCY.

In our former reports, the Western Domestic Missionary Society of the state of New-York, which had the seat of its operations in the counties lying in or contiguous to the Synod of Utica, has been mentioned as sustaining a considerable number of missionaries. That Society having been dissolved, and several Presbyteries and individual churches and ministers having expressed a desire that the domestic missionary efforts of that region might be more intimately connected with the A. H. M. S., the Executive Committee, in October last appointed a Board of inquiry and reference, similar to the "Western Agency," and denominated the "CENTRAL AGENCY OF THE A. H. M. S. for the state of New-York." The field assigned for its operations was "such portions of the following territory as should approve the arrangement, viz.: that part of the state lying between the west line of the counties of Oswego, Onondaga, Courtlandt and Broome, and the eastern boundary of the Synod of Utica. The office of the Treasurer and Agent is at Utica. The following gentlemen compose the Agency for the year commencing May, 1830, viz.

Mr. ALEXANDER SEYMOUR, Utica, Chairman.

Rev. RALPH CUSHMAN, do. Corresponding Sec'y and Agent.

SAMUEL STOCKING, Esq. do. Treasurer.

Rev. D. C. LANSING, D. D., Utica.

Rev. S. C. AIKIN, Utica.

Rev. JOHN FROST, Whitesborough.

Rev. SAMUEL T. MILLS, Peterboro'.

Rev. ISRAEL BRAINERD, Verona.

Rev. ABIJAH CRANE, Westmoreland.

Rev. NOAH COE, New-Hartford.

Rev. MOSES GILLET, Rome.

Rev. DAVID R. DIXON, Mexico.

JOHN BRADISH, Esq. Utica.

JOHN DE LA MATER, M. D. Fairfield.

GERRIT SMITH, Esq. Peterboro'.

This Board commenced operations about the middle of December, and may now be considered as having attained a permanent character, and as prepared efficiently to aid the feeble and destitute churches in that section of the state. It has already received applications from 28 different congregations, recommended to the parent Society appropriations amounting to $2116 66; and although the arrangements for collecting funds are yet in their incipient state, $1479 25 has been subscribed for the objects of the Agency.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY,

Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S.

This Society is doing much for the moral improvement of the state in which it labours. During the year ending April 1st, 1830, it had under its direction 47 missionaries for a greater or less period each, most of them for 12 months. The Secretary writes that "the various moral, charitable, and religious societies are carried forward in the congregations aided. Temperance societies have great influence and effect in all places in the state; the promotion of Sabbath schools and Bible classes is general; contributions to Foreign Missions and the cause of the Bible, are not forgotten. Indeed, though there have been fewer revivals the year past than in former years, yet the general aspect of our religious concerns was never better."

Receipts of the Maine M. S. from March 6, 1829, to April 1, 1830, at the disposal of the A. H. M. S., $3463. Expended for missionary labour within the state, under commissions of the parent society, $3491.

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY,

Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S.

[EXTRACT FROM THE LAST ANNUAL REPORT.]

"In conclusion, the Board would remind the Society of one fact in its history, which is not of an encouraging nature; and they would ask them, seriously and prayerfully to take notice, that special revivals of religion have not been as numerous at our missionary stations during the past, as in some former years.

"In every other respect, our missionary operations have been prospered. The cause of Sabbath schools, Bible classes, temperance, religious benevolence, order, morals, and the means and the influences of divine grace, has been decidedly advanced. Nor can it be denied, that the ground now taken by our Society, is of that elevated character which must render retreat more difficult and more to be dreaded.

"None of our missionary congregations have, in the mean time, been removed beyond the necessity of further assistance, and from the peculiar condition of most of them, such a growth in strength is not soon to be expected. It is to be anticipated, that most of the thirty-six congregations now assisted, will apply for new grants, while it is to be remembered, that nearly as many more in our state are unsupplied; applications from some of which are now waiting for a decision from the Board. The question, what answer shall be given to these applications, and that too, whether our Society shall, on the whole, sustain its present elevated stand, are the questions now to be decided. Nor will the Board conceal it, that the decision must principally depend on the state of our funds.

Number of missionaries commissioned by the parent Society, and under the direction of the Vermont D. M. S. during the year ending April 1, 1830, 27, and two furnished by the state Society to the Canada Education and Home Miss. Soc. Receipts during the same period, $1376 26. Expenditures, $2,166 62.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY,

Auxiliary to the A. H. M. S.

[FROM THE LAST ANNUAL REPORT.]

"About thirty churches are now looking to our treasury for assistance to support their ministers, and we have presently to act upon about twenty applications. Some of these applications are from towns, in which there is no church of Christ—no church, to be the salt and the light of the community—towns of considerable wealth, and a population of from 1500 to nearly 2000!—Some of these applications are from very small churches and societies, for assistance to supply them with preaching a few weeks, not daring to hope for the privilege of enjoying a Christian pastor's presence and labours. Others are from churches which now have pastors, but cannot retain them without aid. Others are from churches and societies that now have the men of their choice on the ground as candidates for installation, and are waiting to know whether we can or not grant them such aid that they may secure the dear object of their desires, and efforts, and prayers."

Number of missionaries employed by the New-Hampshire Missionary Society, under commissions of the A. H. M. S., 34. Income, during the year ending April 1, 1830, $1,649 38. Expenditures, $1,394 24. Expenditures for incidental expenses, agencies, and missionary labour, not under commissions from the A. H. M. S., $423. Present balance against the treasury, $931 32.

UNITED AUXILIARY MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF VIRGINIA.

From the report of this society, we learn that although the good effected by it has fallen short of the wishes of its friends, and the wants of the community, yet its means and opportunities of usefulness have been steadily increasing; and the work performed during the past year, has been greater than in any previous year. The whole amount of funds at the disposal of the Committee, during the year ending April, 1830, exclusive of the book fund, has been $2,156 67. They have aided in supporting, for a part or the whole of the year, thirteen preachers of the Gospel.

TERMS OF CONNEXION AND STIPULATION,

Between the American Home Missionary Society and its Auxiliaries, recommended by the Executive Committee.

In the formation of the numerous branches of the national institution, it has been a subject of no little difficulty to determine upon a plan of co-operation suited to the condition of existing societies in all parts of the United States, and equally adapted to promote the interests of the parent Society, and each of its auxiliaries. The Executive Committee have, accordingly, waited for the results of experience, that they might permanently pursue the best method to secure these objects. They are now prepared to recommend with confidence the following as a plan altogether practicable, and equally suited, as it is designed, to promote the efficiency and harmony of the missionary work in the several states and religious denominations represented in the national Society, viz. :

PLAN OF LARGER SOCIETIES.

In those parts of the country where efficient organizations in aid of Home Missions do not already exist, the formation of two kinds of societies auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. is desired; the one large, and the other small, and the former to embrace the latter. Each larger society may be formed to embrace the limits of a county, a city, a state, a presbytery, or a synod, as shall be judged most conducive to its activity and efficiency. The objects of all such societies should be to raise funds to furnish, first, all needed aid to the destitute within their own limits; and, secondly, to aid the parent society in extending the Gospel to communities still more needy. To accomplish these objects most effectually, it is important that each society be so small, in extent of territory, that its committee or executive board may have a competent knowledge of the claims of the destitute within its limits, while it should be sufficiently large to furnish a field for the operations of an agent, for the collection of funds, the formation of subsidiary organizations, and to act as its organ of communication with the parent society. For this last purpose it is judged expedient that in all cases where the auxiliary society is sufficiently large to employ a permanent agent, he be also its corresponding secretary.

FORM OF CONSTITUTION,

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

ART. I.—This society shall be known by the name of the Domestic Missionary Society of _____, and shall be auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

ART. II.—This society shall be composed of such individuals as shall contribute annually to its funds, together with the members of the several church and congregational associations for Home Missions within the limits of this society.

ART. III.—The officers of the society shall be a president, _____ vice presidents, a treasurer, and a secretary, to be chosen at the annual meeting. These officers, in connexion with at least one person elected from each of the several associations of gentlemen composing the society, shall constitute a board of directors, of whom not less than five shall be a quorum at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. IV.—It shall be the duty of the board of directors to meet at the call of the president, or as often as shall be necessary for the transaction of business; to fill their own vacancies, to appoint an executive committee, to adopt the most energetic measures in their power to accomplish the object of the society; especially by distributing such publications as may be committed to them by the parent institution, and by deputation some of their number to attend the annual meetings of the several associations; and, in general, by using all suitable means to excite an interest in the cause of Home Missions.

ART. V.—The annual receipts of the society, after defraying incidental expenses, shall be paid over to the treasurer of the parent society, with directions as to the section of country in which it shall be expended in missionary labours, should the board deem it important to give such directions. [See resolutions on next page.]

ART. VI.—The society shall meet as often as called by the directors, and annually on the _____ of March, when the officers shall be elected; the accounts of the treasurer, properly audited, shall be presented, and the annual report of the directors received, and when this constitution may be amended by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

ART. VII.—A copy of the constitution, authenticated by the secretary, together with the names and the residences of the officers annually elected, and also a copy of each annual report, shall be transmitted to the corresponding secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, as early as the first of April in each year.

STIPULATIONS.

For the purpose of producing uniformity in the operations of the larger societies, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., and the better to secure to each the control of its funds and appropriations, the following resolutions are recommended to their adoption; and the executive committee will engage, with every auxiliary adopting them, to perform the stipulations which these resolutions require of the parent society, provided the proposed limits of societies requesting to become auxiliary on this plan be such as, in the opinion of this committee, will facilitate the operations of the parent society within the same; and provided these engagements having been formed with the missionary society of a state, or a synod, shall not be so construed as to debar this committee from the liberty of co-operating, if desired, with any county, presbyterial, or other society within its limits, acting independently of said larger society.

RESOLUTIONS,

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

1. This society shall pay over to the treasurer of the A. H. M. S. the whole of its income, from time to time, after deducting incidental expenses; provided, however, that the permanent fund* of the society shall for ever remain, as to the power of investment, &c. under its own control; and, provided, also, that the whole, or any part of said income, having been reported as subject to the order of the parent society, shall be allowed to remain, if requested by the directors of this society, in the treasury of the same, for the payment of missionaries and agents, as hereinafter stipulated.

A sufficient number of blank commissions shall be furnished to this society, by the executive committee of the parent society, signed by the chairman and corresponding secretary of the same, which shall be filled and countersigned by the proper officers, and issued on the responsibility of this society.

3. All missionaries shall be paid from the income of this society, in the manner following, (viz.) The directors of this society having reported the income, or receipts of the same, to the parent society, and having requested that so much of the income so reported, as they shall deem necessary to answer the engagements of this society, may be retained for that purpose, the executive committee of the parent society shall, in answer to such request, and without delay, direct the treasurer of the same to issue an order to the directors of this society, to retain the whole, or such portion of the said income, as shall have been thus requested, for the purpose of paying the same as it shall become due to missionaries appointed by this society, under commissions from the parent institution.

4. Should appropriations of aid be needed within the _____ to exceed the amount of the income of this society, such appropriations shall be made directly by the parent society, on the sole responsibility of the same; provided, however, that in all such cases, the advice and recommendation of the directors of this society shall be previously obtained.

5. This society shall be governed in its appropriations, by the general principles which govern the appropriations of the parent society.

6. This society shall appoint no missionaries or agents out of the limits of the same.

7. Agents for the collection of funds for this society, may be appointed by the executive committee of the parent society, with the recommendation or consent of the directors of this auxiliary, and all agents so appointed shall report the amount of their collections, both to the auxiliary and the parent society; and each agent so appointed, shall receive his compensation from this society, in the same manner that the missionaries of the society receive theirs.

Reasons of the foregoing Recommendations.

The above resolutions are in accordance with the spirit of the eighth article of the constitution of the parent society. They have been already adopted by the New-Hampshire Missionary Society, the Vermont Domestic Missionary Society, the Hampshire Missionary Society, Mass., and substantially by a number of other societies, as the basis of their auxiliary connexion with the A. H. M. S. In recommending the same to the adoption of societies which may hereafter become auxiliary, the executive committee of the parent society are influenced by the following considerations:

1. Wherever these resolutions are adopted, they will bring the influence of the parent society to act on its auxiliaries in the matter of raising funds, and thus a principle distinctly avowed in the formation of the national institution, will be most securely guarded, viz.: That local societies should not be superseded, nor impeded in their operations, but strengthened and stimulated. On this plan the agent of each auxiliary will also be the agent of the parent society, and by keeping advised of the operations and necessities of the latter, will be able to acquaint each congregation which he may address, with what the whole country is doing; and the influence of example will be fully felt, while the great national object, by being presented as one and undivided, will assume an importance as much superior to that exhibited by the separate claims of a local society, as the wants of the nation are more extensive than those of a single state or county; and it is found, that when facts are presented as the ground of appeal, Christians and patriots are every where disposed to contribute in proportion to the magnitude of the work to be accomplished by their beneficence. In this way the resources of each local society may be greatly increased by a connexion with the national institution.

2. By these stipulations, each auxiliary society is left to the independent and unembarrassed exercise of all its rights in the business of appropriating its own funds to the relief of the needy within its limits, while it secures to itself the additional advantage of directing other appropriations made by the parent society within the same bounds. And this is an advantage which will be very gladly yielded to auxiliary presbyteries, synods and societies, whose knowledge of the work to be done within their own limits is, in all cases, much more minute and particular than can be possessed through the medium of correspondence by the national institution.

3. These stipulations, wherever they shall be adopted, will put it out of the power of the national society to contravene the wishes of those whose business it is to manage the affairs, and guard the purity of the churches in the different sections of our country. It can plant no missionary in stations yielded to the supervision of an auxiliary society, presbytery or synod, without the approbation of the same; and when a missionary or agent shall cease to be approved by the auxiliary, the parent society will be bound to recal him, or withdraw his support. Thus the national institution claims to be the servant of the churches wherever it may be permitted to act in the benevolent work for which it has been formed and sustained. It pretends to no ecclesiastical authority. It interferes not with the discipline, nor the peculiar views of any section of the church, but desires to act through its auxiliaries, and to be directed in its operations by their united counsels. It will aid feeble congregations in the support of such ministers only as shall have been approved by the ecclesiastical bodies with which they are connected. This society has no charter, and no funded property. It has its being only in the confidence and co-operation of the Christian public; and should it ever, through unfaithfulness to its trust, cease to deserve these, its auxiliaries may withdraw them, and the national society must cease to exist.

4. The effect of this whole plan, should it become universal in the churches represented in this society, will be the same which was contemplated in the formation of the national institution.

It will prevent the interference and cross-action of a number of independent societies, occupying portions of the same field without concert, and without agreement. The state, synodical, presbyterial, and other local societies, will be confined in their appropriations, each to its own limits, and as fast as they are able, they will supply their own destitute; while the national society, gathering strength from the increased resources of its auxiliaries, will be the servant of all in conveying their surplus charities to the new and increasing fields of desolation in our frontier settlements. For this service, the national society, sustained by the co-operation here recommended, will possess peculiar advantages. Its office will be the centre of intelligence on the subject of Home missions, and the medium through which the numerous local societies may communicate with each other. And what gives life and energy to this whole system is, that the national society, thus sustained, is enabled to employ permanent officers, and be, in effect, constantly in session. This is an advantage which can be enjoyed by no local society, but which is indispensable to the prompt and successful prosecution of the work of missions on a field so extensive and diversified as remains to be occupied in this country.

This plan is also suited to produce a uniformity of operation, and the missionaries of the auxiliaries being also the missionaries of the parent society, will be reported as such in our annual alphabetical list, with appropriate marks to denote by what auxiliary society they have been supported. Thus the influence of each auxiliary will be embodied, and an annual report presented which will embrace the doings of all; the local societies will no longer be regarded as rivals of each other, but fellow labourers in the same field, and the missionaries as belonging to the same family.

SMALLER SOCIETIES.

Within the limits of each larger society, there should be organized auxiliary societies or associations. Of these associations, it is recommended that there be formed two in each town, parish, or congregation, the one composed of males, and the other of females; and that they adopt the following Rules for the Government of Church, or Congregational Associations, or Societies for Home Missions.

1. This association shall be called the _____ [or Female] Missionary Association, or Society of _____ Church, [or Congregation,] auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of _____.]

2. Every person who shall contribute annually to the funds, shall be a member.

3. * The affairs of the association shall be conducted by a first and second director, [or directress,] a secretary, a treasurer, and _____ collectors, who shall be chosen annually, and together shall constitute a committee.

4. It shall be the duty of the committee to meet at least once in three months, to appoint assistant collectors, and transact such other business as may come before them.

5. The first director, [or directress,] and in case of his [or her] absence, the second director, [or directress,] shall preside in all meetings of the association, and shall have power to call special meetings at pleasure.

The secretary shall keep the records, and manage the correspondence.

The treasurer shall take charge of the money collected, and after deducting incidental expenses, shall pay the same to the American Home Missionary Society, [or to the Auxiliary Society of _____.]

It shall be the duty of the collectors to solicit and receive contributions. For this purpose they shall make a suitable division of their labours, call upon the individuals within their respective limits, take the names of persons disposed to contribute, together with the sums which they will give for the year, and shall pay the amount of their collections to the treasurer, previous to the next annual meeting of the association.

6. The Association shall meet annually, on the second Monday in March of each year, when the Report shall be read, and the election of officers held; and when these rules may be altered by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

7. The Annual Report of this Association shall be transmitted by the Secretary, to the Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of _____] immediately after the annual meeting of the Association.

* Or, if it be preferred, the third article may read as follows: "The affairs of this association shall be conducted by the Elders [or deacons] of this church, who shall annually appoint, from their own number, a first and second director, a Secretary, a Treasurer and _____ Collectors; and these together shall constitute a committee."

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

THE American Home Missionary Society held its Fifth Anniversary in the Murray-street Presbyterian Church, New-York, on the evening of Wednesday, May 11, 1831. The Hon. Stephen Van Rensselaer, LL. D., President of the Society, took the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. Samuel Fisher, D. D. of New-Jersey.

The President made an appropriate Address, presenting briefly the plan and objects of the Society.

The Treasurer's account, with the certificate of the Auditor, was read by Mr. Knowles Taylor, Treasurer.

The Rev. Absalom Peters, Corresponding Secretary of the Society, read the Fifth Annual Report; after which the following resolutions were adopted, viz. :

1. On motion of the Rev. Mark Tucker of Troy, N. Y., seconded by the Hon. Benjamin F. Butler, of Albany, N. Y.:

Resolved, That the Report now read be accepted, and printed under the direction of the Executive Committee.

2. On motion of the Rev. D. C. Carroll of Brooklyn, N. Y., seconded by the Rev. John Breckenridge of Baltimore, Md.

Resolved, That this Society has great occasion of gratitude to God for the liberality which has sustained its extended operations the past year, and still more for the influences of the Holy Spirit, which have blessed with numerous revivals the labours of its missionaries.

3. On motion of the Rev. Theron Baldwin of Illinois, seconded by the Rev. D. C. Lansing, D. D. of Utica, N. Y.

Resolved, That in view of the present pledges of the Committee, and the widely extending wants of our country, there is a special call upon the friends of missions for united and redoubled exertions.

In support of the foregoing resolutions, addresses were made by the Hon. Mr. Butler, the Rev. Messrs. Tucker and Baldwin, and the Rev. Dr. Lansing.

The congregation then united in singing the Christian doxology, after which a benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Benjamin H. Rice of New-York.

The Society then proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year, and unanimously made choice of the following, viz. :

CONSTITUTION

OF THE

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 1. This Society shall be denominated "THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY."

ART. 2. The great object of this Society shall be to assist congregations that are unable to support the Gospel Ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute, within the United States.

ART. 3. The Officers of the Society shall be a President, Vice Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, a Corresponding Secretary, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors, who shall be annually appointed by the Society; and who, together with the Directors for life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. 4. The Officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of thirteen, (including the Treasurer, the Corresponding Secretary, and the Recording Secretary,) residing in the city of New-York and its vicinity; seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened. This Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society: shall appoint Missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labours; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing Missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the Institution may require; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

ART. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds annually to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

ART. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society by contributing annually to its funds; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for life; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for life; and any person, on the payment of a sum, which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for life. An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for life; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute him a Director for life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Corresponding Secretary a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a Missionary, or Missionaries, to labour in such field as it may designate; at least to the amount of its contributions: provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The Officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be ex-officio Directors: and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of this Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the city of New-York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

ART. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution, without a vote of two thirds of the Members present, at an annual meeting, nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

FIFTH REPORT.

ALL the actions of intelligent agents, under the moral government of God, are connected with RESPONSIBILITY. Besides our obligations to Him who will ultimately bring every work into judgment, there is a subordinate and reciprocal responsibility of intelligent agents to each other. The enlightened conscience of the Christian recognizes this principle, and when associated with others in enterprises of a public nature, he feels that there is a propriety in his being required publicly to account for his doings.

Such are the impressions under which the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE of the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY come to its FIFTH ANNIVERSARY. Here, too, as at the close of each of the preceding years, their duty, through the blessing of God, becomes a delightful privilege. Their satisfaction, indeed, surpasses that which they have felt on presenting their former reports, in proportion as the labours of the year have been more arduous, difficult, and embarrassed, and their results, in several most interesting particulars, MORE SUCCESSFUL. The Head of the Church has continued to bless the Society by signal manifestations of his favour. The lives of its Committee, its Agents, and its Missionaries, (with two exceptions,*) have all been preserved.† And our fellow labourers,

* Rev. John L. Howard, of the Theological Seminary, Auburn, N. Y., died on the day appointed for his ordination, and previous to setting out for his field of labour in Upper Canada; and Rev. John Alexander, of Peruville, Tompkins Co., N. Y., who fulfilled nine months of his commission.

† Thus our report was written, and adopted by the committee. But in the midst of life, we are in death. But yesterday the intelligence arrived, and this day the particulars have been put into my hands, of the decease of one of our own number, Mr. ARCHIBALD FALCONER, Recording Secretary of the Society, and from the beginning, a faithful, efficient and highly valued member of the Executive Committee. Having left this city for England in October last, for the improvement of his health, we have throughout the wide field of their dispersion, not only live to praise God, but the results of their ministry have been such as to indicate a degree of spiritual prosperity on the whole field of the Society's operations, highly encouraging to the friends of the cause for which we labor. The propriety and force of these remarks will be fully illustrated by the details embraced in the following

Showing in parallel columns—

1. The names of Congregations and Missionary Districts aided.
2. An alphabetical list of Missionaries and Agents.
3. Dates of their commissions, or of their commencing labor.

NUMBER OF MISSIONARIES AND CONGREGATIONS AIDED.

From the preceding details, it appears that the number of Missionaries and Agents employed by the Society, during the last year, is 463, and the number of congregations and missionary districts which have been aided in their support is 577. Of the missionaries and agents above enumerated, 299 were in commission at the commencement of the year. The remaining 164 have been new appointments during the year, making in all 463.

PROPORTION OF MISSIONARIES, &c. IN EACH STATE.

It is apparent, also, from the foregoing table, that the influence of the Society has been felt in 22 states and territories, and has been extended to the adjoining province of Upper Canada. The proportion of missionaries employed, and of congregations aided, in each state, has been graduated, as it ever must be, by the interest manifested by the people, to secure the blessings of a preached gospel, the character of their wants and prospects, as made known to the committee, and the choice of the missionaries themselves. Those states and territories, therefore, have been best served by the Society, whose correspondence has most clearly developed their necessities, and their disposition efficiently to co-operate with this Committee in supplying their own destitute. This will account for the comparatively large number of missionaries employed, and of congregations aided, in the states of New-York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan Territory. It is because the Auxiliary Societies in those states have furnished increased facilities to the operations of the parent Society, and greater inducements to ministers to enter upon their destitute fields; as may be seen from the following

Showing the amount of income derived from each state, the number of congregations and missionary districts aided, the number of missionaries employed in each state within the last year, and the amount pledged in each for the year to come.

In addition to the considerations already named as determining the location of missionaries, and as securing to some states a larger proportion of appointments than to others, the following is worthy of notice. It has ever appeared to this committee an object of the first importance, as early as practicable, to occupy with an efficient ministry the new and rapidly increasing settlements on our western and southern frontiers. To this object, therefore, they have directed their special attention. But they have found this department of their great enterprise no less difficult than important. In such settlements generally, religious societies are unformed, and the people are not prepared to adopt any systematic measures, even to assist in the support of religious institutions. Often there are not so much as two or three who are sufficiently agreed to unite in soliciting a missionary to be sent. In all such cases, it is manifest that to wait for an application from the people, would be to withhold from them the blessings of the gospel. They feel not their need of these blessings, and of course will not ask for them. Yet their need is the greater, because of their insensibility, and the Committee have felt that to withhold appropriations from such settlements, would be to neglect one of the most interesting as well as important objects of the Society. They have accordingly used every endeavour to procure and direct to our frontier states and territories, men of suitable qualifications for the work to be done. Here again there are peculiar difficulties to be encountered. It is easy, indeed, to induce young men and others to take missionary tours to these remote settlements, and spend a few months, if they may then return to fields more white unto the harvest. The experience, however, of Missionary Societies and Boards of Missions before existing in this country, has evinced that such kind of service is comparatively of little use. This Committee, therefore, early established it as a rule, to send no missionaries to the frontier states and territories, who were not willing to express it as their sincere intention and settled purpose, (Providence favouring,) to remain and spend their lives on those fields. But we have thought it unreasonable to exact such a pledge from those who have the courage thus to take their lives in their hands, and meet the perils and privations, and identify themselves with the interests of new and remote settlements, without pledging, on the part of the Society, at least a competent support for the first year of the missionary's service. This indeed is the only method by which the preaching of the gospel can be permanently secured in those sections of the country which are the most destitute. It must be sent to them, or they will remain destitute; and in sending the gospel to such fields, the committee have found it necessary to commission their missionaries without regular applications from the people, and to assume their entire support, including such sums as they may derive from the fields on which they labour. No less than 34 of the missionaries named in this report, have been thus appointed. These in general have been the most expensive missions of the Society, while in some instances, the Missionary who was sent, unsolicited by any organized congregation, has not only been received with cordiality, but his support has been principally sustained by the people, and the Society relieved from the whole or a large portion of its pledge.

Excepting the above named 34 missionaries, and 5 others who have been employed as agents, the remaining 424 have been appointed on application from the churches or congregations where they labour, and the amount pledged in each case has been the least sum which the Committee have regarded sufficient to enable the applicant congregation to support and retain the minister of their choice.

EXTENT OF FIELDS AND AMOUNT OF LABOUR PERFORMED.

Of the whole number employed by the Society, 319 are settled as Pastors, or are statedly engaged in single congregations, 105 divide their labours, either as Pastors or stated supplies, between two or three congregations, and 39, including Agents, are employed on larger fields. Thus engaged, the 463 missionaries of the Society, within those portions of the year embraced in their commissions, have performed the full amount of ministerial labour, which would employ a succession of individuals 294 years.

ECONOMY IN EXPENDITURES, AND STATE OF THE TREASURY.

The above amount of service has been performed at an expense of $47,247.60—which has actually been paid out from the treasury within the year, including office rent, Secretary's salary, and all the incidental expenses of the Society. But whence have been derived the means of so large an expenditure? At the commencement of the year, the treasury was overdrawn $84.11, and during the first half of the year, the income of the Society was far less than its disbursements, so that, for several months in succession, the payments from the treasury were in advance of its receipts from $7,000 to $10,000, for which the Treasurer and other individuals of the Committee became personally responsible. Under the pressure of this exigency, it was seriously deliberated, whether we ought not to withhold further appropriations until we should be possessed of the means of more extended operations, without the necessity of increasing the personal responsibility of the Committee. The result was a unanimous decision that the uninterrupted advancement of this enterprise, is an object of too great importance to be hindered by the fear of ultimate pecuniary embarrassment, especially when the evidences of the favour of God, and the confidence of the christian public, were accumulating with the experience of every month. The work was, accordingly, in no degree arrested, but the operations of the Society were steadily increased, with an unshaken confidence, that the friends of the cause would not fail to meet its reasonable demands.

In the mean time, every effort was used to procure agents to engage permanently in the business of collecting funds for this object. In this, however, we failed to such a degree, that some large and able portions of the field, to whose liberality the Committee look with confidence, have not yet been visited by any Agent. The efforts of the Secretary, however, and other Agents who have been employed, have been successful, and have furnished increasing evidence that the appeals of this Society have lost none of their interest with the christian public. The treasury has accordingly been replenished. The receipts of the last year, as appears from the Treasurer's accounts, have exceeded those of the preceding year, $5,779.34, while the expenditures of the Society have increased $4,818.10, leaving in the Treasury, at the present time, $877.13. The committee are, however, under engagements to Missionaries and Agents now in the field, $36,785.00, which must be discharged within the coming twelve months.

In entering into these engagements, the Committee have been aware that, in the work of Missions, as in other departments of charitable effort, a Society known to have been formed for the purpose of aiding the destitute and the needy, is exposed to unworthy applications for its bounty. This fact presents a point of the greatest difficulty and delicacy in the bestowment of public charities. The Committee have accordingly endeavoured to guard, on the one hand, against an indiscriminate or a lavish expenditure of the Society's funds, and on the other, to avoid that degree of retrenchment in appropriations, which might disappoint the reasonable expectations of congregations asking assistance, and thus discourage, rather than aid them in their efforts to support the ordinances of the gospel. To attain these ends as perfectly as possible, each application has been carefully examined, and appointments have been delayed, until, by correspondence or otherwise, the Committee have become assured both of the wishes of the congregations, and of the regular standing, good reputation, and prospects of usefulness of the minister employed. Aid has then been granted, on application from the people, accompanied with suitable evidence that it was needed. It has accordingly been received with many expressions of gratitude from the churches and congregations assisted, and, in most cases, has been attended with the happiest effects, not only in sustaining the needy under present embarrassments, but in concentrating their own resources, and encouraging them to make more vigorous efforts to secure the blessings of a permanent ministry. This system has been pursued with a confidence, strengthened by the experience of every year, that it is happily adapted to accomplish the great end for which the Society was formed, and that it will permanently retain, as it has hitherto received, the approbation and patronage of the religious public. It is a system of encouragement, as well as of economy, and does not enervate, as is the case with charities indiscriminately bestowed, but strengthens and stimulates to renewed exertions the congregations aided, and has enabled them, in many instances, to return to the Society, within the year, some portion of the amounts appropriated. This has been the case with all those congregations named in the preceding table, as having "raised by Auxiliary Associations"—a portion of the aid granted. Deducting, however, all that may thus be derived from the fields to which appropriations have been made, a large proportion of the amount pledged by the committee, will still remain to be raised from the more favoured of the religious public, who are able to spare, from their abundance, portions for the poor. On these the Society has principally depended hitherto for the means of prosecuting, with effect, its noble enterprise:

and that this is not a vain dependence, for the future, may be inferred from a brief survey of the following

SOURCES OF INCOME.

Donations from individuals have been received from almost every part of the country, and have been transmitted, both anonymously and otherwise, accompanied with such expressions of interest in the object of the Society, as evince that it is remembered in the closets of the pious, as well as in the assemblies of the saints. These encouraging indications of a widely extended interest and confidence in the operations of the Society, have been multiplied during the last year, and have been furnished in almost every amount, from the little child's contribution to the box of charity, to the donation of $2,000. Many Pastors and Churches, also, have testified their estimation of the privilege of bearing a part in this work of love, by collections taken up particularly at the Monthly Concert for Prayer, and on the day of annual Thanksgiving. In addition to the above, the Society has derived very seasonable aid, within the year, from the payment of several small bequests, and especially from the LEGACY OF THE LATE WARREN RICHARDSON.

This gentleman died in the summer of 1829, in Andover, Massachusetts, where he had resided a number of years, and by active industry had accumulated an estate of more than $20,000. He was not a professor of religion, and it was not until a short time previous to his death, that his attention was providentially directed to the benevolent enterprises of the church, and in the near prospect of eternity, he bequeathed more than half of his estate to several Institutions of religious charity. The bequest to the A. H. M. Society, was a residuum of uncertain amount; and his widow, Mrs. LUCRETIA RICHARDSON, with a sacred regard to the intention of the deceased, and with a cordiality in the object which entitles her to the gratitude of its friends, has furnished the Society with every facility to become possessed of the amount. She has accordingly already paid into the treasury the sum of $5,100, and a small sum, we understand, remains yet to be collected. The reception of this legacy, as a relief from the embarrassment which must otherwise have been experienced, has been regarded by the Committee as a peculiarly timely interposition of Divine Providence. It will, doubtless, be recognized in Heaven, as among the means which have caused thousands to rejoice evermore; and it seems but right that we should distinctly recognize it in this report. While, however, the Committee acknowledge, with gratitude, the foregoing items, it still remains to be stated, that the largest amount received from any one of the general sources of the Society's income, has been derived from

AUXILIARY SOCIETIES AND ASSOCIATIONS.

These have increased, during the year, from 273 to 385. The following have contributed the largest amounts to the Parent Society, viz.:

The Western Agency in the state of New-York,	. . .	$5,721	40
The Central Agency,	do. do. . . .	2,998	91
The Maine Missionary Society,		2,828	43

The Vermont Domestic Missionary Society,		1,636	83
The Cedar-st. Male Association, N. Y.,		$1754	13

The Bowery Church Male Association,		1,460	00
The Brick Church Male Association,		1,394	00
The Laight-st. Church Male Association,		713	08
The Bleecker-st. Church Male Association,		588	00

Several of the above Auxiliaries, on account of their efficiency, and the extent of their operations, deserve an additional notice in this place, viz. :—

The WESTERN AGENCY, in the State of New-York, remains yet unrivalled in efficiency among the Agencies and Auxiliaries of the Society. It embraces, as its field, the 17 western counties in this state, with a population of more than half a million, on which more than 120 congregations have, in succession, been sustained by this Society, 72 of which have received aid, within the last year, in the support of 58 ministers. These, together with the Secretary of the Agency, constitute an aggregate of 59 labourers, on that field, in the employment of the Society. And their labours have not been in vain. "Ours," says the Secretary, in his annual report, "have been the consolations of the man, who, having gone forth weeping, bearing precious seed, comes again rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." Seven of the congregations aided are named as having shared richly in the revivals which have prevailed in the western part of this state, in each of which there have been reported from 75 to 100 hopeful conversions, while others have been gladdened with gentle showers of grace. Much advancement has been given to the cause of truth within the bounds of the Agency, while the surplus of its collections above the amount expended on that field, has aided the Society in thrusting forth other labourers into other portions of the harvest. [See Appendix.]

The CENTRAL AGENCY in the State of New-York. The present may be considered as the First Annual Report of this Agency, which was appointed in October, 1829, on the same plan of the "Western Agency" above named, but was not fully organized and in operation, until a few months previous to May, 1830. Since that time, besides discharging a considerable amount of the debts and pledges of the "Western Domestic Missionary Society," whose responsibilities it assumed, it has aided in the support of 38 missionaries in those counties of this State, which lie within or contiguous to the Synod of Utica, which is the centre of its operations. Ten of the congregations aided on this field, are reported as having enjoyed special revivals of religion, and in general the labours of the missionaries have been crowned with more than ordinary success.

Notwithstanding the embarrassment occasioned to this Agency, by the removal of its Secretary, the Rev. R. Cushman, in October last, to another field of labour, and the necessary delay in procuring a successor, its payments to the treasury of the Society, within the year, have amounted to $2,998.91, while its present organization and activity, are such as afford the most encouraging promise of extended and permanent efficiency. [See Appendix.]

The MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY has continued its operations with increased energy and success, and though the receipts into its treasury have been less than the amount reported the previous year, this is to be attributed rather to the want of agents for the collection of funds, than to any diminution of interest or zeal among the friends of the cause in that state. The number of its Missionaries appointed under commissions from the Parent Society has increased during the year from 38 to 47, in addition to which this Committee, by the appropriation of funds pledged by the Massachusetts Missionary Society, have aided in the support of 8 Missionaries on the same field, making, in all, 55. The Corresponding Secretary, Rev. Dr. Gillett, under date of April 25, 1831, remarks, in general, that there are various charitable and religious societies, in every township where we have Missionaries, and several converts in many of the societies, as well as revivals in others." On the whole, the advancement of this Society, as an auxiliary, has been as rapid and encouraging, as its best friends had any reason to expect, and we trust the time is not far distant, when, its zeal having provoked very many, it will itself become an efficient helper to the Parent Society, in aiding the needy and supplying the destitute on the opposite and far distant frontiers of the west and south.

The VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY, including the Windsor County Association, has aided, during the last year, in the support of 28 Missionaries in that state, whose labours appear to have been attended with usual success, while several of the congregations aided, have been blessed with revivals of religion. The expenditures of this Society have exceeded its receipts during the last year, which is accounted for by the fact, that no Agents have been employed in that state for the collection of funds for the last two years. Its Directors, however, manifest a zeal and an enterprise which furnish the strongest ground of confidence, that, in the language of their last report, they will DO as they have done, and CONTINUE to do so, while the occasion lasts; and that by increasing their exertions, they will be able hereafter, through the Parent Society, to extend their influence much beyond the bounds of their own state.

The NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY has continued its co-operation with this Committee, and has granted aid to 31 missionaries in that state, under commissions from the Parent Society. But as we have not received the regular annual returns from the Secretary, we are unable to add any further particulars in this place. [See extract from the last Report of that Society, in the Appendix.]

THE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF CONNECTICUT.

This Society has come into active co-operation with the A. H. M. S. since our last anniversary, and has conformed to the stipulations recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies. It has not been practicable, however, for it to become formally auxiliary, on account of a condition in its constitution, which renders it necessary to delay such a measure until its next anniversary, when it is proposed to consummate its connexion under the name of the "CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY, AUXILIARY TO THE A. H. M. S." In the mean time, it conducts its operations as an auxiliary, and has already pledged aid in the support of 22 Missionaries and Agents, under commissions furnished by the A. H. M. S. The receipts into its treasury, from June 18, 1830, to April 1, 1831, have been $2,276. 77, and its payments to the Parent Society, under the above stipulations, have been $308 98. Its operations under the present arrangement, have been highly successful, and furnish the most animating encouragement, that, hereafter, in addition to furnishing all needed aid to the feeble congregations in that state, it will be an efficient auxiliary of the A. H. M. S. in sustaining its great enterprise in behalf of the west and south. As it proposes, in this way, to enter, in some measure, into the labours of the old "Connecticut Missionary Society," and to be conducted by the same Board of Directors, it is confidently believed that it will more than equal the usefulness, and sustain the reputation of that venerable institution, whose praise is in all the churches.

The SABBATH SCHOLARS' MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION of the Sabbath Schools connected with the Cedar-street Presbyterian church, New-York, both on account of its peculiarity and its efficiency, continues to be one of the most interesting of the Auxiliaries of the Parent Society. It has paid into the Treasury of the Society, during the last year, the sum of $600, and stands pledged for the entire amount of aid granted by this committee, to five Missionaries in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and Michigan Territory. Its Fourth Annual Report, recently published, indicates a comprehensiveness of design, a maturity of plan, and a system in execution, which would do honour to any association for benevolent purposes, while it evinces, in a most pleasing manner, that the great national object of the Parent Society has already made a lodgement in the hearts of the children of that congregation, both male and female, from which it will not be easily displaced. But the benefits of this youthful association have not been confined to the direct results of the aid which it has furnished to the Parent Society. The Sabbath Scholars in other congregations in this city have been stimulated by their example to form similar associations, and thus an influence has been commenced, which, we trust, will extend until many youthful hearts and hands will be warmly and actively engaged in this and other enterprises of benevolence.

The WESTERN RESERVE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY, embraces, as its field, the northern part of Ohio, and the whole of Michigan Territory, and is co-extensive with the Western Reserve Synod. This auxiliary has come into full and systematic co-operation with the Parent Society within the last year. Since October last, it has assumed the support of six Missionaries under commissions furnished by this Committee. Our Agent on that field, who is also Secretary of the Society, has been actively engaged during the year, in visiting the congregations, encouraging the feeble to make more vigorous efforts to sustain the institutions of the gospel among themselves, and soliciting contributions. The actual receipts of the Society have been small, but the Agent reports that the present prospect from subscriptions made and pledges given, may be considered equivalent to a security for $2,000 within the present year, and that though the cause is yet in its infancy, there are indications of its soon becoming one of prominent interest among the churches on the Reserve.

THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF AGENCY FOR HOME MISSIONS IN THE WESTERN STATES, ESTABLISHED IN CINCINNATI, OHIO.

This Agency was named in our last Annual Report, as having been appointed, but its operations suspended, for the purpose of securing the concurrence of the Board of Missions of the General Assembly in the same or some other appointments, to conduct unitedly the operations of that Board and of this Society, in the Western States. We then expressed the hope that, in course of the coming three months, the above organization would be perfected and in full operation, affording a facility for prosecuting the work of Home Missions beyond the mountains never before enjoyed. The Committee, however, have not been able to effect the proposed arrangement, and, owing to the delay occasioned by the correspondence in relation to it, the Central Committee of Agency was not fully organized until late in the autumn, when our Agent, the Rev. R. Cushman, who is also Secretary of the above Committee, entered upon his labours on that field, and has since pursued them with great industry and encouraging success. That Committee has not yet assumed the responsibility of supporting any particular Missionaries, having hitherto made all its appropriations through the Executive Committee of the Society, while the attention and labours of the Agent have been chiefly directed to the formation of Auxiliary Societies and raising funds. The amount of subscriptions and cash received, as reported up to the 1st of April, 1831, was $1,658 12, and other arrangements have been made with Committees of Correspondence and Auxiliary Societies on that field, which indicate a state of preparation for future and extended operations, highly creditable to the enterprise and enlarged views of the Central Committee.

“The experience of every day,” says the Secretary, in his Report, “convinces us more deeply of the amazing responsibility under which we now act. Never have we felt so sensibly the necessity of high attainments in knowledge, in wisdom, and in holiness, as since engaged in giving some direction and efficiency to the A. H. M. S. in the great valley of the west. We would not take a step in this enterprise without leaning on the kind arm of our Divine Redeemer.” And again, “we have been much gratified and encouraged by the zealous co-operation of many churches and individuals on this field. So far as we can judge, there is an increasing attachment to the principles of the A. H. M. S. The more it is known, the more it is approved. The operations of the Society evince that it is just what it professes to be, the SERVANT OF THE CHURCHES. The divine favour has hitherto attended its movements, and we are well persuaded that it is one branch of the great system of benevolence, which is to fill the world with the riches of redeeming grace.” [See Appendix.]

Such are the subsidiary organizations which have hitherto afforded the most efficient aid to the Society in its extended operations. To these we might add, if our limits would admit, a special notice, equally interesting, of each of those auxiliaries of a less imposing character, but whose contributions, in many instances, have been more bountiful in proportion to their means, and equally indispensable to the success of the great enterprise to be accomplished. Such are many of the Church and Sessional Associations, whose payments to the Society, within the last year, have varied from $10 to nearly $2,000, as God has prospered them. These, and other organizations, which may yet be formed, varied as the different sections of the church may choose, but all moved by one spirit, a spirit that will not rest nor be weary until the world is converted, constitute the sources of income, on which the Society may hereafter depend, with a confidence unwavering as the faith of a martyr, not only for the redemption of its present pledges, but for the means of enlarging its operations, until it shall have filled the land with blessings, and prepared its immortal millions to be the instruments of eternal blessedness to the nations.

But if any portion of the christian public need yet another argument to convince them that the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY is an instrument chosen of God for the building up of his church, let them review, with us, the following RESULTS OF ITS OPERATIONS.

Under this head, the Committee are aware that they have to do with subjects in relation to which all the estimates and conclusions of finite intelligences are of necessity inadequate. We have not even the means of determining with accuracy what are the present results, and much less are we competent to decide what will be the future consequences of moral causes now operating on so large a scale. In relation to these results, there are many "secret things," of eternal moment, which "belong unto the Lord our God," and which are reserved to be revealed hereafter. There remain, however, upon the face of his Providence, some visible effects of his blessing upon the instruments of his choosing, which "belong unto us, and to our children," that the friends of the cause may be encouraged in the work which he has given them to do. These it is our privilege to report.

The conversion of souls, as it is the single ultimate object of the Society, deserves the first place in this review. But here it is not possible to speak with perfect accuracy. It appears, from a careful perusal of the reports of the Missionaries, that there have been added to the churches aided, within the last year, 3491 souls, 2532 of whom have been received on profession of their faith, and have been admitted, for the first time, to the communion of the church. It should be borne in mind, however, that the reports of the Missionaries are imperfect. Making a suitable allowance, therefore, for defects in these reports, there cannot be estimated less than 2,800 new additions to the church, under the labours of our Missionaries, while the number of hopeful conversions is, doubtless, larger than the above. These, in many instances, have been the gradual ingathering of those who have been permitted, as yet, to reap only sparingly, while others have been the bountiful results of the ministry of those, whose labours God has blessed with the special influences of his Spirit, and have been gathered in companies of tens, and fifties, and hundreds. Fifty-three of the congregations aided have been reported as blessed with special revivals of religion, from which from 20 to 130 souls have been added to the church, and some of which are still in delightful progress. Thus, while the more wealthy churches in many of our cities and principal towns have been the subjects of blessings surpassing all that the grace of God had bestowed in former years, and while he who sitteth in the heavens has been raining down righteousness upon most of our colleges, and has thus purified and enlarged the sources of the Society's dependence, the same grace has been richly enjoyed by many of the congregations which have shared in its bounty. Twice blessed have been those charities which have been derived from such sources, and been directed to such results.

SABBATH SCHOOLS, BIBLE CLASSES, AND BENEVOLENT INSTITUTIONS.

In other ages, the few souls that were converted, were accustomed to remain comparatively idle, in respect to external action, because no man had hired them. The wants and claims of the world were but little known, and there existed none of those associations which now make their appeal to all hearts, and invite to benevolent effort every man that cometh to the light. But now the relations of the church to a world lying in wickedness, are better understood, and wherever ministers preach the gospel, we are accustomed to look for other influences besides the conversion of souls. The hearts of parents are turned to their children, and the sympathies of the rich and the intelligent are kindled up on behalf of the poor and the ignorant, and wherever revivals are enjoyed, both the Pastor and his flock feel that they are blessed that they may become blessings to others. Hence have arisen in our day the system of Sabbath School and Bible Class instruction, with which the youth of our congregations are so generally favoured; and hence have been originated those other methods of doing good, through which the benign influences of our churches are extended to the destitute, and scattered to the ends of the earth. And even the poor, when their hearts are touched with the love of God, do not ask to be excused from taking part in these enterprises of benevolence. We do but report, therefore, what the friends of the Society are prepared to hear, when we announce that its 463 Missionaries have reported, as under their instruction, during the year, more than 200 Bible Classes, embracing not less than 5000 members, and that there have been sustained, in the congregations aided, not less than 500 Sabbath Schools, with not less than 20,000 pupils. Yet these are glorious results, and full of the most interesting promise to the churches where they exist. They constitute so many little centres of religious influence, which will be felt upon other generations. They invite the influences of the Spirit of God, and thus, in many of them, revivals of religion have had their commencement, in which not a few, both of the teachers and the taught, have been savingly benefited, and hundreds of the careless reclaimed and saved.

In the promotion of Sabbath Schools, our missionaries generally have been much encouraged by the resolution of the American Sunday School Union, to supply the valley of the Mississippi with Sabbath School instruction, within two years. It is known to the public, that this Committee early pledged its endeavours, through the Missionaries of the Society, to establish at least one thousand of the schools required to accomplish this noble resolution. But as the Missionaries have been instructed to report, on this subject, directly to the A. S. S. Union, it is not in our power, at this time, to report the progress which has been made in this specific work, though we are assured that their efforts generally, so far as they find it consistent with the claims of the people to whom they minister, are zealously directed to its accomplishment.

The Missionaries, also, as advised in their commissions, have, as far as we know, without exception, endeavoured to promote, by every practicable measure, the cause of the Bible, of Religious Tracts, of Education, of Foreign Missions, and of Temperance, among the people and congregations where they labour. In many instances, these efforts have been attended with the happiest results. Enough has been communicated on these subjects, in the reports of the Missionaries, to make it apparent, that, if it were practicable to ascertain the whole amount which has been gleaned, in aid of these objects, from the 577 congregations assisted, the result would both surprise and encourage the christian philanthropist, while the universal observance of the Monthly Concert of Prayer, indicates that there are a few, at least, in all our congregations, whose prayers and alms have gone up together before God.

It remains only that we present the following

TABULAR VIEW

Of the results of the last year, in several particulars, compared with those of the preceding years.

Having thus presented the most important details, and results of the doings of the Society, during another year, the Committee are unwilling to close this Report, without a public expression of their gratitude to Almighty God, for the signal blessings with which he has crowned its efforts. The Society has now been in operation five years. In that time, besides all the other indirect and accompanying influences which it has exerted, it has granted essential aid in support of 997 years of ministerial labour, in congregations which otherwise must have been deprived, in whole or in part, of the blessings of a preached gospel:—has reported, each year, from 10,000 to 20,000 children instructed in Sabbath Schools, and from 2,000 to 5,000 of the young and others instructed in Bible Classes. In the same time, its Missionaries have reported not less than 7,700 souls added to the churches aided, and more than that number of hopeful conversions under their ministry. Who can contemplate these results without feeling deeply convinced that God has been with us of a truth? These are the Lord's doings, and marvellous in our eyes. They surpass all that the most sanguine of the friends of the Society had anticipated. To him be all the glory.

But these definite results are but parts of the blessings which he has bestowed, and are to be viewed rather as indications of what may hereafter be accomplished, than as a fulfilment of the divine purposes in relation to the cause in which we are engaged. There remaineth yet much land to be possessed, and the present preparations of the Society for future and extended efforts, in the number and efficiency of its Auxiliaries, and in the constantly increasing evidences of the confidence and co-operation of a large portion of the christian public, indicate that the Lord of the harvest is about to do greater things than these, to the glory of God by us. The work is now better understood than ever before. The principles of the Society, and their adaptation to the genius of christianity, have been more thoroughly tested. Never did the Committee feel that they stood at the focus of so many rays of light, as at the present moment. Never, at the commencement of any previous year, was there presented so great a work to be done, as invites the efforts of this Society, for the year to come; and never were they surrounded with so many encouragements to do it. Difficulties, it is true, are to be encountered, obstacles are to be overcome. If it were not so, we should have no need of the whole armour of God, in pushing on to its accomplishment this work of love. But since it is so, the friends of the cause have need to keep near to the throne of him in whom is all their strength; and while the wide spreading wants of the needy, on the one hand, are beseeching us, and the manifest tokens of the divine favour, on the other, are urging us to new and increased exertions, no friend of God, no friend of man, should fear to assume his full share of the responsibilities of this high and holy enterprise, in humble dependence on the grace of Him to whom belong the kingdoms of the world.

By order of the Executive Committee,

ABSALOM PETERS, Corresponding Secretary.

APPENDIX.

THE WESTERN AGENCY OF THE A. H. M. S. FOR THE STATE OF N. Y.

THE "WESTERN AGENCY," which is a board of inquiry and reference, for the district embracing the seventeen western counties in the state of New-York, has been reappointed for the year commencing May, 1831, and is composed of the following gentlemen, viz.:

Rev. HENRY DWIGHT, Geneva, Chairman.

Rev. MILES P. SQUIER, Geneva, Corresponding Secretary and Agent.

Rev. ELIAKIM PHELPS, Geneva.

Mr. ABRAHAM B. HALL, Geneva.

Mr. H. H. SEELYE, Geneva.

Rev. JAMES RICHARDS, D. D. Auburn.

Rev. JOSIAH HOPKINS, Auburn.

Rev. DANIEL C. AXTELL, Auburn.

Rev. ANSEL D. EDDY, Canandaigua.

WALTER HUBBELL, Esq. Canandaigua.

Rev. JOSEPH PENNY, Rochester.

Rev. WILLIAM WISNER, Rochester.

Rev. SYLVESTER EATON, Buffalo.

Mr. JOSEPH STOCKING, Buffalo.

EXTRACTS FROM THE FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The section of our country, which it is our privilege to occupy in behalf of the H. M. cause, has from its first settlement, been one of unusual interest. Occupied principally by the sons of the pilgrims; lying on the great thoroughfare of intercourse and business between the East and the West; possessing every advantage for the pursuits of agriculture and commerce; increasing rapidly in all the results of that industry and enterprise, for which it is proverbial; and signalized, of late, by the Spirit of God, as a theatre of his redeeming influences; it has claims to the regard of the philanthropist and christian which are of no common character.

Only about forty years have elapsed, since the first christian settlements were made on this ground, now containing a population of more than half a million of souls. Sixteen years ago, but one Presbytery had been formed within these limits, (some congregations belonging to another, lying within their Eastern border,) embracing about forty churches, and thirty ministers of the Gospel. There are now on this ground, nine Presbyteries, and one Consociation, numbering not less than one hundred and fifty ministers of the gospel, and having two hundred and twenty-five congregations, or upwards, under their care. More than one half of these congregations, including those at the largest centres of population and influence, either have pastors installed over them, or are statedly supplied with the word and ordinances of Christ's house,—one half of the remainder have the labours of a clergyman, for half of the time each, while the residue, in our more recently settled, and feebler districts, are less frequently blessed with the feet of him, who publishes the tidings of grace.

There is yet room for the planting of more congregations on this field. As, its borders are becoming more densely peopled every year, and as many from the folds of christian instruction are crowding out upon it, we may safely calculate, that within five years, forty or fifty more churches will be located within the limits assigned to this agency.

Of the congregations already supplied, in whole or in part, more than one hundred and twenty have, in succession, been sustained by the A. H. M. S.; seventy-two of which have this year derived aid from its funds. Our number of missionaries has this year been fifty-eight, making, together with the Secretary of this Board, fifty-nine labourers on this field.

The aggregate of the Missionary expenditures, within our bounds, (so far as from a careful estimate, they should be included in a Report of the year ending May 1st, 1831,) is somewhat rising of $5000; but to assist in balancing the appropriations of the year, $500 have been raised, or pledged, in behalf of our funds by Auxiliary Associations, or otherwise, at the stations occupied by our Missionaries.

The receipts of the year have been $5721 40. This amount, besides providing for the expenses which have accrued on the field, will, we trust, furnish some help for the more destitute in the regions beyond us.

This sum has been derived, as heretofore, from Auxiliary Associations, both Male and Female,—from the annual public collections on the Sabbath, or the state Thanksgiving days, at the monthly concert for prayer, and from individual donations. The last has been a most efficient source of income. The church has friends within this agency, who are resolved, that the cause of Home Missions shall not languish by reason of a deficiency of the silver and the gold, that may be requisite to sustain it; and their number is increasing from year to year, as our work moves on, and its results are progressively unfolded.

The largest individual donation to our treasury, the present year has been $1000. One individual appropriates to this department of benevolent efforts $250. Several others sustain each one missionary. Two individuals in one of our farming congregations, besides associating with eight others in sustaining a missionary, contribute $100, for the support of another labourer in the valley of the Mississippi, who shall devote himself more especially to the cause of Sabbath schools. Several of our auxiliary associations sustain each one missionary. This may be said in commendation of the Ladies' Auxiliaries of Auburn, Rochester and Buffalo—of the young Ladies Auxiliary of Rochester, and of the young people's Auxiliary of Geneva. Some congregations have assumed the expense of supporting one Missionary each, and forwarded the requisite sums, and it is a fact worthy of record, that more funds have accrued to our treasury this year, without the personal application of an Agent, than at any previous period.*

The Missionary work, with us, has this year been clothed with unusual interest. Ours have been the consolations of that man, who, when he has "gone forth weeping, bearing precious seed, cometh again rejoicing, bringing the sheaves with him." The present has become the year of Jubilee to the churches in this region. Christians here, have never seen such a time before. The Heavens have dropped down in mercy upon us, and salvation, like a river, has flowed through our streets. More than fifty congregations within this agency, have been visited with seasons of special refreshing from the presence of God, gathering sinners in great numbers to the fold of Christ. Our most important villages, and centres of strength and influence, have been distinguished in the descent of the Divine Spirit, the cloud of mercy has dispersed its blessings, in grateful measures, on various portions of this vineyard, widely remote from each other.

Enterprise, talent, wealth, and influence, have been sanctified, and truth has gained rapidly on the empire of sin and error. It is safe to conclude that from four to five thousand souls, have been added to the "number of the believers" from within the field under review, since the commencement of the revivals in September last. Nor is the work yet stayed. Every hour's intelligence furnishes proof of the advancing movements of the Spirit of God, and justifies the confident expectation of his people, that the "day-spring from on high" is to be on all our border, and give new life and strength to all the churches.

In this dispensation of the spirit, our beneficiary congregations have extensively shared, and it has been to them like "the former and the latter rain." In several of them, the face of society is altogether changed; the cause of the Redeemer has been delivered from the persecutions of a spirit of prevailing impenitence and irreligion; and Zion has been obliged to enlarge the border of her tent, saying, "the place is too strait for me, give place that I may dwell."

Among the congregations the most distinguished, as the seat of the Spirit's influences, are Castleton, in Ontario Co.; Marion, in Wayne Co.; North-Penfield, in Monroe Co.; Bergen and Leroy, (Congregational Society,) in Genessee Co.; Evans, in Erie Co.; Ripley, in Chautauque Co.; and Richford, in the County of Tioga. The average number of conversions to Christ in each of these congregations, is, in the judgment of our missionaries, from seventy-five to one hundred.

Other congregations have been gladdened with gentle showers of grace. Several others are now, exhibiting the presages of a special work in them, while the great body of those, to whom the bounty of the society has extended, have been confirmed in the faith and fellowship of the gospel.

The work of Home Missions is closely associated with every other department of christian effort. Our Missionaries, as charged in their instructions, had done much to help on the cause of benevolence around them. They have been efficient instruments in circulating the Bible; and the christian Tract in advancing the interests of Sabbath schools, and of Temperance, and the sanctification of the Sabbath day; and in stirring up the infant churches, for whom they have laboured, to a benevolent sympathy in behalf of the nations that sit in darkness, and the shadow of death.

Several houses for public worship have been erected this year at the stations occupied by this Board, and several more are under contract, and will be built the present season.

It is evident from a review of the operations of the year, that much advancement has been given to the cause of truth among us, and that the work of domestic missions has approached nearer to its accomplishment within this Agency. Still there remains even here much land to be possessed, to the occupation of which the friends of Christ should now hasten with redoubled energy, and a quickened step. The Spirit of God is leading our way, and crowning our exertions with unexampled success. This day of revivals, urges the necessity of our work, while it multiplies our facilities for its accomplishment. Christian converts from the enclosures of Zion, are thrusting themselves out upon the waste places, and from thence in their extremity, are calling for help; and we are looking with an intense solicitude to the labours and results of the year now to commence. Darkness is fleeing upon the outposts,—new fields of toil and encouragement are opening in rapid succession before us; many of which of inviting promise we hope soon to see supplied with a preached gospel. Let there be union of counsel, and an efficient and systematic charity in the work, and it need not belong before this entire border shall be brought under the influences of the preached gospel, and become as the garden of the Lord.

The harvest is ready for the reaper's hand. The aspects of providence encourage every friend of the missionary cause to minister help now. Opposition, more than ever, is powerless before the march of truth. "The Spirit says come." Nor can we anticipate permanent results for Christ, without the administration of gospel truth, nor must we, when the power to help is in our hands, let there be "a famine of the hearing of the word of the Lord," in such a day as this.

We are sensible, too, that the time has come for the churches within this Agency to look beyond their own wants. We lie in the vicinity of the great western valley, and in the channel of communication to it. We are associated with it, by every law of relationship and love. We would embrace, then, in the arms of a common fellowship, the aggregate wants of our country, and in the might of Him with whom is the residue of the spirit, would we thrust out labourers upon the yet extended devastations of Zion; that the word of Christ may have free course, and be glorified, and that our whole land may become Emmanuel's—"a mountain of holiness, and a habitation of righteousness."

[FROM THE ANNUAL REPORT.]

The operations of this Board were commenced under auspices, in some respects, embarrassing. The prudent and well timed efforts of Rev. Mr. Cushman, the former Agent, were very successful in removing obstructions to its usefulness. Although we have not to report the achievement of all we could wish, yet, when all the circumstances are reviewed, we have ample occasion to praise God for what has been accomplished. A foundation for future usefulness has been laid. With the benediction of Him who has engraven Zion on the palms of his hands, we look forward confidently to happy and most salutary results.

The period which this Report must cover, stretches back to the establishment of this Agency,—embracing an interval of about 15 months.

[A schedule was here subjoined, embracing the names of 38 missionaries, with the dates of commissions, &c.; all of which are incorporated in the alphabetical list of missionaries in the body of this Report.]

Income of the Agency for the period embraced in this Report,	- - -	$2,998 91

The whole amount pledged through this Agency, (including $299, arrearages of the Western Domestic Missionary Society, the payment of which has been assumed by us,) is $4,439 16. To meet these pledges, there is subscribed, and now due to the Agency, something more than is now due to the Missionaries. Besides these subscriptions, there is now in the treasury $155 59. And we feel assured, from the prevailing favour with which the churches regard our object, that they will promptly aid us with the means of meeting all demands upon our treasury.

The whole period of time, covered by the above commissions, is about 47 years. The number of congregations supplied, partially or wholly, is 56; besides the churches visited by Missionaries, who have taken, as their field of labour, all the destitute churches in a whole county.

Of the present wants of the churches within this Agency, we cannot speak so definitely as we could wish. The exact number which are destitute of a preached gospel we cannot tell. This, however, we know,—on every side of us are feeble flocks of Christ's sheep, almost lost in the wilderness, having none to lead them into the green pastures, and beside the still waters of Zion. What we most need, is the men who will go abroad into the lanes and highways, and search out the lost sheep of the house of Israel. We feel confident, that the liberality of the churches will sustain as many such missionaries as is found necessary.

There is one fact worthy to be recorded here. From several feeble and destitute churches, where God is now showering down salvation, the cry for help comes to us with painful importunity. And what can we do? Where are the helpers? We can only say, "If the Lord do not help thee, whence can we help thee?" The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few.

Respecting the future prospects of this Agency, we see at present no occasion of despondency. We trust that we are doing the work of the Lord, and that he will not permit it to languish. The several interruptions in its progress, added to some pre-existing obstructions, have left us on less favourable ground than might otherwise have been anticipated. But trusting in the continued smiles of Divine Providence, we set our faces to go forward, assured that if this work be indeed of God, it cannot be overthrown.

EXTRACT FROM THE REPORT.

This Committee was appointed in February, 1830, but did not commence operations until January, 1831. It is not quite four months since we entered upon the duties assigned us by your Committee. We, therefore, have but little to report concerning what we have done. Our attention has been chiefly directed to the formation of auxiliaries, and raising funds. Several societies have been visited for the purpose of preparing the way for future effort. Ten Auxiliaries have been formed in Kentucky, three in Washington county, two in Clark county, and one in each of the following counties: Jessamine, Madison, Bourbon, Scott, and Montgomery. The amount of subscriptions and cash is, in all, $1658 12. Appropriations have been recommended to missionaries, most of whom are now on the field of their labours. A Committee of Correspondence and Agency for the state of Kentucky, has been appointed, the centre of whose operations is Lexington. Rev. N. H. Hall, Chairman, and also General Agent for the state; Rev. O. S. Hinkley, Secretary, and Mr. William Skillman, Treasurer.

The experience of every day convinces us more deeply of the amazing responsibility under which we now act. Never have we felt so sensibly the necessity of high attainments in knowledge, in wisdom, in holiness, as since engaged in giving some direction and efficiency to the A. H. M. S. in the great valley of the West. Our responsibility can only be equalled by the privilege of being co-workers in a cause which God has owned, and which involves considerations vast as eternity, and solemn as the judgment. We would not take a step in this matter without leaning on the kind arm of our divine Redeemer.

We have been much gratified and encouraged by the zealous co-operation of many churches and individuals on this field. So far as we can judge, there is an increasing attachment to the principles of the A. H. M. S. The more it is known, the more it is approved. The plan and operations of the society show that it is just what it professes to be, the servant of the churches. Its object is, "to assist congregations which are unable to support the Gospel ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute within the United States." The divine favour has hitherto attended its movements, and we are well persuaded that it is one branch of the grand system of benevolence which is to fill the world with the riches of redeeming grace. Aware that no important object was ever prosecuted without difficulty, we are not surprised that we should be assailed, our movements censured, and our motives impeached; but nothing has yet occurred to wean our affections from the society, or to shake our determination to hold on. The candid mind must perceive, that the Home Missionary Society, in all its operations, simply aims to do good; it interferes with no ecclesiastical rule, and pretends to no ecclesiastical power. It furnishes means to support such men, and such only, as are approved by the judicatories of the churches within whose bounds they labour.

The prospects before us at present, are in some respects discouraging; the collisions arising from the separate action of the two missionary boards, have already produced evils in the churches which the most fearful did not anticipate. If something is not speedily done the whole enterprise of benevolence in the west will be retarded. O that the friends of the Redeemer would fix their attention on the shortness of time, the worth of souls, the wants of the church, and the glory of Christ!

The real condition of the western country cannot be easily described so as to be clearly conceived of by persons who have never been much acquainted with new countries; on every hand wide-spread desolation meets the eye. The state of Kentucky, one of the oldest states west of the Alleghanies, it being now 56 years since the first settlement commenced, is not half supplied with ministerial labour of any kind; fifty counties are destitute of any Presbyterian preaching, as there is not one preacher in the whole; other denominations are doing much good in restraining vice, and directing souls to heaven; but still very little is done by all, compared with the real wants of the state. Nothing efficient and successful can be done without the stated ministry. The Bible may be distributed, but it will not be read even by those who can read, and in some counties great numbers even of those over ten years of age are unable to read at all. Sabbath Schools may also be established, but they will soon run down, unless there is a minister on the ground to keep up an interest. We have mentioned Kentucky, not because it is more or less destitute than other states in this valley, but simply because we are more acquainted with facts concerning it. We are very happy to add, that we have witnessed a spirit of Christian liberality in the churches which have been visited in that state, which is truly encouraging. Many considerations unite to urge us on in the attempt to mingle a religious influence with the growing population of the west. We feel that in this valley lie the destinies of America, with respect both to its civil and religious interests. It contains now 4,000,000 of inhabitants. It is capable of sustaining 200,000,000. In 20 years the majority of the people in the United States will be west of the Allegany mountains; in 30 years that majority will be overwhelming, and will, of course, give laws to the nation. Every thing interesting to man for time and for eternity, urges to action. We feel much more on this subject than we know how to express. Even the temporal interests involved here are vastly important; but ETERNITY, with all its scenes, its glories, and its glooms, are embraced in it. And as we thus contemplate this matter, and see the immense interests that are suspended upon the movements of the present moment, and consider the millions of immortal beings who will on this ground form characters for eternity, we are ready to make any sacrifice which may be necessary to rescue them from the power of sin, and raise them to everlasting life and glory.

By order of the Central Committee of Agency for the Western States.

RALPH CUSHMAN, Corresponding Secretary.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

—From the Report of the N. H. M. Society for the year, ending September, 1830, we gather the following facts. Forty-nine stations, including fifty-six places, and fifty-three churches, are mentioned as beneficiaries of the Society. There are twenty two other churches as really the objects of charity as those which are aided, making seventy-five churches, (about half of the Evangelical, Congregational, and Presbyterian churches of New-Hampshire,) which are proper subjects for charitable aid! Besides these, we are assured there are numerous towns in which there is no competent religious teacher, nor Evangelical Church.

We can afford room in this place for only one extract from the Report, containing an appeal to the more favoured portions of the Christian community.

"The church is the family of Christ. The church of Christ in New-Hampshire is his family in New-Hampshire. And has he not, in his paternal bounty, and by his redeeming blood, made ample provision for all his family? Is there not, within the limits of his family, bread and meat, wine and milk, sufficient for every member? Were the members of his family disposed to have all spiritual things in common, and to impart as every one had need, eating their bread, and drinking their wine, with gladness and singleness of heart, praising God, would any of the members be destitute of the necessities of spiritual life? Christ has, indeed, variously bestowed his bounty. And in this he manifests his wisdom. Putting provision enough, and to spare, into the hands of some members of his family, he tries them, whether they will give a cup of cold water, and a morsel of bread, in his name, to his needy and suffering brethren. If none were hungry, there would be no occasion for others to give them meat. Were none thirsty, there would be no opportunity for others to give them drink. If none were strangers, then none could be taken in as such. Were none naked, none would need clothing from the hand of charity. If none were sick, there would be no such duty as visiting the sick. Were none in prison, then none would have to go to brethren in bonds to comfort them."

"Let it be repeated; let it be preached upon the house-tops, for it will be published to the Universe another day, that branches of Christ's church, purchased with his own invaluable blood, set as a seal on his heart, a seal on his arm, members of his family, dear to him as the apple of his eye, are destitute of those provisions, which his love and his sufferings, have made for their spiritual life, comfort and growth in grace. And besides all this, a multitude of souls, as it were, at our very doors, are perishing for lack of vision."

TERMS OF CONNEXION AND STIPULATION,

Between the American Home Missionary Society and its Auxiliaries, recommended by the Executive Committee.

In the formation of the numerous branches of the national institution, it has been a subject of no little difficulty to determine upon a plan of co-operation suited to the condition of existing societies in all parts of the United States, and equally adapted to promote the interests of the parent Society, and each of its auxiliaries. The Executive Committee have, accordingly, waited for the results of experience, that they might permanently pursue the best method to secure these objects. They are now prepared to recommend with confidence the following, as a plan altogether practicable, and equally suited, as it is designed, to promote the efficiency and harmony of the missionary work in the several states and religious denominations represented in the national Society, viz.:

PLAN OF LARGER SOCIETIES.

In those parts of the country where efficient organizations in aid of Home Missions do not already exist, the formation of two kinds of societies auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. is desired; the one large, and the other small, and the former to embrace the latter. Each larger society may be formed to embrace the limits of a county, a city, a state, a presbytery, or a synod, as shall be judged most conducive to its activity and efficiency. The objects of all such societies should be to raise funds to furnish, first, all needed aid to the destitute within their own limits; and, secondly, to aid the parent society in extending the Gospel to communities still more needy. To accomplish these objects most effectually, it is important that each society be so small, in extent of territory, that its committee or executive board may have a competent knowledge of the claims of the destitute within its limits, while it should be sufficiently large to furnish a field for the operations of an agent, for the collection of funds, the formation of subsidiary organizations, and to act as its organ of communication with the parent society. For this last purpose it is judged expedient that in all cases where the auxiliary society is sufficiently large to employ a permanent agent, he be also its corresponding secretary.

FORM OF CONSTITUTION,

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

ART. I.—This society shall be known by the name of the Domestic Missionary Society of _____, and shall be auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

ART. II.—This society shall be composed of such individuals as shall contribute annually to its funds, together with the members of the several church and congregational associations for Home Missions within the limits of this society.

ART. III.—The officers of the society shall be a president, _____ vice presidents, a treasurer, and a secretary, to be chosen at the annual meeting. These officers, in connexion with at least one person elected from each of the several associations of gentlemen composing the society, shall constitute a board of directors, of whom not less than five shall be a quorum at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. IV.—It shall be the duty of the board of directors to meet at the call of the president, or as often as shall be necessary for the transaction of business; to fill their own vacancies, to appoint an executive committee, to adopt the most energetic measures in their power to accomplish the object of the society; especially by distributing such publications as may be committed to them by the parent institution, and by deputing some of their number to attend the annual meetings of the several associations; and, in general, by using all suitable means to excite an interest in the cause of Home Missions.

ART. V.—The annual receipts of the society, after defraying incidental expenses, shall be paid over to the treasurer of the parent society, with directions as to the section of country in which it shall be expended in missionary labours, should the board deem it important to give such directions. [See resolutions on next page.]

ART. VI.—The society shall meet as often as called by the directors, and annually on the _____ of March, when the officers shall be elected; the accounts of the treasurer, properly audited, shall be presented, and the annual report of the directors received, and when this constitution may be amended by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

ART. VII.—A copy of the constitution, authenticated by the secretary, together with the names and the residences of the officers annually elected, and also a copy of each annual report, shall be transmitted to the corresponding secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, as early as the first of April in each year.

STIPULATIONS.

For the purpose of producing uniformity in the operations of the larger societies, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., and the better to secure to each the control of its funds and appropriations, the following resolutions are recommended to their adoption; and the executive committee will engage, with every auxiliary adopting them, to perform the stipulations which these resolutions require of the parent society, provided the proposed limits of societies requesting to become auxiliary on this plan, be such as, in the opinion of this committee, will facilitate the operations of the parent society within the same; and provided these engagements having been formed with the missionary society of a state, or a synod, shall not be so construed as to debar this committee from the liberty of co-operating, if desired, with any county, presbyterial, or other society within its limits, acting independently of said larger society.

RESOLUTIONS,

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

1. This society shall pay over to the treasurer of the A. H. M. S. the whole of its income, from time to time, after deducting incidental expenses; provided, however, that the permanent fund* of the society shall for ever remain, as to the power of investment, &c. under its own control; and, provided, also, that the whole, or any part of said income, having been reported as subject to the order of the parent society, shall be allowed to remain, if requested by the directors of this society, in the treasury of the same, for the payment of missionaries and agents, as hereinafter stipulated.

A sufficient number of blank commissions shall be furnished to this society, by the executive committee of the parent society, signed by the chairman and corresponding secretary of the same, which shall be filled and countersigned by the proper officers, and issued on the responsibility of this society.

3. All missionaries shall be paid from the income of this society, in the manner following: (viz.) The directors of this society having reported the income, or receipts of the same, to the parent society, and having requested that so much of the income so reported, as they shall deem necessary to answer the engagements of this society, may be retained for that purpose, the executive committee of the parent society shall, in answer to such request, and without delay, direct the treasurer of the same to issue an order to the directors of this society, to retain the whole, or such portion of the said income, as shall have been thus requested, for the purpose of paying the same as it shall become due to the missionaries appointed by this society, under commissions from the parent institution.

4. Should appropriations of aid be needed within the _____ to exceed the amount of the income of this society, such appropriations shall be made directly by the parent society, on the sole responsibility of the same; provided, however, that in all such cases, the advice and recommendation of the directors of this society shall be previously obtained.

5. This society shall be governed in its appropriations by the general principles which govern the appropriations of the parent society.

6. This society shall appoint no missionaries or agents out of the limits of the same.

7. Agents for the collection of funds for this society, may be appointed by the executive committee of the parent society, with the recommendation or consent of the directors of this auxiliary, and all agents so appointed shall report the amount of their collections, both to the auxiliary and the parent society; and each agent so appointed, shall receive his compensation from this society, in the same manner that the missionaries of the society receive theirs.

Reasons of the foregoing Recommendations.

The above resolutions are in accordance with the spirit of the eighth article of the constitution of the parent society. They have been already adopted by the New-Hampshire Missionary Society, the Vermont Domestic Missionary Society, the Hampshire Missionary Society, Mass., and substantially by a number of other societies, as the basis of their auxiliary connexion with the A. H. M. S. In recommending the same to the adoption of societies, which may hereafter become auxiliary, the executive committee of the parent society are influenced by the following considerations:

* Societies which have no permanent fund, will, of course, omit this stipulation in adopting these resolutions.

1. Wherever these resolutions are adopted, they will bring the influence of the parent society to act on its auxiliaries in the matter of raising funds, and thus a principle distinctly avowed in the formation of the national institution, will be most securely guarded, viz.: That local societies should not be superseded, nor impeded in their operations, but strengthened and stimulated. On this plan the agent of each auxiliary will also be the agent of the parent society, and by keeping advised of the operations and necessities of the latter, will be able to acquaint each congregation which he may address, with what the whole country is doing; and the influence of example will be fully felt, while the great national object, by being presented as one and undivided, will assume an importance as much superior to that exhibited by the separate claims of a local society, as the wants of the nation are more extensive than those of a single state or county; and it is found, that when facts are presented as the ground of appeal, Christians and patriots are every where disposed to contribute in proportion to the magnitude of the work to be accomplished by their beneficence. In this way the resources of each local society may be greatly increased by a connexion with the national institution.

2. By these stipulations, each auxiliary society is left to the independent and unembarrassed exercise of all its rights in the business of appropriating its own funds to the relief of the needy within its limits, while it secures to itself the additional advantage of directing other appropriations made by the parent society within the same bounds. And this is an advantage which will be very gladly yielded to auxiliary presbyteries, synods and societies, whose knowledge of the work to be done within their own limits is, in all cases, much more minute and particular than can be possessed through the medium of correspondence by the national institution.

3. These stipulations, wherever they shall be adopted, will put it out of the power of the national society to contravene the wishes of those whose business it is to manage the affairs, and guard the purity of the churches in the different sections of our country. It can plant no missionary in stations yielded to the supervision of an auxiliary society, presbytery or synod, without the approbation of the same; and when a missionary or agent shall cease to be approved by the auxiliary, the parent society will be bound to recal him, or withdraw his support. Thus the national institution claims to be the servant of the churches wherever it may be permitted to act in the benevolent work for which it has been formed and sustained. It pretends to no ecclesiastical authority. It interferes not with the discipline, nor the peculiar views of any section of the church, but desires to act through its auxiliaries, and to be directed in its operations by their united counsels. It will aid feeble congregations in the support of such ministers only as shall have been approved by the ecclesiastical bodies with which they are connected. This society has no charter, and no funded property. It has its being only in the confidence and co-operation of the Christian public; and should it ever, through unfaithfulness to its trust, cease to deserve these, its auxiliaries may withdraw them, and the national society must cease to exist.

4. The effect of this whole plan, should it become universal in the churches represented in this society, will be the same which was contemplated in the formation of the national institution.

It will prevent the interference and cross-action of a number of independent societies, occupying portions of the same field without concert, and without agreement. The state, synodical, presbyterial, and other local societies, will be confined in their appropriations, each to its own limits, and as fast as they are able, they will supply their own destitute; while the national society, gathering strength from the increased resources of its auxiliaries, will be the servant of all in conveying their surplus charities to the new and increasing fields of desolation in our frontier settlements. For this service, the national society, sustained by the co-operation here recommended, will possess peculiar advantages. Its office will be the centre of intelligence on the subject of Home Missions, and the medium through which the numerous local societies may communicate with each other. And what gives life and energy to this whole system is, that the national society, thus sustained, is enabled to employ permanent officers, and be, in effect, constantly in session. This is an advantage which can be enjoyed by no local society, but which is indispensable to the prompt and successful prosecution of the work of missions on a field so extensive and diversified as remains to be occupied in this country.

This plan is also suited to produce a uniformity of operation, and the missionaries such in our annual alphabetical list, with appropriate marks to denote by what auxiliary society they have been supported. Thus the influence of each auxiliary will be embodied, and an annual report presented, which will embrace the doings of all ; the local societies will no longer be regarded as rivals of each other, but fellow labourers in the same field, and the missionaries as belonging to the same family.

SMALLER SOCIETIES.

Within the limits of each larger society, there should be organized auxiliary societies or associations. Of these associations it is recommended that there be formed two in each town, parish, or congregation, the one composed of males, and the other of females ; and that they adopt the following

RULES

For the Government of Church [or Congregational] Associations [or Societies] for Home Missions.

1. This association shall be called the [or Female] Missionary Association [or Society,] of Church, [or Congregation,] auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of .]

2. Every person who shall contribute annually to the funds, shall be a member.

3. *The affairs of the association shall be conducted by a first and second director, [or directress,] a secretary, a treasurer, and collectors, who shall be chosen annually, and together shall constitute a committee.

4. It shall be the duty of the committee to meet at least once in three months, to appoint assistant collectors, and transact such other business as may come before them.

5. The first director, [or directress,] and in case of his [or her] absence, the second director, [or directress,] shall preside in all meetings of the association, and shall have power to call special meetings at pleasure.

The secretary shall keep the records, and manage the correspondence.

The treasurer shall take charge of the money collected, and after deducting incidental expenses, shall pay the same to the American Home Missionary Society, [or to the Auxiliary Society of .]

It shall be the duty of the collectors to solicit and receive contributions. For this purpose they shall make a suitable division of their labours, call upon the individuals within their respective limits, take the names of persons disposed to contribute, together with the sums which they will give for the year, and shall pay the amount of their collections to the treasurer, previous to the next annual meeting of the association.

6. The Association shall meet annually, on the second Monday in March of each year, when the Report shall be read, and the election of officers held ; and when these rules may be altered by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

7. The Annual Report of this Association shall be transmitted by the Secretary, to the Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of] immediately after the annual meeting of the Association.

* Or, if it be preferred, the third article may read as follows. " The affairs of this association shall be conducted by the Elders [or deacons] of this church, who shall annually appoint, from their own number, a first and second director, a Secretary, a Treasurer and Collectors ; and these together shall constitute a committee."

SIXTH ANNIVERSARY.

THE American Home Missionary Society held its Sixth Anniversary in the Chatham-street Chapel, New-York, on Wednesday evening, May 9, 1832. The Hon. Stephen Van Rensselaer, LL. D., President of the Society, took the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. Dr. Mac Auley, D. D. LL. D., of Philadelphia.

The President made an appropriate address, exhibiting briefly the object and principles of the Society.

The Treasurer's Account, with the certificate of the Auditor, was read by Mr. Knowles Taylor, Treasurer.

The Sixth Annual Report of the Society was read by the Rev. Absalom Peters, Corresponding Secretary; after which, an appropriate hymn was sung, and the following resolutions were adopted, viz:—

1. On motion of the Rev. D. L. Carroll, of Brooklyn, N. Y., seconded by the Rev. Hugh Barr, of Courtland, Alabama.

Resolved, That the Report be adopted, and printed, under the direction of the Executive Committee.

2. On motion of the Rev. George A. Baxter, D. D., Professor in the Union Theol. Sem., Virginia, seconded by the Rev. Sylvester Eaton, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Resolved, That, in view of the extraordinary influences of the Holy Ghost, manifested especially in the numerous revivals of religion reported, and the large number of additions to the churches under the labours of the Missionaries of this Society, the last year, devout gratitude is due to Almighty God.

3. On motion of the Rev. W. M. Thomson, Missionary to Palestine, and a native of Ohio, seconded by the Rev. Samuel H. Cox, D. D., of New-York,

Resolved, That the large pledges of the Executive Committee, in aid of the destitute, for the year to come, meet the approbation of this Society, and demand increased contributions from the friends of missions.

In support of the foregoing resolutions, addresses were made, by the Rev. Mr. Carroll, Dr. Baxter, Mr. Thomson, and Dr. Cox. The meeting was also briefly addressed by Mr. L. Tappan, of New-York, and the Rev. Heman Humphrey, D. D., President of Amherst College, Massachusetts.

The great congregation then united in singing an appropriate hymn, after which the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. J. M. Mathews, D. D., of New-York.

The Society then proceeded to the election of officers, for the ensuing year, and unanimously made choice of the following, viz :

CONSTITUTION
OF THE
AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 1. This Society shall be denominated "THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY."

ART. 2. The great object of this Society shall be, to assist congregations that are unable to support the Gospel Ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute, within the United States.

ART. 3. The Officers of the Society shall be, a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, a Corresponding Secretary, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors; who shall be annually appointed by the Society; and who, together with the Directors for life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. 4. The Officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of thirteen, (including the Treasurer, the Corresponding Secretary, and the Recording Secretary,) residing in the City of New York and its vicinity; seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened. This Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society; shall appoint Missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labours; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing Missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the Institution may require; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

ART. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds, annually, to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

ART. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society, by contributing annually to its funds; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for life; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for life; and any person, on the payment of a sum, which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for life. An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for life ; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute him a Director for life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Corresponding Secretary a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a Missionary, or Missionaries, to labour in such field as it may designate ; at least to the amount of its contributions ; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The Officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be ex-officio Directors ; and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of this Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the city of New-York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

ART. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution, without a vote of two thirds of the Members present, at an annual meeting ; nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

SIXTH REPORT.

THE year to be reviewed, at the present anniversary, is distinguished in the annals of the world. It has been, at once, an "acceptable year of the Lord," and a "day of vengeance of our God." Even our own republic has been moved with conflicts, which have led some of little faith, to predict its disruption, while, in the older nations, thrones have tottered, and political structures, whose walls had been cementing for ages, have been rent by convulsions, which have agitated the whole fabric of civil society.

The moral world, also, has been moved with conflicts of high, and decisive, and momentous bearing. On the one hand, infidelity of every grade has been combining its energies with the mighty power of the "man of sin," the "son of perdition," to roll back the car of salvation. On the other, the faith of Christians has fastened, with more than its former strength, upon the promises of God to his people; and the great enterprise of reclaiming the whole world to the rightful dominion of the Saviour, has been pursued with greater energy, with larger preparation, and more glorious success, than ever before. While the enemy has come in like a flood, the spirit of the Lord has lifted up a standard against him. This has come to pass, not only in the increased energy and extension of benevolent efforts throughout christendom, for the conversion of the world, but especially in the new and extraordinary manifestations of the power of the Holy Ghost, in the revival of religion in the churches of the United States. Never have these churches enjoyed so much of the presence and blessing of the Saviour; and never, it is believed, since the days of the Apostles, has the cause of salvation, in any country, made so great an advancement, in so short a period.

It is estimated, that two thousand churches, of different denominations, in the United States, have been visited with revivals of religion, within the last twelve months, and that not less than one hundred thousand souls have been converted. Here is exhibited the brightest aspect of the providential government of God over this world. So large an enlistment to the soldiery of Jesus Christ, in a single year, and in such a nation, is a cause, which will give life and power to all other causes, which, under God, are hastening the world's conversion. And here has been especially felt the influence of the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY. While the field of its operations has been much enlarged, and the number of its missionaries increased, it has been chosen of God, as the instrument of salvation to many souls.

So signal, in this respect, have been its triumphs, that the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, in presenting their SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT, would not feel that they had duly honoured the divine grace, which has accompanied their operations, should they fail to designate the year which is now past, as characteristically a YEAR OF REVIVALS OF RELIGION. To have lived through its labours, and now, in the presence of listening thousands, to look back upon the history of such a year, is a privilege delightfully suited to awaken the gratitude, strengthen the faith, and encourage the brightest hopes, of the friends of this favoured Society.

WHOLE NUMBER OF MISSIONARIES, &c.

From the preceding details it appears, that the whole number of missionaries and agents employed by this Society, during the year, is 509; and the number of congregations and missionary districts, aided in their support, 745. Of the missionaries and agents enumerated, 351 were in commission at the commencement of the year; a large proportion of whom have been re-appointed, and are still in the service of the Society. The remaining 158 have been new appointments, during the year, making, in all, 509.

EXTENT OF FIELDS, AND AMOUNT OF LABOUR PERFORMED.

Of the whole number, thus employed, 347 are settled as pastors, or are employed as "stated supplies," in single congregations; 131 divide their labours between two or three congregations; and 31, including agents, have been employed on larger fields. Thus distributed, the missionaries of this Society, during the year, have probably preached the gospel, with more or less frequency, to more than 700,000 people, and to a large portion of these, their ministry has been constant. The amount of ministerial labour reported as performed within the year, in the service of this Society, is 361 years and 5 months.

AMOUNT OF EXPENDITURES.

To sustain these extended operations, even on the strictest plan of economy, has required a large pecuniary expenditure. To diminish as much as possible this amount, the Committee have made their appropriations with the utmost caution; and, on a review of their doings for the year, they are convinced that, in most cases, their grants have rather been below than above the righteous claims of the needy upon the bounty of the Christian public. Their invariable rule has been, to appropriate, in each case, the smallest sum, which, after due inquiry, has seemed sufficient to enable the congregation aided to sustain the minister of its choice; and so strict has been their adherence to this rule, that the support afforded to most of the missionaries, in their arduous labours, has been such as would have been complained of, as inadequate, by any but self-denying men, who count it a privilege to make sacrifices to preach the gospel to the poor. But notwithstanding the studied economy of the Committee, the increase of missionaries has required a correspondent increase of expenditures. The amount actually paid out from the treasury during the year, including office rent, Secretary's salary, and all the incidental expenses of the Society, is $52,808,39, which is more, by $5,550,79, than the payments of the previous year. Yet, this amount, distributed among 509 missionaries and agents, would divide the average sum to each of only $103; and, deducting the amount paid to several agents, and to a number of missionaries in distant and frontier stations, who derive almost their whole support from the Society, it affords not more than about $100 for each year of ministerial service actually performed. The amount expended, therefore, though large in comparison with the payments of former years, is small in comparison with the increased number of missionaries employed, and of congregations aided, and smaller still, when viewed in connexion with the glorious results of which we shall speak in the sequel of this Report.

STATE OF THE TREASURY, AND THE MEANS OF REPLENISHING IT.

In view of so large an expenditure, it may be asked with interest, whence have been derived the means? This is a question important to be answered, not only for the satisfaction of the friends of the Society in relation to the past, but both for their instruction and encouragement in regard to the efforts and sacrifices which the future exigencies of the cause may demand, at the hands of those who are pledged before God and the American public to sustain it. The answer of the Executive Committee is contained in the following statements, which they commend to the careful attention of all who desire to feel, as American Christians, the full weight of their responsibilities, in relation to the great work to be accomplished by this Society.

At the commencement of the year, May 11, 1831, there were in the Treasury $877 13. This was the whole amount of our stock in hand for the enterprise before us. At the same time, the Committee were under engagements to missionaries and agents, then in the field, to the amount of $36,785, which they were bound to fulfil within the year. Thus destitute of resources, excepting in the confidence of the co-operation of the Christian public, and the manifested favour of God, they entered upon their work, as they had done in former years, trusting only in the blessing of him who is head over all things to the church.—That blessing has not been withheld; but the Committee are constrained to report, that, during the whole progress of the year, their faith has been more severely, and they hope, more profitably tried, than in any former year, in relation to the pecuniary means of sustaining the enlarged and constantly increasing operations of the Society. From the 11th of May to the 1st of December, the disbursements from the Treasury were $20,236 67, and yet, during that whole period, receipts were only $8,616 79. This left the treasury, at the latter date, overdrawn $11,619 88; for which individuals of the Committee had become personally responsible, that there might be no failure in the prompt payment of the drafts of the missionaries. In the mean time, efforts had been used to procure agents to engage permanently in the business of collecting funds for this Society, and with some success.

Four agents had been appointed in the New-England states, in connexion with the Auxiliary Societies of those states, viz. :— Rev. R. S. Storrs, in Massachusetts; Rev. C. L. Watson, in Connecticut; Rev. A. Rankin, in New-Hampshire, and Rev. D. O. Morton, in Vermont. The Rev. D. Porter, D. D., Rev. M. P. Squier, and Rev. O. P. Hoyt, were also actively engaged in the state of New-York, and the Rev. D. W. Lathrop, in Ohio and Michigan. These agents, however, had yet made but small returns to the treasury; and our invaluable agent at Cincinnati, the late Rev. R. Cushman, whose influence was telling most happily upon the cause in the states west of the mountains, had been cut down in the midst of his labours; and though the savour of his triumphant death, like the memory of his devoted life, will long live and act upon the cause of peace and piety in the great valley, his lamented removal was a loss to the pecuniary and other interests of this Society on that field, which no other appointment could immediately supply.

Thus embarrassed and afflicted, the Committee were constrained to pause and deliberate, whether they ought not to withhold further appropriations, until they should be possessed of the means of going forward in their work, without the necessity of increasing their own pecuniary responsibility. But even under the pressure of this apparent necessity, they dared not to curtail, in any important measure, the operations of the Society. The spirit of the enterprise forbade it. Every lesson of their past experience, and the accumulating and extraordinary blessing of God upon the labours of the Society's missionaries, forbade it. They therefore commended the cause to the mercy of the Saviour, and determined to go forward. They invited a meeting of a number of the friends of the object in the city, before whom they exhibited the financial condition of the Society, and were much encouraged by their liberal pledges and subscriptions. They also addressed the public through the religious newspapers, and issued a circular to individuals in different parts of the country. These were answered by a few liberal returns to the treasury, and the agency of the Corresponding Secretary, and the efforts of the agents before named, began soon to be more productive; and we report, with gratitude, that the result of a continued and laborious effort, to the present time, has relieved, in some measure, the responsibility of the Committee. The receipts of the Society, during the last year, as appears from the Treasurer's Report, have exceeded those of the preceding year $2,174 52, and the expenditures have increased $5,550 79. This leaves the treasury overdrawn, at the present time, $2,509 14; and in addition to this, the Committee are under engagements to missionaries now in the field $36,644 50, making the whole amount, a part of which is now due, and the whole of which is pledged to be paid within the coming twelve months, $39,153 64.

REMARKS ON THE STATE OF THE TREASURY.

This is a state of the treasury, which, we are aware, would be discouraging, were it not for the increasing evidence, in the results of its operations, that this Society is owned of God. But, "he that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap." What, then, are these shadows of discouragement, while the eternal sun-light of the divine favour to his own cause is falling upon the eye of faith, and will certainly, in due time, ripen the fruit of every labour of love?

It cannot be, that the present deficiency in the treasury, of $2,509, will be permitted to retard the steady advancement of an enterprise, which appeals so directly to the interest of our whole country, and to the heart of every American Christian. The responsibility of this sum, it is true, together with the pledges already made, and the additional amount, which must be provided in the course of the coming year, to sustain, with vigour, the operations of the Society, is too large to be assumed by the individuals of the Committee, if they might not depend upon the more liberal co-operation of the Christian public. But this dependance they feel that they have a right to cherish.

There are pecuniary means enough in the hands of the friends of this Society, and ten times more than enough, to push on this enterprise to the full extent of the wants of our country; and if we have not entirely mistaken the spirit of our holy communion, in the several denominations who have combined to accomplish it, there is piety enough to contribute all that may be needed. And the grace of God, in the progress of the work, will confer more piety. It is in the nature of the enterprise itself, to gather strength as it advances. The cause increases the effect, and the effect, in its turn, increases the cause; and to stay the onward progress of such an enterprise, would be to change those immutable principles, which secure the perpetuity and extension of the Christian church.

The Committee, therefore, should they be longer intrusted with this work, will not hesitate to go forward. In making this announcement, however, they rest upon the confidence, that the facts already stated, and yet to be communicated, in this Report, will impress deeply upon the minds of the Christian public, that the cause of Home Missions has not yet awakened half the sympathy, nor called forth half the efforts and sacrifices, which its importance and prospects demand.

SOURCES OF INCOME.

The sources of the Society's receipts, as stated in former Reports, have been numerous and diversified. Donations from individuals have been received from almost every section of the country, accompanied with the most animating expressions of interest in the cause. Several small legacies have also been collected; but much less has been derived from this source than in the preceding year. Collections by missionaries and others, and contributions and collections in churches, have constituted a considerable item in the receipts of the Treasurer. But much the largest amount received from any one of the general sources of income, has been derived from Agencies, Societies, Associations, and Churches, regularly organized as auxiliaries. These have increased, during the year, from 385 to 416.

The following, on account of the efficiency and extent of their operations, as well as the amounts which they have severally contributed to the Parent Society, demand a special notice in this Report, viz:—

1. THE WESTERN AGENCY IN THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

The results of the operations of this agency, the last year, have surpassed those of any former year, and it continues to hold its distinction as the most efficient of the auxiliaries of the Parent Society. Its missionaries, including the agent on that field, have been 64, who have preached the gospel, and administered its ordinances, in from 70 to 80 congregations and missionary districts, 18 of which never before enjoyed stated preaching. Ten congregations, formerly aided, have, within the year, signified their ability and determination to dispense with further aid; and on more than half of the whole number, the Spirit of God has descended in gracious influences, gathering sinners by twenties and fifties into the fold of Christ. The receipts of the agency have been $5,749 21, and the payments on that field have been $5,100; leaving a balance in favour of the treasury of the Society of $649 21, which has been expended in regions of greater destitution. [See Report of this Agency, in Appendix.]

2. THE CENTRAL AGENCY IN THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

The number of missionaries employed on the field of this agency, within the year, is 50, and the congregations supplied, in whole or in part, by their ministry, 69. The receipts of the treasury, through this agency, have been about $3,000, and the prospect is encouraging for a larger income the next year. On that field, also, as on others, the blessing of God has been richly enjoyed, in revivals of religion. [See Appendix.]

3. THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF AGENCY FOR HOME MISSIONS IN THE WESTERN STATES, ESTABLISHED IN CINCINNATI, OHIO.

This agency was organized in the autumn of 1830, and was reported at our last anniversary as in successful operation.—The Rev. R. Cushman had been appointed on that field as General Agent of the Society, and Corresponding Secretary of the agency, and was prosecuting his labours with great industry and discretion, and with very encouraging success. His efforts were continued, and had already accomplished much in commending the Society and the cause of missions to the favour of the western public, when he was suddenly called from his labours by the hand of death, August 27, 1831. By this mysterious and afflictive providence, the affairs of the agency were thrown into some confusion; the business of collections for the Society was arrested, and from other causes, (which are perhaps sufficiently known to the public,) the operations of the Committee, on that interesting and important field, suffered loss, until November 28, 1831, when the Rev. James W. Douglass, late of Virginia, having been appointed General Agent, &c. as successor of Mr. Cushman, entered upon his labours. Mr. D. has been usefully employed, in conducting the business of the agency, in collecting funds, and otherwise promoting the cause of the Society; and though his labours have been much interrupted by ill health, they have not been in vain. The amount actually collected by that agency, during the year, for the treasury of the Society, has been $416 26, while their correspondence has been highly important to the Executive Committee, in directing its appropriations in a large section of the west.

4. CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society, which has become formally auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. within the last year, stands first among the Auxiliary Societies in the New-England states, in the amount of its contributions to the treasury of the Parent Institution. The number of its missionaries in the state of Connecticut, appointed under commissions from the Parent Society, including the agent in that state, has been 23; in addition to which, it has assumed the support of 7 of the missionaries of the A. H. M. S. in the state of Missouri, at a probable expense of not less than $1,800. Their receipts during the year, from April 1, 1831, to April 1, 1832, have been $3,792 47.

5. MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The annual returns from this auxiliary are of an animating character. Its receipts have been $3,530 14, and the number of missionaries sustained by its funds, in the state of Maine, has been 56. In addition to this, the Parent Society has aided in the support of 11 missionaries in that state, by the appropriation of funds pledged for that purpose by the "Massachusetts Missionary Society," making the whole number employed in Maine, during the year, 67.

6. VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society continues to prosecute its work with vigour, and is an efficient helper of the Parent Society. The number of missionaries sustained by its funds in the state of Vermont, since our last Report, including the agent in that state, has been 29.

7. NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The amount of receipts, through the treasury of this Society, during the last year, has been $2,915 17, and the number of missionaries supported in that state, under commissions from the Parent Society, including the agent, 41. The efforts of the agent, now labouring in that state, promise much for the cause hereafter.

8. HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY, MASS.

This Society, embracing the principal part of the old county of Hampshire, Mass., has raised $790 96 for the treasury of the Parent Society, which has been appropriated, as directed, in the support of 5 missionaries in different states.

9. WESTERN RESERVE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The field embraced by this auxiliary, is the northern part of Ohio, and the whole of Michigan Territory, and is co-extensive with the Western Reserve Synod. The amount of contributions through its treasury, and the hands of the agent on that field, has been $1,430 02, and the number of missionaries sustained by its funds 8; in addition to which, the Parent Society has employed 46, making in all, within the bounds of that Synod, 54 missionaries.

10. AUXILIARIES IN SINGLE CONGREGATIONS.

Among the auxiliaries in single congregations, the following have contributed the largest amounts, during the last year, viz :—

The Cedar-street Presbyterian Church, New-York,	}
including the Sab. School M. S., in the same,	}	$1,924 00
The Brick Church, New-York,	- - - -	1,831 75
The Laight-street Church, New-York,	- - - -	1,290 14
Second Presb. Church, Troy, N. Y.,	- - - -	1,089 35

SABBATH SCHOLARS' ASSOCIATIONS.

These Associations, in several congregations, have rendered important aid to the Society. The oldest and most efficient of these, is that which has been in operation five years in the Sabbath Schools of the Cedar-street Presbyterian Church, New-York, embracing a male and a female branch, whose contributions, the last year, have reached the sum of $600, which has been appropriated to the support of 5 missionaries. The Sabbath Scholars' Missionary Association, in the Scotch Presbyterian Church, Cedar-street, has contributed $50, and supported 1 missionary; that in the South Dutch Church, has raised $100, and supported 1 missionary; and other similar Associations have followed these interesting examples of youthful activity and enterprise in the cause of God.

Such have been the sources of the Society's income, while its appropriations have been extended to 22 states and territories of the United States, and to the adjoining province of Upper Canada.

The following

From this table it appears, that while the operations of this Society have encouraged and strengthened the efforts of its Auxiliaries in the older states, to aid the needy within their own bounds respectively, the Executive Committee have not failed to concentrate as much as could be obtained of the resources of the older states, both in men and in the means of their support, to supply the wide spreading wants of the western and southern sections of our country. The state of New-York, for instance, has contributed $14,159 88 more than has been expended in sustaining the missionaries and agents within its bounds ; and each of the New-England states, excepting Maine, has supplied something to our treasury, besides the amount required for the support of their own missionaries. This has been appropriated to the newer and more needy states and territories.

In the southern states, it is true, we have planted comparatively few labourers. The reason is obvious ; but few labourers have been found, of suitable qualifications, disposed to remove to those states. The Committee, therefore, have regarded, with deep solicitude, the claims of their southern brethren, while, for the lack of labourers to be employed, they have done far less for their supply, than they have ardently desired. But, in regard to the western and northwestern states and territories, their endeavours have been much more successful. A much larger number of the rising ministry of the land have been allured to those inviting fields ; and the operations of this Society, it is believed, more than all other causes, have contributed to the annually increasing emigration of ministers in that direction. During the last year, the Committee have sent a larger number to those states, than in any previous year.

The whole number aided by this Society, west of the Alleghany mountains, since our last anniversary, has been 177 ; and the whole number employed there, since the organization of this Society, has been 240 ; which is nearly one half of the Presbyterian ministers on that extended field, embracing eleven states and parts of states, with a population of nearly 4,000,000, in several sections of which, nearly their whole supply has been derived from this Society. In Missouri, there are now 18 Presbyterian ministers, and 13 of them have been sent there, or aided, by the A. H. M. S. Illinois has now 32 Presbyterian ministers, and 23 of them are, or have been, missionaries of this Society, and 19 are now in commission in that state. Michigan Territory has 18, and 15 of the same have been sent there, or aided from the same source ; and in other large sections of the west, the proportion is nearly as great.

RESULTS.

But the number of missionaries employed, of congregations aided, and the amount raised and expended in their support, though items of interest and importance to be embraced in an Annual Report, compose but a small part of the material of our rejoicing and encouragement at this anniversary. The Committee are aware, that the friends of this Society desire most of all, to be told of results accomplished by their contributions, and of good effected in answer to their prayers. In answering this desire, it is impossible to speak with entire accuracy. If we had time to communicate all that has come to our own knowledge, of the blessing of God upon the labours of 509 ministers of Jesus Christ, in 745 congregations, and other fields, we should even then have occasion to pause, and exclaim "Lo! these are parts of his ways!" But the length, and the breadth, and the height, and the depth, of those eternal results, which are beginning to flow from these causes, must still remain unfathomed, and unfathomable by finite minds.

There is probably not one of the whole number of the Society's missionaries, who has not been the instrument of originating, or of keeping in operation, during a large part of the year, at least one Sabbath School; while most of them have secured the intelligent and faithful instruction of from two to ten of those blessed institutions, on the respective fields of their labours.—The number of Sabbath Schools actually reported, has been 544, embracing 19,690 scholars. The whole number of children and adults thus instructed, under the care of the missionaries, has probably exceeded 30,000.

Bible Classes, also, have been gathered in the congregations aided, almost without an exception; and many of the missionaries have had under their immediate instruction, from two to six of these nurseries of biblical knowledge and of spiritual influence. The number of such classes reported has been 239, embracing 3711 pupils, and more than 7000 have probably been thus instructed. These institutions, with the care of Sabbath Schools, have become so identified with the ministerial work, and have been so signalized as the scenes of the display of the divine mercy in the conversion of souls, that they require no eulogy; and we need only add, that their importance and happy results were never more delightfully manifested than on the whole field of this Society's operations during the last year.

The cause of temperance has also been promoted by our missionaries, and by most of them, with a degree of zeal and success, which affords the most animating prospect of its entire triumph, on most of the fields occupied by this Society. Temperance Societies have been organized in most of the congregations assisted, and 36,402 subscribers to the principle of total abstinence from intoxicating drinks, have been reported. More than 60,000 have probably been thus enrolled, within the field of our labours.

Benevolent efforts for the circulation of the Bible and religious tracts, and in aid of education for the ministry, and of foreign missions, have been sustained by many of the poor to whom it has been the privilege of this Society to minister. Thus there have been planted by our missionaries, and are growing up under their culture, many trees of righteousness, whose leaves are, even now, for the healing of the nations.

But these results of the Society's expenditures, it may be said, are only preparations for doing good; they exhibit no souls converted, no sinners saved; and this is an age of the world, when, if the churches give, and Christians pray, and ministers labour, they look for the grace of God which bringeth salvation. To attain this result, to secure the salvation of the increasing millions of this land, and through them to act upon the destinies of man universally, is the grand purpose, and the single ultimate aim of this Society, and of the kindred institutions in harmony with which it labours; and it is with devout gratitude to God, that the Committee report a more rapid advancement towards this glorious consummation, since the last anniversary, than in any previous year. One hundred and eighty-seven of the churches reported have been blessed with special revivals of religion, which have resulted in the hopeful conversion of more than 8000 souls. The whole number of conversions reported, under the ministry of our missionaries, is 9432, of whom 6126 have been reported already added to the churches, on profession of their faith. The number reported as added by letter has been 1364, making the whole number reported as added to the churches aided, during the last year, 7490. But these reports have been necessarily very defective. The probable number added to the churches aided, since our last anniversary, has been more than 8000, and the number of hopeful conversions, under the labours of our missionaries, not less than 10,000.

Such are the results of a single year of this Society's operations, already visible, upon the cause of salvation. Considered alone, and apart from those attendant and consequent blessings, which are more than we can number, they are great beyond expression. But, viewed in connexion with the small amount of Christian effort and expenditure by which they have been effected, they are greater still; and in comparison with the results of the labours of former years, they afford the most animating proof that this Society, like the "righteous, shall hold on its way," and, like him "that hath clean hands," is destined to "be stronger and stronger." The following is a brief

From this view, it appears that this Society, since its organization in 1826, besides all the indirect and accompanying influences which it has exerted, has annually sustained from 169 to 509 missionaries,—has annually aided from 196 to 745 congregations and missionary districts in their support, which must otherwise have remained destitute, in whole or in part, of the blessings of a preached Gospel,—and has thus secured to these congregations and districts 1358 years of ministerial labour, of which they must otherwise have been deprived. It has also reported, each year, from 10,000 to 30,000 children and others instructed in Sabbath Schools, and from 2,000 to 7,000 instructed in Bible Classes, under the care of its missionaries. In the same time, there have been reported as added to the churches 13,295 souls, and more than 20,000 have probably been converted under their ministry.

And this Society has laboured not alone. Other causes have been in operation in connexion with this, to produce still greater results; and other organizations connected with different denominations of Christians, in our land, have put forth their efforts, and “we forbade them” not, “because they followed not with us.” It is ours to rejoice in every effort which tends to salvation; and if by the operation of all these causes, the American churches have been blessed with 2,000 revivals of religion, and 100,000 souls converted, within the last year, we will rejoice and praise God the more, because the results of our own efforts, great as they truly are, are rendered comparatively small, by reason of this accumulation of blessing and of glory which excelleth. One hundred thousand souls is nearly one third part of the whole increase of our population, in the same time, and probably more than one half of the annual increase of adults in the United States. What an influence is thus provided, to act on the other half, and to gather the children and youth of the land into Sabbath Schools and Bible Classes; and thus train them up to know and fear the Lord ! How many of this hundred thousand may soon become heralds of salvation, while each of the whole number will exert an individual influence to convert others. And if God works by means, he will bless each of these individual influences, and thus the work of salvation will advance in a geometrical ratio ; and in less than half a century the people may all become righteous, according to the prediction of the Prophet of Israel, "Violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders." Let, then, every influence that tends to salvation prosper, and let every opposing spirit die. Let Christians put their hands, with renewed vigour, and more fervent prayer, to every department of benevolent effort that urges on the cause of God ; and let the HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY, in its important and indispensable connexion with the ultimate triumph of this cause, in the United States, be sustained. Never did this Society stand upon an eminence to attract the grateful affections of so many thousand souls renewed ; never were its preparations and its prospects of increasing usefulness so great ; and never, at any former anniversary, was its appeal so urgent for the increased liberality of the Christian public. Let, then, the churches remember it, especially in their prayers ; and, in their contributions, imitate the example of those few congregations who have contributed, during the last year, some $500, some $1,000, and some $2,000, to its funds. And let the poor cast in their mites ; and suffer little children to come to this twice blessed work, and forbid them not. And let the rich contribute of their abundance, and follow the example of those few individuals, who, the last year, have each contributed an amount sufficient to sustain one or more of the Society's missionaries, and have thus themselves preached the gospel, "by proxy," to the poor. Let him that has hitherto contributed ten dollars, sit down now and write twenty ; and him who has given twenty, write forty ; and him that has given fifty, write one hundred ; and the necessities of this cause will be easily supplied. Finally, let all who love the Lord, and the souls of men, contribute according to their ability, to this and kindred enterprises of Christian benevolence, and accompany every donation with a prayer, and verily it might be said unto us, "there be some standing here which shall not taste of death, till they see the kingdom of God."

and painful. With such feelings we have to review the past year. It occasions deep regret, that we have made so little progress in the attempt to build up the waste places of Zion. New stations have, indeed, been occupied. Cheering results have attended the labours of our missionaries. No preceding year has been so rich in revivals, among our feeble congregations. Might we be allowed to retire from the unblessed and barren waste, and ponder in abstracted and absorbing interest on these results merely,—could we close our eyes, and ears, and hearts, to the imploring importunities of these wastes, and think only of churches strengthened, religion revived, and sinners, by many hundreds, saved,—then might we give ourselves up to unmingled gladness and mutual congratulation. But this we cannot do. Retreat whither we may, the cry of want will find us. And the impression which rests with the heaviest weight upon our minds, and which the whole tenor of our experience goes to deepen, respects the urgent and imperious necessity of far more extended efforts to send the Gospel to the poor.

The amount of money collected during the year for the purposes of the agency, will vary but a few dollars from 3000. This, although equal to the amount collected during the preceding 15 months, falls considerably short of what we had anticipated. And it ought here to be stated, as explaining the cause of this failure, that in one of the ablest and most liberal counties, for reasons which could not well be waived, it was thought best to defer the time of raising its annual contributions to this object, until the last of May.

Other causes, which need not be here specified, of limited and local effect, have contributed to diminish the amount of our yearly receipts. But we entertain the conviction that another year will carry us beyond the reach of these obstructions, and present a more gratifying result.

We think it deserving a distinct acknowledgment from us, that the God of our beloved Zion seems to have given to the objects and efforts of the agency, an increasing interest in the eyes of the churches.

The whole number of Missionaries by us employed during the year, is	- -	50
Do. do. Congregations supplied, wholly or in part,	- -	69
Do. do. Years of missionary labour performed during the year	- -	38
The increase in the number of missionaries during the year	- - -	12
Congregations supplied this year which were not supplied the last	- - -	22

According to our books, there is now pledged for missionary services remaining unpaid, $3566 52.

The end of all missionary efforts is to build up the church of God. It is, therefore, an occasion of great joy to us, that so much visible good has resulted, during the year, or scrip, or two coats; they retain the garment which is day our daily bread." If the churches, also, would practise the like precious faith and Christian self-denial, the wants of the poor would be soon supplied. But while many churches are languishing, and souls perishing, it is a fact deeply to be deplored, that many of Christ's professed followers live at ease in their "ceiled houses," and accumulate, every year, a clear income greater than all the resources of the Central Agency. Under these circumstances, there must be guilt somewhere. If the missionaries ought to endure still greater privations, we do not distrust their willingness to do so. If more is due from the able churches and Christians, we trust they will not withhold it.

By order of the Board,

O. P. HOYT,

EXTRACTS FROM THE REPORT OF

THE WESTERN RESERVE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY,

AUXILIARY TO THE A. H. M. S., presented by the Directors, at the annual meeting, Oct. 4, 1831.

The Directors meet the Society, at this time, with congratulations, that a beginning has been made in the work of domestic missions in our auxiliary relation to the A. H. M. S. Though but a beginning, it has been made with such indications of favour from the great Head of the Church, as to encourage the confident expectation of enlarged success.

In entering on the duties assigned to us, the following objects claimed the attention of the Board.

1st. To ascertain the number and actual necessities of our feeble churches and destitute districts; and, as far as practicable, prepare the way for them, either singly or associated, to receive the Gospel.

2d. To obtain suitable missionaries to supply these destitutions, and regulate the appropriations for their support.

3d. The withdrawal or diminution of aid, when churches were receiving it unnecessarily, or in a degree not justified by their actual wants.

4th. The awakening of an interest in the destitute, to obtain the Gospel, and, as far as practicable, to help themselves.

5th. To enlist the prayers and efforts of our community in behalf of the Society, and of the destitute whom we seek to aid.

The number and necessities of our feeble Churches, and destitute districts.

It can scarcely be expected that perfect accuracy should be attained in a classification of churches with respect to their relative strength or weakness. It is believed, however, that the statements which follow are sufficiently correct for all present practical purposes.

There are at present, within the appropriate sphere of our operations, 20 churches destitute of the stated ministrations of the Gospel, which, with judicious missionary appropriations, might constantly enjoy the benefits of a permanent ministry.

There are beside the 20 which could have a full supply, 50 settlements partially supplied, and others enjoying no stated Gospel privileges, which, being associated, could, with moderate assistance from the Society, constitute 24 parishes or congregations occupying the time and enjoying the labours of that number of ministers. In addition to these, there are 10 districts, in each of which obedience to the Saviour's command to preach the Gospel would require, and the circumstances would fully warrant, the employment of an itinerant or circuit missionary, to depend on the Society for his support, and to receive more or less toward that support from those to whom he should minister. There is thus apparent an immediate demand for the labours of 54 ministers, in addition to those now in the field.

The supply of Ministers.

Without providing for the wants of the congregations and districts above described, there have been, during the greater part of the past year, and are now, 50 different congregations, enjoying the labours of 40 ministers aided by the American Home Missionary Society within our appropriate limits. The appropriations to aid most of these congregations and ministers are regulated by this Board, and seven of these ministers, labouring in ten congregations, have received their missionary aid from the funds of this Society. As the result of our correspondence, 12 missionaries have been introduced into the service, on our field, during the past year, and several others are already designated to this field.

Diminution of appropriations to particular Congregations.

The average expense to the Society of each year's labour performed by their missionaries, on this field, is about $100. To regulate the appropriations of the Parent Society and of the auxiliary, in exact accordance, on the one hand, with the benevolent spirit of the Gospel, and, on the other hand, with the claims of strict justice, in view of the comparative ability of congregations, is a task of no little difficulty and delicacy; and one which requires a large share of time and attention. To do this, so as perfectly to meet the views of all concerned, would perhaps not be possible. On this subject, however, the most scrupulous care is exercised which circumstances admit.

That mistakes have sometimes occurred in this respect, and a congregation received unnecessary aid, through misapprehension and misinformation, is what is inseparable from human infirmity and imperfection. It is believed, however, that the present system of operations here, and generally where the A. H. M. S. has auxiliary organizations, is happily calculated to remedy this evil as fast, and to make it as small as possible, without going over to as great an evil on the other side.

It may be proper, in this connexion, to add, that the most solemn obligations to the great Head of the Church, and to his cause, require, that congregations, which have received aid, should, as fast as possible, relinquish it in behalf of those more destitute.

Excitement of desire and effort in the destitute, to obtain the Gospel.

It was an obvious fact, that long privation of Christian privileges, had, in many of our settlements, gradually and naturally resulted in indifference toward them, and, in not a few cases, an entire disregard of their benefits. This was, to a lamentable extent, true, not only of those who professed no regard for the Gospel, but, apparently, also, of those in whom better things should be expected. They had either gradually suffered the cares of the world, the provision of earthly comforts, to take the place of care for their souls, and for those around them; and thus had imbibed the spirit of the world; or, wearied with unsuccessful effort to obtain the blessing of a stated ministry, they had sunk down in despondency, and, having given up hope, it was easy to cease from effort and from desire. Here was a call for labour of a peculiar character, and of no easy accomplishment by mere human skill. But the Spirit of the Lord, which has gone forth among our churches, in the revivals of the present day, has extensively excited new desire and new effort, where both seemed dead before. The calls for labourers in the Gospel harvest are, therefore, now more earnest and more numerous than at any former period.

Enlisting the supplied Churches, in prayer and effort, in behalf of the destitute.

The result of the very limited effort, which has been made for the collection of funds, is such as to afford encouragement, that these churches will not be deaf to the call of duty, in this particular, and that their prayers and their alms will go up for a memorial before God. Instead of the few dollars reported the last year, as raised in all the churches of our Synod, for Domestic Missions, we are permitted to report, at this time, the sum of $1123 63. Of this amount, $722 50 are paid directly to the treasury of the Parent Society, or through other channels than our treasury, though it has been contributed and is expended for sustaining missionaries in this field; and $401 13 are paid into the treasury of this auxiliary. In estimating the pecuniary gain of our operations to the missionary cause, it would, perhaps, be proper to add to the $1123 63, the amount of curtailments, through these operations, in the appropriations to missionaries, viz: $388, making the whole pecuniary gain, $1511 63.

Results of Missionary Labour.

The reports of our missionaries have not been sufficiently definite, to enable us, in many particulars, to exhibit results by numerical statements. We are, however, permitted to say, that six of the ten congregations to whom appropriations have been made directly by this Society, are reported by the missionaries as participating richly in the extensive revivals in which our God has come to this portion of his Zion. Similar success has attended the labours of many of the missionaries of the Parent Society on this field. At the same time, their influence has been extensively, and directly exerted in giving impulse to the various benevolent operations, which characterize the present as a day of preparation for the accomplishment of Jehovah's ultimate purpose concerning a guilty, ransomed world.

By order of the Directors,

DANIEL W. LATHROP, Secretary
W. R. D. M. Society.

PLAN OF LARGER SOCIETIES.

In those parts of the country where efficient organizations in aid of Home Missions do not already exist, the formation of two kinds of Societies, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. is desired; the one large, and the other small, and the former to embrace the latter. Each larger Society may be found to embrace the limits of a county, a city, a state, a presbytery, or a synod, as shall be judged most conducive to its activity and efficiency. The objects of all such Societies should be to raise funds to furnish, first, all needed aid to the destitute within their own limits; and, secondly, to aid the Parent Society in extending the Gospel to communities still more needy. To accomplish these objects most effectually, it is important that each Society be so small in extent of territory, that its committee or executive board may have a competent knowledge of the claims of the destitute within its limits; while it should be sufficiently large to furnish a field for the operations of an agent, for the collection of funds, the formation of subsidiary organizations, and to act as its organ of communication with the Parent Society. For this last purpose, it is judged expedient that in all cases where the auxiliary society is sufficiently large to employ a permanent agent, he be also its corresponding secretary.

FORM OF CONSTITUTION,

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

ART. I.—This Society shall be known by the name of the Domestic Missionary Society of _____, and shall be auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

ART. II.—This Society shall be composed of such individuals as shall contribute annually to its funds, together with the members of the several churches and congregational associations for Home Missions within the limits of this Society.

ART. III.—The officers of this Society shall be a president, _____ vice presidents, a treasurer, and a secretary, to be chosen at the annual meeting. These officers, in connexion with at least one person elected from each of the several associations of gentlemen composing the Society, shall constitute a board of directors, of whom not less than five shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. IV.—It shall be the duty of the board of directors to meet at the call of the president, or as often as shall be necessary for the transaction of business; to fill their own vacancies; to appoint an executive committee; to adopt the most energetic measures in their power, to accomplish the object of the Society; especially by distributing such publications as may be committed to them by the Parent Institution, and by deputing some of their number to attend the annual meetings of the several associations; and, in general, by using all suitable means to excite an interest in the cause of Home Missions.

ART. V.—The annual receipts of the Society, after defraying incidental expenses, shall be paid over to the treasurer of the Parent Society, with directions as to the section of country in which it shall be expended in missionary labours, should the board deem it important to give such directions. [See resolutions on next page.]

ART. VI.—The Society shall meet as often as called by the directors, and annually on the _____ of March, when the officers shall be elected; the accounts of the treasurer, properly audited, shall be presented, and the annual report of the directors received; and when this constitution may be amended by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

ART. VII.—A copy of the constitution, authenticated by the secretary, together with the names and the residences of the officers annually elected, and also a copy of each annual report, shall be transmitted to the corresponding secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, as early as the first of April, in each year.

SMALLER SOCIETIES.

Within the limits of each larger Society, there should be organized Auxiliary Societies or Associations. Of these Associations it is recommended that there be formed two in each town, parish, or congregation, the one composed of males, and the other of females; and that they adopt the following

RULES

For the Government of Church [or Congregational] Associations [or Societies] for Home Missions.

1. This Association shall be called the [or Female] Missionary Association, [or Society,] of Church, [or Congregation,] auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of .]

2. Every person who shall contribute annually to the funds shall be a member.

3. *The affairs of the Association shall be conducted by a first and second director, [or directress,] a secretary, a treasurer, and collectors, who shall be chosen annually, and together shall constitute a committee.

4. It shall be the duty of the committee to meet at least once in three months, to appoint assistant collectors, and transact such other business as may come before them.

5. The first director, [or directress,] and in case of his [or her] absence, the second director, [or directress,] shall preside in all meetings of the Association, and shall have power to call special meetings at pleasure.

The secretary shall keep the records, and manage the correspondence.

The treasurer shall take charge of the money collected, and, after deducting incidental expenses, shall pay the same to the American Home Missionary Society, [or to the Auxiliary Society of .]

It shall be the duty of the collectors to solicit and receive contributions. For this purpose, they shall make a suitable division of their labours, call upon the individuals within their respective limits, take the names of persons disposed to contribute, together with the sums which they will give for the year, and shall pay the amount of their collections to the treasurer, previous to the next annual meeting of the Association.

6. The Association shall meet annually, on the second Monday in March of each year, when the Report shall be read, and the election of officers held; and when these rules may be altered by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

7. The Annual Report of this Association shall be transmitted by the Secretary to the Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of] immediately after the annual meeting of the Association.

*Or, if it be preferred, the third article may read as follows. "The affairs of this Association shall be conducted by the Elders [or Deacons] of this church, who shall annually appoint from their own number a first and second director, a secretary, a treasurer and collectors; and these together shall constitute a committee."

SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY.

THE American Home Missionary Society held its Seventh Anniversary in the Chatham-street Chapel, New-York, on Wednesday evening, May 8, 1833. The Hon. Stephen Van Rensselaer, LL. D., President of the Society, took the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. David Porter, D. D., of Catskill.

The President made an appropriate address, introductory to the Report.

The Treasurer's Report was read by the Rev. Charles Hall, Assistant Secretary and Assistant Treasurer.

The Seventh Annual Report of the Society was read by the Rev. Absalom Peters, Corresponding Secretary; after which the following resolutions were adopted, viz:—

1. On motion of the Rev. James Hoge, D. D., of Columbus, Ohio, seconded by Thomas Bradford, Esq., of Philadelphia.

Resolved, That the Report be adopted, and printed under the direction of the Executive Committee.

2. On motion of the Rev. A. Peters, Corresponding Secretary of the Society, seconded by Rev. William S. Plummer, of Petersburg, Virginia.

Resolved, That in view of the great and increasing claims of the Western and Southern States and Territories, it is the imperious duty of the Home Missionary Society to redouble its efforts to supply them.

3. On motion of the Rev. W. J. Armstrong, of Richmond, Virginia, seconded by S. V. S. Wilder, Esq., of New-York.

Resolved, That the most fervent gratitude is due to Almighty God, for his merciful providence over the operations of this Society; and to its friends, for the liberality with which they have contributed to the means of its benevolent object.

In support of the foregoing resolutions, appropriate addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. Hoge, T. Bradford, Esq., Rev. Messrs. Peters, Plummer, and Armstrong.

An appropriate anthem was sung, after which the congregation was dismissed with the apostolic benediction, by the Rev. John Codman, D. D., of Dorchester, Massachusetts.

The Society, on recommendation of the Executive Committee, voted unanimously, that the word seven, in the Fourth Article in the Constitution of this Society, be stricken out, and the word five be inserted in its place, making five a quorum of the Executive Committee.

The following officers were then unanimously elected for the ensuing year, viz:—

CONSTITUTION

OF THE

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 1. This Society shall be denominated "THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY."

ART. 2. The great object of this Society shall be, to assist congregations that are unable to support the Gospel Ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute, within the United States.

ART. 3. The Officers of the Society shall be, a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, a Corresponding Secretary, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors; who shall be annually appointed by the Society; and who, together with the Directors for life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. 4. The Officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of thirteen, (including the Treasurer, the Corresponding Secretary, and the Recording Secretary,) residing in the City of New-York and its vicinity; five of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened. This Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill up any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society; shall appoint Missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labours; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing Missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the institution may require; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

ART. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds, annually, to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

ART. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society, by contributing annually to its funds; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for life; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for life; and any person, on the payment of a sum, which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for life. An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for life; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute him a Director for life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Corresponding Secretary a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a Missionary, or Missionaries, to labour in such field as it may designate; at least to the amount of its contributions; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The Officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be ex-officio Directors; and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of this Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the city of New-York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

ART. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution, without a vote of two thirds of the Members present, at an annual meeting; nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

SEVENTH REPORT.

"IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD, TO SHOW FORTH HIS LOVING-KINDNESS IN THE MORNING, AND HIS FAITHFULNESS EVERY NIGHT." (Ps. 92.) Such is the sentiment of inspired piety, which has commanded the assent of the true worshippers of God in all ages. But the daily expression of this sentiment is a privilege to be enjoyed only by individuals, and by the families that call on the name of the Lord. Large associations of Christians can only assemble to express their united thanks at periods more widely separated. Such is the condition of the Society; whose doings we have met to review. Its individual members and servants, as they contemplate the daily providence of God, may speak of "his faithfulness every night." But there is only one night in the year, in which the Society itself, by its appointed organs and representatives, is privileged to show forth its embodied expressions of gratitude in an ANNUAL REPORT. To this service therefore, especially, the EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE invite the assembled members, directors and friends of the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

A year so fearfully marked with the displeasure of Him before whom goeth the pestilence, as that which now closes, this nation never experienced. The judgments of the Lord have been abroad in the earth. Wasting and destruction, in terrific forms, have been within our borders; and the political elements of our republic have been wrought into convulsions, which have threatened to rend for ever the sublime and happy union of this nation. But he who sitteth as King in Zion has waved his sceptre over these wide spread scenes of dismay and commotion, and has not permitted them to hurt or to hinder his own cause. The churches have been blessed, and the benevolent institutions of our land have moved onward, almost unimpeded.

Among the Societies whose anniversaries, the present week, are moving the sympathies and enlisting the prayers of a great religious community, perhaps no one has more reason, than that which it is our privilege to serve, to rejoice in the prosperity which has attended its efforts. To exhibit, as briefly as possible, the substance of their report, the committee have, as usual, thrown the details of the Society's operations into tabular form. The following is a

1. The names of congregations and missionary districts aided.
2. An alphabetical list of missionaries and agents.
3. Dates of their commissions, or of their commencing labour.
4. Length of commissions in months.

RECAPITULATION.

From the preceding tables the following results are obtained, viz: The whole number of ministers of the Gospel employed by this Society, during the year, is 606, which is an increase of 97, since last year.

These have laboured, either as missionaries or agents, in 801 congregations, missionary districts,* or fields of agency, in 21 of the

* In this estimate, when the stated labours of a missionary are extended to more than three congregations, it is denominated a missionary district, and counted one. If all the single congregations were counted, they would probably be 1000, or more.

United States and Territories, and in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada,—411 being settled as pastors or employed as stated supplies in single congregations, 137 extending their labours to two or three congregations each, and 58, including agents, being employed on larger fields.

Of the missionaries and agents thus employed, 397 were in commission at the commencement of the year; 241 of whom have been re-appointed and are still in the service of the Society. The remaining 209 have been new appointments since the last anniversary, making, in all, 606.

The amount of ministerial labour reported as having been performed, within the year, is 416 years and 9 months.

The number reported as added, within the year, to the churches aided, has been 6,041; viz—1,757 by letter, and 4,284 by examination, on profession of their faith.

One hundred and one of the churches aided have been blessed with special revivals of religion; and the number of hopeful conversions reported, (the larger portion of whom are not embraced in the reported additions to the churches,) is 3,435, making the probable number of conversions, under the labours of our missionaries, within the year, about 7,000.

The number of Sabbath Schools sustained, during the whole or a part of the year, under the ministry of our missionaries, is 770, embracing 31,140 scholars.

The number of Bible Classes reported, as conducted by the missionaries themselves, has been 378, embracing 11,195 pupils of all ages.

The number of subscribers to the principle of entire abstinence from the use of intoxicating drinks, reported in the congregations aided, is 53,746, which is 17,344 more than the number reported last year.

These results have been ascertained by a laborious examination of the reports of the missionaries and agents, and by accurate calculations from the statements which they contain, and the minutes of the Executive Committee. They may be relied on as correct, and fully sustained by documents on the files of the Society. But these documents, though they are entirely worthy of trust, in regard to their accuracy, as far as they extend, are, nevertheless, necessarily defective. Many of the Reports from missionaries do not bring down the account of their labours to the end of the year, and from some, reports of the last quarter are due, which, on account of the failure of the conveyances to which they have been intrusted, or other hindrances, have not been received. Results, therefore, obtained by calculations founded on testimony actually in possession, in these circumstances, must be regarded as falling short of the facts. More has been accomplished than these calculations exhibit; more Sabbath Schools have been sustained, and more Bible Classes instructed; and if 6,041 souls have been reported as actually added to the churches, it is safe to conclude that a larger number have been the hopeful subject of regenerating grace, under the labours of our missionaries.

Though the last year, therefore, has not been so signally marked, as the preceding, with the blessing of revivals, there has been an advance in the work of conversion, and in every other good influence which ordinarily attends the labours of our missionaries. This, indeed, has been the permanent characteristic of the American Home Missionary Society, during the whole period of its existence. Its movement has been onward. The Report of each succeeding year has exhibited a rapid enlargement of its operations, and the blessing of God upon every department of its influence has been generally in proportion to this enlargement.

STATE OF THE TREASURY.

The foregoing remarks are supported, not only by the details already enumerated, but also, in part, by an examination of the receipts into the Treasury of the Society. There has been, every year, an increase in the amount received, though this increase, for the last two years, has not been in proportion to the increase of the Society's expenditures. At the last anniversary, the balance against the Treasury, was $2,509 14; and the Treasurer's Report, this evening presented, exhibits a balance of the same kind, amounting to $159 93. At different periods, during the year, this balance has been much greater than it now is. During the months of December, January, and February last, the Treasury was actually overdrawn from $8,000 to $14,000. for which the Treasurer and other members of the Executive Committee were personally responsible. Here, then, is a failure in that delightful proportion which has marked the increase of the Society in almost every other department of its operations. The churches have withheld from this enterprise more than was meet. And whether it hath tended to their own poverty, let such as have been delinquent decide. We judge them not. But, as representatives of a VOLUNTARY SOCIETY, having no claim upon the contributions of the religious community, excepting such as addresses itself to the heart and the conscience, and makes its appeal for our "work's sake," the Executive Committee affectionately ask, whether the friends of this Society, who have failed to do what they can to sustain it, have duly considered the amount of individual sacrifice and responsibility devolved upon its servants by their failure? It is not for the want of friends that the Committee have so long found it necessary to pledge their own notes for the means required to meet the drafts of the missionaries as they become due. Evidence is abundant that the work in which we are engaged is popular. Multitudes of estimable citizens, as well as members of the churches, rejoice in its prosperity and usefulness, who do little or nothing to promote it. Their knowledge of its popularity, it may be, is, in many cases, the reason of their withholding their contributions, or diverting them to other objects, under the impression, that, without their assistance, an enterprise so interesting to all American Christians, will be sustained. But in a field so wide, and a work so difficult, such reasoning is obviously incorrect. The state of the Society's Treasury is a standing appeal for an increase of contributions from all such as have failed to do their duty.

This failure, however, has not been universal, and while the delinquency of some seems to have furnished a just occasion for the foregoing remarks, the Committee acknowledge with gratitude the prompt and efficient aid of many, in all parts of the land, who have loved, not in word only, but in deed and in truth. Though the receipts of the last two years have been less than the expenditures of the Society, still the receipts of the last year have been $15,812 78 more than those of the previous year. In this respect, therefore, as well as in others, the grand characteristic of the Society has been preserved. Its movement is onward, though not in proportion to the number of its missionaries, or the enlarged demands of the work to be done.

SOURCES OF INCOME.

Individual contributions directly to the Society's Treasury have been received, as formerly, from almost every section of the country. Several small legacies have also been collected; the largest of which was $1350 from the late Thomas Wilcox, of Connecticut. Collections by missionaries and others, and contributions and collections in churches, have also been continued, and have constituted a considerable item in the receipts of the Treasurer. But Agencies, Societies, Associations, and Churches, regularly auxiliary, have furnished by far the largest amount derived from any one of the general sources of the Society's income.

The following, on account of their importance and efficiency, demand a special notice in this Report.

MASSACHUSETTS MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society, though constitutionally auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. for several years past, did not adopt the terms of direct co-operation with the Parent Society, until the 26th of May, 1832. This event was hailed with satisfaction by the Executive Committee; and they have watched, with deep interest, the increasing prosperity of the Massachusetts Society, during the year. The Rev. R. S. Storrs, Secretary of that Society, and also of the Parent Society for the New-England states, had spent most of the preceding year in Massachusetts, as joint agent for the two, and through his efficient labours the receipts of that auxiliary had been much increased. At the time of the above change in the terms of its auxiliary connexion, it brought to the aid of the common cause a balance in its Treasury of $2,387. Its receipts, from the above date to April 1st, 1833, (a little more than ten months,) were $9,595 84, making the whole amount at the disposal of that Society, during the same period, $11,982 76. A considerable portion of this sum was pledged in the commissions of the previous year, and has since been paid. The number of missionaries, including agents, appointed by that Society in Massachusetts, within the year, under commissions furnished by the Parent Society, has been 55. These have been sustained from the Treasury of the auxiliary; and, in addition to the amount thus expended, the sum of $4,900 has been transmitted to the Treasury of the A. H. M. S., and expended in the Western and Southern states.

In addition to the above amount, the following sums have been received from the state of Massachusetts, viz.

From the HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY $1,862 72, which, together with a balance previously paid, but unappropriated to the credit of that Society, has been expended in the support of 23 missionaries in different states. This amount is $1,071 72 more than was received from the same Society the previous year, and indicates an increased interest in the cause among our efficient friends in the "Old County of Hampshire."

Contributions from churches and individuals in that state, transmitted by the donors directly to the Parent Society, $2,893 31.

These sums added to the receipts of the Massachusetts Missionary Society, make the whole amount received from the state of Massachusetts, within the last year, $14,351 87.

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Connecticut Missionary Society, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., within the year ending April 1, 1833, granted aid, under commissions furnished by the Parent Society, to support 31 missionaries in that State, one in Rhode Island, and 3 in Missouri. It has also employed two agents, for a short time each, the Rev. C. L. Watson, and the Rev. A. Crane, whose labours, we are assured, were highly useful and acceptable. The Report of last year exhibited a balance in its Treasury of $2,053 72. Receipts acknowledged since that time $5,021 63, making in all, at the disposal of that Society, during the year, $7,075 35. Of this sum, $3,547 04 have been expended leaving $3,528 31 in the Treasury, subject to the order of the Parent Society, April 1, 1833.

The following sums have also been received from the state of Connecticut, viz :

From the HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY, EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW-HAVEN Co. $691, which has been expended in the support of 3 missionaries in Illinois and Ohio.

Donations from individuals and churches in that State, transmitted directly to the Parent Society, $3,559 10, making in all, received from the state of Connecticut within the year, $9,271 72.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Society, in the year ending April 1, 1833, subject to the order of the Parent Society, have been $5,054 75, which is $2,139 58 more than the amount received during the previous year. There have also been received from individuals and churches in that State, contributed directly to the Parent Society, $411 47, which, with $300 transmitted by the N. H. M. S., makes, in all, from the state of New-Hampshire, $5,766 22. The number of missionaries within that state, including the agent, has been 53, and $4,609 64 has been expended in their support, leaving $441 11 on hand, April 1, 1833. This Report shows an increase of 12 missionaries within the year, and a rapid advance in the amount of business done by the Society. This auxiliary, in proportion to the ability of the churches embraced in it, is perhaps not surpassed in the liberality of its contributions and its prospects of enlarged usefulness. The Reports, both of the Secretary, the Rev. J. Scales, and of the Rev. A. Rankin, our agent on that field, are of a highly encouraging character. The sum already pledged for the year to come surpasses the receipts of the last year; and through the efficient labours of Mr. R. and his coadjutors, we trust a much larger amount will be secured.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts of this Society, in the year ending April 1, 1832, were $3,530 14. From that time to April 1, 1833, its receipts have been $5,618 56, which exhibits an increase of $2,129 42. The number of its missionaries has also been increased from 56 to 64, all within the state of Maine, while $99 have been received by the Parent Society from individuals and churches in that state, for the support of missionaries in the Western states, making a total from the state of Maine of $5,717 56. It is delightful to witness the movings of this sympathy in churches of the extreme East, on behalf of the farthest West. The Secretary, Dr. Gillett, in communicating his Report, remarks, "There is a Sabbath School, a Temperance Society, and a Bible Class, in almost every place where missionaries labour. Revivals have not been as numerous as last year, but the general operations of the Society have been very much enlarged, and wonderfully succeeded. There have been 18 settlements in the ministry in this state since last year at this time, and 10 of this number are missionaries of the M. M. S. Our income is almost doubled, but we shall be constrained to add 25 per cent. to it next year, or restrict our operations."

WESTERN AGENCY IN THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

In our former Reports, this agency has been distinguished as the most efficient of the auxiliaries of the Parent Society. But the increased action of the state Societies of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maine, and New-Hampshire, during the past year, has given them the precedence. Yet the zealous friends of the cause composing this agency, have pursued their work with encouraging results. Its receipts have been $4,375 74, which exceeds the amount of expenditures, in supporting 53 missionaries within its own bounds. The whole amount of its receipts, since the organization of the Society in 1826, is $34,634 92, which is from $1,000 to $2,000 more than has been expended on that field in the same time. [See Report of Agency, in Appendix.]

CENTRAL AGENCY IN THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

This agency has continued its operations with increasing efficiency. Its receipts during the last year have been $2,938 29, the number of new congregations supplied 21, and the number of missionaries employed 53, who have laboured the whole or a part of the year in 74 congregations. The amount of money pledged in the support of missionaries within the bounds of this agency since its last Report, has been $3,135, which is $197 dollars more than the receipts of the agency. This deficiency has doubtless been occasioned by the suspension of the action of the agency on account of the cholera, and also by the resignation of the agent on that field, the Rev. O. P. Hoyt, whose place has recently been supplied by the appointment of the Rev. A. Crane. The prospects for another year are highly encouraging. [See Report, in Appendix.]

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society, owing to our failure to secure an agent to visit the churches within its bounds, has been much less efficient than the sister auxiliary in New-Hampshire. Still it is holding on its way, and its officers and friends manifest a cheerful readiness and an earnest desire to co-operate with the Parent Society, in measures to enlist the sympathies of the churches more deeply in this important cause. An agent has been designated for that state, whose labours, it is confidently expected, will hereafter greatly increase the amount of its contributions. The number of missionaries employed by the V. D. M. S. within the last year, has been 35, and the receipts into its treasury $1,739 49. Add to this $100 donation, and $51 received in contributions directly to the Parent Society, and the whole amount of income from Vermont is $1,890 49.

CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF AGENCY CINCINNATI, OHIO.

This agency has prosecuted its work with increased efficiency, during the last year. The Rev. J. W. Douglass was usefully employed in connexion with it, in visiting the churches in several of the Western states, until November last, when, on account of the insufficiency of his health to sustain the labour of this service, he was induced to relinquish it, and accept the charge of a church in Lexington, Virginia. Since that time temporary agents only have been employed on that field, whose labours have been satisfactory. The receipts of the agency for the year, subject to the order of the Parent Society, have been $1,240 74, which is $824 48 more than the income of the previous year. Their correspondence has also been highly useful to the Executive Committee, in conducting their operations in the West.

SABBATH SCHOLARS' ASSOCIATIONS.

Among the auxiliaries in single congregations, none have been regarded with more lively interest than those composed of Sabbath School Scholars. Of these, that in the Cedar-street Presbyterian Church, New-York, was the first formed, and has granted aid during the year to six missionaries. A similar situation in the South Dutch Church, New-York, has numbered three missionaries; and these noble examples have been emulated by other Sabbath Scholars' Associations in other cities and in various places, several of which have supported one missionary each, under commissions from this Society.

GENERAL REMARKS.

One of the principles adopted and recorded at the formation of the American Home Missionary Society, in 1826, "to be considered as fundamental in all its proceedings," was the following, viz. "Local Societies already existing, not to be superseded, except in accordance with their own desire, but to be strengthened and stimulated." To this principle the Executive Committee have watchfully adhered. Its effects are now delightfully manifest in the results of their co-operation with the foregoing and other Societies. Several of the state Societies existed, and had accomplished much good, before the National Society was formed. But since their connexion with it, their resources and usefulness have been greatly augmented. It has furnished to all a common medium through which to extend their benefactions harmoniously and efficiently to every portion of the land, while it has also much increased the action of each within its own bounds. In return, these Societies, by the increase of their action and the manner of their co-operation, are not only auxiliaries, but parts of the Parent Society, essential to its characteristic existence and extended usefulness. It is through their identity with it, that this Society, under the blessing of God, has been enabled to extend its benefits to every state in the nation.

By this happy arrangement, the older states have become helpers together of the new. The state of New York, for instance, has probably contributed during the last year, $11,000 more than has been expended within its own bounds; and each of the New-England states has raised a considerable amount above what has been required for the support of its own missionaries. This has been appropriated by the Parent Society to the more needy states and territories.

By the "Supplementary Table," it appears, that some states have been served more bountifully, by these appropriations, than others. The Committee have desired to adapt the benefactions of the Society to the comparative wants of the different sections of the whole country. But, as in former years, it has been found impracticable. Few labourers, comparatively, have been willing to be located in the Southern and South-western states, while most of those who have entered our service, for remote stations, have chosen to plant themselves in the central and northern portions of the valley of the Mississippi. The whole number aided by this Society, west of the Alleghany mountains, since its last anniversary, is 189, and the whole number employed there, since the formation of the Society, 260; "and yet there is room."

The condition of those states in respect to their destitution of the ordinances of the Gospel, and the means of their supply, is becoming every year more accurately understood by this Committee.

The Rev. Dr. B. H. Rice having been appointed Associate Secretary in September last, performed with ability and efficiency, during the autumnal and winter months, the usual labours and agencies of the Corresponding Secretary in New-York and the adjoining states. This arrangement has enabled the Corresponding Secretary to travel extensively in the service of the Society in the Western and South-western states. During an absence of six months, from October to April, he visited twelve states, conferred with the churches and brethren as extensively as practicable, collected much information respecting their comparative wants, which the Committee regard as highly important to their future operations.

The effects of this extensive personal survey of so large a portion of the field, and also of the active correspondence which has been maintained with the friends of the cause in other states, have been to impress the Committee more deeply than ever before, with a sense of the magnitude of the work to be done by this Society, while they perceive more clearly the increasing facilities and encouragements which exist, to its accomplishment. There is a growing interest felt in the evangelical character of this enterprise; and the organization and efforts of the A. H. M. Society, their safety, their efficiency, their recognition of ecclesiastical order, and their direct and unembarrassed responsibility to the churches for the character of the missionaries employed, are everywhere approved in proportion as they are clearly understood. The following is a brief

From this view it appears that the missionaries of this Society have increased, in seven years, from 169 to 606, and the congregations and missionary districts annually aided in their support, have increased from 196 to 861. These missionaries have laboured in the service of the Society the full amount of 1775 years. Under their ministry, 17,579 souls have been reported as added to the churches, on profession of their faith, within the last six years. They have also reported, each year, from 10,000 to 31,498 children instructed in Sabbath Schools; and from 2,000 to 11,080 in Bible Classes, while, according to their ability, they have been efficient helpers in every good work which has claimed the attention of the benevolent on the fields of their labour.

Such are the facts which the Committee feel bound, in the discharge of their official trust, to communicate to the Society, and, with their approbation, to lay before the public. These facts need no comment, other than we have made in passing. Let them speak, and the object for which we are required to report will be attained. The religious community will awake to renewed exertions. A work so well begun, and so prosperously sustained for seven years, will be prosecuted with a vigour proportioned to its greatly increased and increasing magnitude. The tried friends of the cause will do more than they have done, and other hearts will warm into sympathy with its touching claims, and other contributions of wealth, of talent, and of piety, will flow spontaneously to its aid. The North will come, and the South keep not back, and the East and the West will flow together, and join their hands in the holy enterprise, until it shall be accomplished.

THE WESTERN AGENCY OF THE A. H. M. S. FOR THE STATE OF N. Y.

THE "WESTERN AGENCY," which is a board of inquiry and reference, for the district embracing the seventeen western counties in the state of New-York, has been re-appointed for the year commencing, May, 1833, and is composed of the following gentlemen, viz:—

Rev. HENRY DWIGHT, Geneva, Chairman.
Rev. MILES P. SQUIER, Geneva.
Rev. ELIAKIM PHELPS, Geneva.
Mr. ABRAHAM B. HALL, Geneva.
Mr. H. H. SEELYE, Geneva.
Hon. SAMUEL M. HOPKINS, Geneva.
Rev. JAMES RICHARDS, D. D., Auburn.
Rev. JOSIAH HOPKINS, Auburn.
Rev. DANIEL C. AXTELL, Auburn.
Rev. ANSEL D. EDDY, Canandaigua.
WALTER HUBBELL, Esq., Canandaigua.
Rev. WILLIAM WISNER, Rochester.
Rev. SYLVESTER EATON, Buffalo.
Mr. JOSEPH STOCKING, Buffalo.

ANNUAL REPORT.

Geneva, May 1st, 1833.

To the Executive Committee of the A. H. M. S.

In submitting our SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT, the Western Agency recognise the care of the same gracious providence of God, over our deliberations and work, which has attended us in former years. Fifty-three missionary commissions have been issued this year, upon the field assigned to this agency. With but few exceptions, they have embraced an entire year each, giving an average number of about fifty missionaries, under the patronage of the Society, within our bounds, during the whole period included in this Report.

The same results have followed the labours of our missionaries, as have been detailed in former Reports. Revivals of religion have not, perhaps, prevailed as extensively as last year, yet some portions of the field under our eye, have advanced more rapidly, than at any former period, toward the great end for which the Gospel is preached in the world.

But the character and success of the work, within this agency, are already known to you, from the quarterly reports of our missionaries, and as they will be embodied in the Report of the Parent Society, need not be minutely detailed in this brief communication.

The aggregate expense of this year's operation, in sustaining these labourers, has been something more than $4,000. The receipts of the year will exceed the expenses. The contributions of some of our churches have been transmitted directly to the Treasury of the Parent Society, without being reported at the agency. Collections from several others are yet in the hands of local agents, and Treasurers of auxiliaries, and will soon be forwarded. The sum of $4,375 74, has been received to our Treasury, making an aggregate amount of receipts, since the organization of the agency in 1826, of $34,634 92. This amount is from one to two thousand dollars larger than that expended on this field, in the same time, leaving a small balance from year to year, which has aided the Parent Society in its benevolent labours upon other portions of the missionary field. In looking back over the history of the work thus far, we are filled with devout gratitude to God, and are constrained with the prophet to exclaim, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." More than one hundred and fifty congregations have successively received missionary aid through this board, a large portion of which are now sustaining the institutions of the Gospel without help from abroad. Others, now present very interesting fields of missionary labour, and still invite and encourage the benevolent efforts of your Society.

There are now within our bounds, nearly twice as many ministers of the Gospel, of the Presbyterian and Congregational denominations, as there were when this agency entered on its work. Churches are now formed in almost every place, of sufficient geographical dimensions to sustain the institutions of religion, and no portion of our country, so young as this, is probably more fully supplied with the stated labours of the Christian ministry. Still we have among us feeble churches, that need aid in supporting the preached Gospel; and destitute churches that must be furnished through the fostering care of the friends of missions. Our high aim should be to relax no effort until every waste place is built up, and until over the whole face of the country, shall be presented, an unbroken succession of congregations, enjoying the stated labours of the Christian pastor, and enriched with all the gifts of the Word and Spirit of God.

Some embarrassments have attended our work the last year. Owing to the want of definite arrangements in respect to a travelling agent, the congregations have not been as extensively visited as we could have wished. The Gen. Assembly's Board of Missions have employed an agent on this ground, the most, if not the whole of the year, which has doubtless diverted some funds to a sister institution, which have formerly been contributed to our board, and, in other respects, made the work of collecting funds, for missionary purposes, somewhat more difficult. We trust, however, that the spirit of union is entering into the counsels of all the friends of this cause, and that the sublime purpose of disciplining the entire population of our land, to the faith and fellowship of Christ, will be prosecuted with increasing harmony and vigour, until universally over it the wilderness shall become a fruitful field, and there shall be no need to teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, "Know the Lord, for all shall know him, from the least even to the greatest."

By order, and in behalf of the Board,

MILES P. SQUIER,

ANNUAL REPORT.

The year opened with very pleasing prospects of enlarged usefulness in our labours of love. For a few months our anticipations were fully realized. But the Lord has again afflicted us. We hope the frequent mention we are called to make of the chastisements of our gracious God will produce in us a filial spirit; clothe us with humility; and enlist us more entirely in his enterprise of mercy. We wish also to mingle with our brethren in various parts of the land, and "humble ourselves under the mighty hand of God," which has appeared in the prevalence of the deadly cholera; spreading paleness over the face of the nation, and hurrying thousands of our citizens to their long home, and filling our streets with mourners.

The panic occasioned in this region by this fearful visitation, has affected no department of human effort more seriously than the business of this agency. While the embarrassments thus occasioned were removing, and the most favourable season was opening, for securing the means of sending the bread of life to the hungry and the dying, we were under the painful necessity of parting with our Corresponding Secretary and Agent, the Rev. O. P. Hoyt, and before your present agent was obtained, the best portion of the year for replenishing our Treasury had passed, and we are left with diminished resources to meet increasing demands.

But what are these light afflictions, which are but for a moment, compared with the distinguishing mercies with which we are encompassed. We are not yet cast out of the Lord's vineyard. He is still giving us work enough to do, and work of sufficient magnitude and interest to absorb our affections, to inspire our tongues, and to command our energies. To us are committed tens of thousands of deathless germs, to be trained for glory and honour and immortality: and multitudes of them are yet to be persuaded that obedience is better than rebellion, or they never can participate in the blessings, or mingle in the praises, of the kingdom of God. O! the dignity,—the luxury, of being used by God to rescue our fellow men from the interminable wo of the lost rebel, and to people the world of felicity with their undying spirits!

Though the departments of Christian effort are multiplying, and inviting the attention of our churches, and they are manifesting a willingness "to do good to all men as they have opportunity," still we have no doubt that the Home Missionary cause is rising in their estimation. As intelligence is poured upon their minds, they discover, more distinctly, the salutary bearing of this method of doing good, upon the dearest interests of our whole land and our whole world. And not only are Christians feeling this, but, amidst all the unfriendly insinuations against this work of love, which are put in circulation by those "who know not what they say nor whereof they affirm," the philanthropist and the patriot see, in the prosecution of this enterprise, the future welfare of thousands now living, and of millions yet to live, as it tends to preserve the invaluable bequest of their veteran fathers, by causing "wisdom and knowledge to be the stability of our times." Says one of this description, in a very serious manner, to the agent who was pressing the claims of this Society, "I have no reason to hope I am a Christian, and I should feel I was assuming, to pretend to aid this object as a Christian, but I think it commends itself to the patriot as well as to the Christian, and as a patriot I will cheerfully give."

It is encouraging also to witness the grateful acknowledgments which are returned from many of the feeble churches, for aid which has been bestowed by you. But paper and ink cannot tell it. None but he who has been on the ground where these famishing pilgrims live, and has seen them weep for joy when your missionary came, and has heard them, with a voice faltering with grateful emotions, pour out their thanksgiving to God, for the unspeakable privilege of letting them once more sit under the droppings of the sanctuary, can have any adequate conception of the feelings of many to whom you are sending the bread of life. If conferring the slightest favour upon one of the least of Christ's disciples is regarded as done to him, how sublimely blessed the privilege of bestowing the ascension gift upon so many thousands of his brethren, who otherwise would remain hungry, and sick, and in prison.

The reports of your missionaries give us reason to hope that the Spirit of the Lord has been upon them, and upon the churches to which they minister, and that many have become, the past year, by their instrumentality, "the habitation of God through the Spirit."

Though we cannot speak with precision, still we know that several houses of worship have been erected in this district, the past year, in places where your missionaries labour. A number of new stations have been occupied where the Gospel never before was stately preached, and churches have been organized, where none before existed. Some congregations, which have been aided by your Society, have signified their intention to sustain themselves. The attention formerly paid to the welfare of the rising generation, in connexion with Sabbath Schools and Bible Classes, continues, as far as we know at least, undiminished. The Temperance cause also has prospered the past year beyond any former precedent.

The number of new congregations supplied the past year is	21
..... of missionaries employed during the year	is 53
.... of years of missionary service performed	is 35
.... of congregations supplied	is 74

The amount of money pledged the past year for missionary services, } up to the 1st of the present month, } is $3,135 00

Taught by past experience that, "If the Lord build not the house, the workmen labour in vain that build it;" in view of the thousands unprovided for in our own field of labour, and within hearing of the cries of perishing millions in other portions of our land, we would pour our prayer into the ear of "Him, with whom nothing is impossible," that he would make us "endure hardness as good soldiers of Jesus Christ," and that he would make all our churches "thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead; and that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves but unto him who died for them and rose again."

Gladly would we encourage you, while enduring the oppressive burden "which comes upon you daily—the care of all the churches," with cheering anticipations of our increasing success the coming year. But in assuming its responsibilities, and in approaching its labours and its trials, we would rather say, "If the Lord will, we shall live and do this or that."

By order of the Board,

A. CRANE,

Corresponding Secretary.

Utica, April 24, 1833.

CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF AGENCY FOR THE WESTERN STATES, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

This agency, as noticed in our Report, has continued its operations with increasing success, and its prospects are highly encouraging; but owing to some contemplated changes, in connexion with the recent appointment of agents on that field, we omit here the publication of the names which at present compose it. We are, however, happy to state that the Rev. HENRY LITTLE, of Oxford, Ohio, has accepted our appointment as General Agent of the A. H. M. S., in connexion with the above Committee and other concurrent Committees in the Western states; and as soon as the arrangements contemplated shall be made, the public will be informed through the "Home Missionary." The following is the

ANNUAL REPORT.

Another year we have been allowed to share with you in the delightful privilege of distributing the bread of life to the destitute. As almoners of the bounty of your Society, we would express our gratitude to the Head of the church, and to our brethren and sisters of the older states, for the help which has been afforded to the weak churches and destitute places of the West. The labours of missionaries, aided by your bounty, has not been in vain. Some have planted churches, where none had existed; and others have strengthened "things that were ready to perish." Through evil and good report they have gone steadily and prayerfully onward, preaching Christ and him crucified. Scattered over the wide spreading regions of the West, in connexion with their fellow labourers, they have been instrumental in converting many souls. Schools, academies and colleges are springing up under their fostering care. The wilderness, here and there, begins to blossom as the rose. They have had trials, discouragements, and labours, to which many of their eastern brethren are strangers. They have done much. Their fellow labourers have also done much. But the work is but just begun. We have extensive regions, settled by an enterprising population of immortal souls, where the voice of a Presbyterian preacher has never been heard; and even, if to-day a minister could be placed in every settlement of the West, before twelve months had passed, the ever flowing tide of emigration would cover other regions, now in the wilderness of nature, with immortals requiring the means of salvation. So long as the sons and daughters of the older states continue to penetrate our Western wilds, to fix their homes in these regions, it will be the duty and privilege of older and more favoured Churches, to help them in sustaining the Gospel. We have no doubt your minds have dwelt upon these views, and we confidently expect that the charities and prayers of the patrons of your Society will be directed to the Great Valley, so long as a destitute section invites the hand of cultivation.

The prospective usefulness of your Society in the West was never more flattering; its past efforts have embalmed it in the grateful recollection of thousands. Opposition, from whatever source it may have arisen, has become less violent. A great and effectual door for your benevolent exertions is here opened. Our own experience and observation, sustained by the concurrent testimony of our agents and friends, all combine to show that here, the only limit to your efforts will be found in the inadequacy of means to supply the calls of feeble churches. The field is broad and "white to the harvest," but alas! the labourers are few; every month, and almost every day, we have been compelled to say to supplicating Churches, "we have no minister to recommend to you." But to these things you are not strangers.

The Committee have shown less energy, in the good cause intrusted to their responsibility, than the nature of the case required; but still they have not been idle. The results of our meetings, for counsel, have been transmitted to your board, from time to time, and we would hope that our suggestions have not been in vain. The perfect harmony of this Committee, and its general coincidence of opinion with the Parent Board, have rendered our duties pleasant; and if it shall finally appear that we have been the means of judiciously directing the hand of benevolence in distributing her bounty among the feeble churches of the West, we shall not regret any sacrifices to which these duties have subjected us. We have had trials, but God has thus far helped us, and recent events, in Divine Providence, have deepened our conviction that the servants of Christ may safely trust the keeping of their persons, property, and reputation, to the care of the Great Head of the Church.

In the name of the churches aided by your Society, through this agency; and in the name of the untold millions of this, and future generations, that shall feel the beneficial results of your operations in the Valley of the Mississippi, we return our thanks to the patrons of your Society for their exertions in our behalf; and pray that God may give them grace to perfect that which they have so nobly begun.

In behalf of the Central Committee,

THOMAS BRAINERD, Secretary.

PLAN OF LARGER SOCIETIES.

In those parts of the country where efficient organizations in aid of Home Missions do not already exist, the formation of two kinds of Societies, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S. is desired; the one large, and the other small, and the former to embrace the latter. Each larger Society may be formed to embrace the limits of a county, a city, a state, a presbytery, or a synod, as shall be judged most conducive to its activity and efficiency. The objects of all such Societies should be to raise funds to furnish, first, all needed aid to the destitute within their own limits; and, secondly, to aid the Parent Society in extending the Gospel to communities still more needy. To accomplish these objects most effectually, it is important that each Society be so small in extent of territory, that its committee or executive board may have a competent knowledge of the claims of the destitute within its limits; while it should be sufficiently large to furnish a field for the operations of an agent, for the collection of funds, the formation of subsidiary organizations, and to act as its organ of communication with the Parent Society. For this last purpose, it is judged expedient that in all cases where the auxiliary Society is sufficiently large to employ a permanent agent, he be also its corresponding secretary.

FORM OF CONSTITUTION,

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

ART. I.—This Society shall be known by the name of the Domestic Missionary Society of _____, and shall be auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

ART. II.—This Society shall be composed of such individuals as shall contribute annually to its funds, together with the members of the several church and congregational associations for Home Missions within the limits of this Society.

ART. III.—The officers of this Society shall be a president, _____ vice presidents, a treasurer, and a secretary, to be chosen at the annual meeting. These officers, in connexion with at least one person elected from each of the several associations of gentlemen composing the Society, shall constitute a board of directors, of whom not less than five shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. IV.—It shall be the duty of the board of directors to meet at the call of the president, or as often as shall be necessary for the transaction of business; to fill their own vacancies; to appoint an executive committee; to adopt the most energetic measures in their power, to accomplish the object of the Society; especially by distributing such publications as may be committed to them by the Parent institution, and by deputing some of their number to attend the annual meetings of the several associations; and, in general, by using all suitable means to excite an interest in the cause of Home Missions.

ART. V.—The annual receipts of the Society, after defraying incidental expenses, shall be paid over to the treasurer of the Parent Society, with directions as to the section of country in which it shall be expended in missionary labours, should the board deem it important to give such directions. [See resolutions on next page.]

ART. VI.—The Society shall meet as often as called by the directors, and annually on the _____ of March, when the officers shall be elected; the accounts of the treasurer, properly audited, shall be presented, and the annual report of the directors received; and when this constitution may be amended by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

ART. VII.—A copy of the constitution, authenticated by the secretary, together with the names and the residences of the officers annually elected, and also a copy of each annual report, shall be transmitted to the corresponding secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, as early as the first of April, in each year.

SMALLER SOCIETIES.

Within the limits of each larger Society, there should be organized Auxiliary Societies or Associations. Of these Associations it is recommended that there be formed two in each town, parish, or congregation, the one composed of males, and the other of females; and that they adopt the following

RULES

For the Government of Church [or Congregational] Associations [or Societies] for Home Missions.

1. This Association shall be called the [or Female] Missionary Association, [or Society,] of Church, [or Congregation,] auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of .]

2. Every person who shall contribute annually to the funds shall be a member.

3. *The affairs of the Association shall be conducted by a first and second director, [or directress,] a secretary, a treasurer, and collectors, who shall be chosen annually, and together shall constitute a committee.

4. It shall be the duty of the committee to meet at least once in three months, to appoint assistant collectors, and transact such other business as may come before them.

5. The first director, [or directress,] and in case of his [or her] absence, the second director, [or directress,] shall preside in all meetings of the Association, and shall have power to call special meetings at pleasure.

The secretary shall keep the records, and manage the correspondence.

The treasurer shall take charge of the money collected, and, after deducting incidental expenses, shall pay the same to the American Home Missionary Society, [or to the Auxiliary Society of .]

It shall be the duty of the collectors to solicit and receive contributions. For this purpose, they shall make a suitable division of their labours, call upon the individuals within their respective limits, take the names of persons disposed to contribute, together with the sums which they will give for the year, and shall pay the amount of their collections to the treasurer, previous to the next annual meeting of the Association.

6. The Association shall meet annually, on the second Monday in March of each year, when the Report shall be read, and the election of officers held; and when these rules may be altered by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

7. The Annual Report of this Association shall be transmitted by the Secretary to the Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of .] immediately after the annual meeting of the Association.

* Or, if it be preferred, the third article may read as follows. "The affairs of this Association shall be conducted by the Elders (or Deacons) of this church, who shall annually appoint from their own number a first and second director, a secretary, a treasurer, and collectors; and these together shall constitute a committee."

EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY.

THE American Home Missionary Society held its Eighth Anniversary in the Chatham-street Chapel, New-York, on Wednesday evening, May 7, 1834. The Hon. Stephen Van Rensselaer, LL. D., President of the Society, took the chair, and the meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. John Codman, D. D., of Dorchester, Mass.

The Treasurer's Report was read by Mr. Knowles Taylor, Treasurer.

The Eighth Annual Report of the Society was read by the Rev. Absalom Peters, Corresponding Secretary.

The following resolutions were adopted, viz :—

1. On motion of the Rev. E. Phelps, of Geneva, N. Y., seconded by the Rev. J. D. Paxton, of Danville, Ky. :

Resolved, That the Report be adopted, and printed under the direction of the Executive Committee.

2. On motion of the Rev. Sylvester Eaton, of Buffalo, N. Y., seconded by the Rev. G. N. Judd, of Philadelphia :

Resolved, That the success which has attended Home Missions, encourages us to trust in the promises of God, and to go on with our work till we have obeyed our Master's command : " Preach the Gospel to every creature."

3. On motion of the Rev. G. W. Blagden, of Boston, Mass., seconded by Mr. C. McIntire, of Charleston, S. C. :

Resolved, That the incidental influence of an evangelical, educated clergy upon the intellectual and political character of the people, presents one of the strongest motives for an efficient and cheerful support of the American Home Missionary Society.

4. The Rev. Andrew Reed, of London, and the Rev. James Matheson, of Durham, England, being introduced to the meeting as delegates from the London Home Missionary Society, presented the following resolution, moved by the former and seconded by the latter :

Resolved, That the operations of this Society, in their important bearings upon the advancement of religion in other countries, should enlist the sympathies of all Christian lands.

5. On motion of the Rev. J. M. Sturtevant, Professor in Illinois College, Illinois, seconded by the Rev. Thomas Mac Auley, D. D. LL. D., of New-York :

Resolved, That while this Society is bound to thank God for what has been already accomplished in the cause of Home Missions in this nation, we are also bound to acknowledge that our efforts have as yet fallen far short of our wants as a nation, and our duty as Christians.

In support of the above resolutions, appropriate addresses were made by the Rev. Messrs. Eaton, Blagden, and Reed, of London, Professor Sturtevant, and Dr. Mac Auley; and the interest of the meeting was enlivened by music interspersed, conducted by Mr. Hastings, closing with the Christian Doxology. The congregation was dismissed by the Apostolic benediction by the Rev. Dr. Mathews, of New-York.

The Society proceeded to the election of Officers for the ensuing year, and made choice of the following :—

CONSTITUTION

OF THE

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 1. This Society shall be denominated "THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY."

ART. 2. The great object of this Society shall be, to assist congregations that are unable to support the Gospel Ministry, and to send the Gospel to the destitute, within the United States.

ART. 3. The Officers of the Society shall be, a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, a Corresponding Secretary, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors, who shall be annually appointed by the Society; and who, together with the Directors for life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. 4. The Officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of thirteen, (including the Treasurer, the Corresponding Secretary, and the Recording Secretary,) residing in the City of New-York and its vicinity; five of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened. This Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society; shall appoint Missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labours; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing Missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the institution may require; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

ART. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds, annually, to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

ART. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society, by contributing annually to its funds; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for life; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for life ; and any person, on the payment of a sum, which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for life. An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for life ; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute him a Director for life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Corresponding Secretary a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its Missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a Missionary, or Missionaries, to labour in such field as it may designate ; at least to the amount of its contributions ; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The Officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be ex-officio Directors ; and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of this Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the city of New-York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

ART. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution, without a vote of two thirds of the Members present, at an annual meeting ; nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

EIGHTH REPORT.

"THE FIELD IS THE WORLD," and the command of him to whom belongeth the dominion of it is, "GO, PREACH THE GOSPEL TO EVERY CREATURE." "TEACH ALL NATIONS." These brief and intelligible announcements, with the promised presence of the Saviour to the end, furnish to the disciples of Christ their warrant and their encouragement to endeavour the conversion of the world. The purpose and the pledge of such endeavours are the essence of the Christian profession, and must therefore lie at the bottom of the structure of every legitimate plan for the spread of the Gospel.

Such it is believed were the elements of that individual feeling and public impulse which called into being the Society, whose anniversary we now celebrate. It is an AMERICAN and a HOME Society, not because its members and conductors have no sympathy for other nations. The existence of such a sympathy, deeply and devoutly cherished, was the mainspring of its organization, and continues to furnish the most commanding motive to its efforts. The moral map of the peopled earth began to be contemplated. A cry was heard from every land, "Come over and help us." The supplicating voice of want from all pagan nations was addressed to christendom. Yet christendom was not Christianized. The good soldiers of the cross were not marshalled in preparation for the conquest of the world, while, even in the midst of the churches, there remained much land yet to be possessed. The conflict between light and darkness even in the most favoured nations was fearful. In our own country especially, with a population so young and buoyant, so rapidly increasing and widely dispersed, and exposed, by the very freedom of its institutions, to bad influences as well as good, from every part of the world, there seemed to be approaching, a crisis which would demand much more than all the religious influence which it possessed to save from total wreck its high and delightful promise of distinction among the benefactors of mankind.

In view of this condition of the world, presenting a field so wide, so desolate, so hopeless, (but for the Gospel of Christ,) the hearts of many American Christians were deeply moved. Fervent supplications went up to the throne for direction. A few of the sons and daughters of our churches, in the ardour of their devotion to the service of Christ, flew to the most distant nations. Every year added to their number. On the islands of the ocean, in the midst of our western forests, and far hence among the Gentiles, they nobly raised the standard of the cross, and each of them at his post, was the voice of one crying in the wilderness, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord." Our hearts were with them, pledged in principle and in effort to sustain the Foreign Missionary enterprise, till it shall have achieved its final victory in the spread of the Gospel to every dwelling of man. But what were all they who had gone, and all who could be spared to go, among so many? And where were the six hundred thousand ministers, who were required to preach the Gospel to six hundred millions of heathens? Vain and hopeless would be the attempt to raise them up from among the worshippers of idols, until floods of light should be poured upon their dark abodes by the faithful ministry of many thousands from Christian lands. The first and largest supply must be furnished from countries already blessed with the light of the Gospel. And upon no other country, in this respect, had the providence of God devolved so great responsibilities as upon our own. Peopled at first by a band of Christian pilgrims, the foundations of its government laid in the pure principles of civil and religious liberty, its population increased with unexampled rapidity in numbers, in wealth, and in general intelligence, its territory extending from ocean to ocean, lying within the most temperate latitudes, and fanned by the most healthful breezes, and embracing in its area a fraction more than one twentieth part of the whole land surface of the globe, no other country concentrated so many of the hopes of the world. Yet we were a sinful nation. In the midst of our prosperity, the virtues on which we rose, as a people, were beginning to be sensibly impaired. Infidelity, extravagance, and vice were spreading like a leprosy in the older states, while floods of emigrants were pouring over the western mountains, careless of the spiritual blessings left behind, or unable to procure an enlightened ministry to accompany them to their new abodes. Both the bounds of their habitations, and the increase of their numbers, were rapidly advancing beyond the existing supply of competent religious instruction. The Romish hierarchy, too, was multiplying its abominations in the midst of us, and there was danger that this young country, so intensely interesting in its history, and so full of promise to the church, would soon forsake the guide of her youth, survive her true glory, and disappoint the hopes of the church. The enemy was coming in like a flood, when the founders of this Society, in the name of the Lord, lifted up a standard against him. They were the same men who had put their hands to the work of spreading the Gospel among the heathen. But that work, they perceived, could only be accomplished by the blessing of God upon the united strength of christendom. In this country especially, whether they considered the extent of its territory, the character and number of its prospective population, the facilities it afforded for unrestrained and efficient action, the dangers which threatened it, or its high bearings upon the destinies of man, they saw that the universal extension and permanent establishment of the Gospel were primarily essential to the universal spread of its blessings among the nations. Here, then, if any where on earth, was the field for Home Missions.

Thus originated the AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY. It was founded in the spirit of missions, in the largest sense. Disclaiming all narrow views and selfish aims, its patriotism is that which flows from love to God and the souls of men universally. Its object is to bless a great and growing nation, for the sake of the world, to raise a free people to the distinction of "the glory of Israel," that they may also be "a light to lighten the Gentiles."

This Society was organized under its present constitution on the sixth of May, eight years ago. It assumed the responsibilities of a previous organization in this state,* and had on its books, at the commencement of its operations, 104 missionaries. This number was increased, during the first year of the Society, to 169;—the second year, to 201;—the third, to 304;—the fourth, to 392;—the fifth, to 463;—the sixth, to 509;—the seventh to 606;—and the eighth, which is the year now terminated, to 676. This constant augmentation of the number of labourers employed has required a proportionate increase of collections and expenditures, and has rendered the business of the Society, every year, more multifarious and arduous. Yet a kind and beneficent Providence has prospered our enterprise beyond the anticipations of the most sanguine.

The Executive Committee, in presenting their present Report, have occasion to repeat, with deeper and warmer emotions than ever before, the expressions of gratitude and congratulation, with which they have met the Society at each of its previous anniversaries. We have felt, indeed, with others engaged in kindred efforts, our share of the pecuniary embarrassments of the country. Our receipts have thus been reduced below the demands of the cause, yet, on the whole, the year has been one of increased prosperity to this department of Christian benevolence. An amount of labour has been performed under the patronage of the Society, and an amount of good accomplished, in view of which we should be ungrateful not to rejoice and be glad.

The ordinary details of the Society's operations, during the last year, are presented, as usual, in the following

RECAPITULATION.

Of the 676 missionaries and agents enumerated in the foregoing tables, 437 are settled as pastors, or are employed as stated supplies in single congregations, 210 extend their labours to two or three congregations each, and 29, including agents, are employed on larger fields. The number of congregations, missionary districts, or fields of agency thus supplied, in whole or in part, during the year, has been 899.

Of the whole number, 476 were in commission at the commencement of the year ; 130 have ceased to require our aid ; the remainder have been reappointed, usually with some diminution in the grants for their support, and 200 new appointments have been made.

The amount of ministerial labour reported as having been performed within the year, is 463 years and 5 months.

*This is the sum actually received at New-York. The report of the Treasurer of the N. H. Miss. Society has not been received.

The number reported as added within the year to the churches aided, has been 4,055, viz., 1,319 by letter, and 2,736 by examination, on profession of their faith. 79 of the churches aided have been blessed with special revivals of religion; and the probable number of conversions under the ministry of our missionaries, is about 4,000.

The number of Sabbath Schools reported, embrace not less than 35,000 scholars.

The number of Bible Classes reported, embrace about 8,500 pupils, of all ages.

The number of subscribers to the principle of entire abstinence from the use of intoxicating liquors as a drink, reported by the missionaries on the fields of their labour, is 62,547.

The following is a brief tabular view of the results of the last year, in several particulars, compared with those of the preceding years.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

We have already stated that at the commencement of the Society's operations, under its present organization, it had in its employment 104 missionaries. These extended their labours, with more or less frequency, to perhaps 130 congregations and missionary districts. From the foregoing tabular view, it appears that the number of missionaries has been increased, in 8 years, to 676; and the number of congregations and districts annually aided in their support, to 899. Within the eight years, the missionaries of the Society have laboured under its commissions the full amount of 2,238 years. Under their ministry, upwards of 20,000 souls have been reported as added to the Churches on profession of their faith. Add to these the number thus received, during the first year of the Society, not embraced in our tabular view, but supposed to be not less than 600, and the whole number received into the Churches aided, since May 5, 1826, is 20,915. There have been annually instructed in Sabbath Schools under the care of our missionaries, from 10,000 to 35,000 children and youth, and from 2,000 to 10,000 in Bible Classes. They have also been efficient helpers in the cause of temperance, in the support of common schools, in the distribution of Bibles and religious tracts, and every good work which has presented its claims on the fields of their labour.

AUXILIARY SOCIETIES.

The Executive Committee would by no means arrogate to the influences and agencies exerted in direct connexion with their own office the praise of having accomplished all that they now report. Several Domestic Missionary Societies were in existence, and had been in operation a number of years previous to the organization of this. The majority, and the most important of these, have since become auxiliary to the National Institution; and while they have been strengthened by this connexion, they have, in turn, contributed greatly to augment the doings of the Parent Society. Their missionaries are now generally appointed under commissions from this Committee, though the funds for the support of such as labour within the bounds of each auxiliary of the larger class, for the convenience of disbursement, are permitted to remain in its treasury, to be paid out on the order of its proper officers. The whole amount collected, however, is reported to the treasury of the Parent Society, and that portion of it which is not appropriated within the bounds of the auxiliaries, is expended by us on other fields. This arrangement, not only without embarrassment, but with positive advantage to the local operations of Auxiliary Societies, has enabled the Parent Society to avail itself of the strength of the older states to supply the wants of the new. It has also promoted the organization and efficient action of auxiliaries in several of the new states, which, by the encouragement and aid afforded them by this Committee, have done much for the supply of the destitute within their own bounds.

The following interesting items are gathered from the annual returns of several important auxiliaries, for the year ending April 1, 1834.

1. MASSACHUSETTS MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society, it will be recollected, bore a conspicuous part in the operations of the year which preceded our last anniversary. Its receipts, during about ten months, ending April 1, 1833, were $9,595 84, which, together with a previous balance of $2,387 in its treasury, made the whole sum at the disposal of that Society during the year, $11,982 76. Since that date its resources and efficiency have been nearly doubled. Its receipts for the year ending April 1, 1834, have been $19,060 80, which, with the balance in its treasury at the beginning of the year, has made the whole amount at its disposal, since the last annual return, $20,665 84. Of this sum, $8,850 91 have been expended in that state in the support of our Agent and 57 missionaries under commissions from this Committee. Of the remainder, $8,822 32 have been remitted to the treasury of the Parent Society, and expended on other fields.

Besides the above, the following sums have been received from the state of Massachusetts, viz.

From the HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY $800, and from various contributions directly to the Parent Society, $1,780 11; making in all, from the state of Massachusetts, within the year, $21,640 91.

2. CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Among the New-England states, Connecticut is second only to Massachusetts in the amount of its contributions to the general cause of Domestic Missions; and its Missionary Society, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., is annually increasing in efficiency and in the extent of its operations. The receipts of its treasury for the year ending April 1, 1834, have been $5,718 78. This added to the balance on hand at the time of the last previous annual return, makes the whole sum at the disposal of the Society within the year, $9,247 09. Of this sum, $4,699 11, including incidental expenses, have been paid for the support of 44 missionaries in that state and Rhode Island. Of the remainder, $2,000 have been paid over to the Parent Society, and expended in the support of missionaries in Missouri, and others in the Western States.

The following sums have also been received from the state of Connecticut, viz.; from the Home Missionary Association of the Eastern District, New-Haven county, $529. Contributions directly to the Parent Society, $1,117 58. Balance of legacy from the late Thames Wilcox, $1,813 55, making in all from the state of Connecticut, $9,178 91.

3. MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The large extent of the state of Maine, the rapid increase of its population, and its prospective wealth and importance, render it a peculiarly interesting field for missionary enterprise. If in comparison with the northern and middle states, the territory beyond the Alleghanies is properly denominated the "great west," with equal propriety, in comparison with the rest of New-England, we may speak of Maine as the "great east." It is so regarded by the enterprising churches which have begun to occupy it, and no other field of equal extent has more interested the feelings of this Committee. Their aid was accordingly early proffered and extended to the needy in that state, and has been continued until the Maine Missionary Society, strengthened by the blessing of God upon its own action and the co-operation of the Parent Society, has at length become able, without aid from sister states, to sustain all the labourers who are prepared to occupy her waste places. The receipts of this Society have been nearly doubled within the last two years. For the year ending April 1, 1834, they have been $6,607 82. This amount, with the balance of of $2,867 22 on hand at the commencement of the year, has constituted a total sum of $9,475 04 at the disposal of that auxiliary since its last annual return. Of this, $8,302 19 have been expended in support of an agent and 78 missionaries in that state.

The Secretary remarks that Bible Classes, Sabbath Schools, Temperance efforts, &c., &c., are connected with our missionary labours, and are uniformly carried forward by these means. Very few, he says, have yet been added to the churches aided, since our last return, and there were almost no revivals of religion till the commencement of the present year, 1834. The face of things now, through the blessing of Heaven, is changing, and present appearances encourage the hope that this will be a year of the "right hand of the Most High."

He adds, there are in the state 173 churches, 123 of which are supplied by 110 pastors and 13 resident ministers; 40 of these aided by our Society. Fifty destitute churches, and twice as many places where there are no churches, constitute our wide field for missionary operations.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society is annually advancing in efficiency and in the amount of its aid to the general cause. The Treasurer's return for the first of April has not been received, but its receipts for the year ending October last, as published in its annual report at that time, were $6,808 82. The number of its missionaries has been 56, and their labours attended with usual success.

WESTERN AGENCY IN THE STATE OF NEW-YORK, AT GENEVA.

The cause of Domestic Missions, says the report of this Agency, is yet dear to the hearts of God's people in Western New-York. The amount actually received during the year has been $4,842 14, which is $466 40 more than the receipts of the previous year, and which, added to several sums transmitted directly to the Parent Society, make the whole amount collected on the field of the Agency, since the last anniversary, more than $5,000. The number of its missionaries has been 51, and seasons of special refreshing from the presence of the Lord have been enjoyed in a number of the congregations under their ministry.

CENTRAL BOARD OF AGENCY FOR THE WESTERN STATES, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

This Agency, heretofore denominated the Central Committee of Agency, &c., is annually increasing in the amount of its operations, and the extent of its usefulness. Its receipts during the last year, ending April 10, 1834, have been $1,348 50, all of which has been appropriated to the support of the Society's Missionaries, under direction of this Committee. It should be remarked, however, that owing to a succession of embarrassments in years past, our organizations in the West have never been so perfected as to secure the happiest results. The labours of our agents have been interrupted by sickness and death, and it is not until recently that we have been able to extend the living appeals of this Society, excepting to a very limited portion of the western states. Within the last year, four agents have entered upon their labours in the western states, which we trust will be permanent, on fields which had been before but partially and very inadequately occupied. These and others of a more temporary character have pursued their work with diligence, wisdom, and zeal, and under their influence, the prospect of a constantly increasing amount of aid from the contributions of the western churches is encouraging in the highest degree.

WESTERN ANNIVERSARIES.

Another measure adopted by our western brethren within the last year, is regarded as highly important. We refer to the anniversary meeting of the friends of Home Missions, held for the first time in the city of Cincinnati, in October last, under direction of the Central Board of Agency for the Western States. Few meetings in our country, it is believed, have been attended with more deep and thrilling interest; and the public impression was such, as we trust, will not soon cease to exert a salutary influence upon the cause. It is unspeakably interesting to contemplate these beginnings of concentrated benevolent efforts in the West. Let them be continued with that spirit which the great Master in heaven approveth, and the time is not far distant, when the amount of labour performed, and of good accomplished by the action of western churches, to be annually reported in western cities to cheer the hearts and encourage the enterprise of western Christians, will greatly surpass what we now witness in the cities of the east; and the reciprocal influence of their anniversaries and of ours, will mingle in the sweetest harmony, and with irresistible power, to rouse the energies of this great nation's strength, in continued and zealous endeavours to answer the claims of the world, and convert every people on earth to the love and service of God.

CENTRAL AGENCY IN THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

The report of this Agency (at Utica) for the last year is unusually interesting, and its operations have continued to increase both in extent and efficiency. Its receipts have been $3,231 69, besides several small sums which have been paid by the contributors directly to the treasury of the Parent Society. The number of new missionaries appointed through the recommendation of the Agency has been 13, and the whole number employed within its bounds, the whole or a part of the year, including the Agent, has been 48. These have performed an amount of labour, under our commissions, equal to 35 years.—Twenty-one congregations have been aided which were not under our patronage the previous year, and most of which were never before favoured with stated preaching. The whole number of congregations which has thus been assisted, during the year, in supplying themselves with the bread of life, is 65.

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This Society, like most of its sister auxiliaries, is increasing in the amount of its contributions to the general cause.—Its receipts, during the last year, ending April 1, 1834, have been $3,225 45, which is nearly double the amount of the previous year. Its disbursements have been $2,500, leaving a balance in its treasury of $693 75. In addition to the above, $741 94 have been received from that state by the Treasurer of the Parent Society, making in all from Vermont $3,967 39. The number of its missionaries within the year has been 41, and the congregations which they have supplied in whole or in part, more than 50. The Secretary, in connexion with his annual statistical return, remarks, "Though the number added to the churches aided has been comparatively small, yet the Sabbath School, Bible Class and Temperance cause are reported as having secured a stronger hold on the consciences and affections of the Christian community than ever before."

WESTERN RESERVE DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY, OHIO.

The annual return from this Society has not been received, and we are unable to give an accurate account of its proceedings, or of the amount of its receipts.

SABBATH SCHOLARS' ASSOCIATIONS.

The aid derived from associations in single congregations, has, in some instances, amounted to between $2,000 and $3,000, within the last year; and among the efficient friends of the cause in several congregations we are happy to number the children and youth associated in Sabbath Schools. The Sabbath Scholars' Missionary Association of the Cedar-street Church in this city has been in operation six years, and has been noticed in our former reports. In that time its payments to the Parent Society have been $2,306 75. During the last year its operations have been increasingly prosperous, though its receipts have been less than the previous year. Its number of missionaries is six. A similar association in the South Dutch Church has sustained three missionaries; and one in the West Presbyterian Church, formed within the year, has sustained two, and our young friends in these and other churches, encouraged by the co-operation of their teachers, are putting their hands to this work of benevolence with an efficiency far surpassing our expectations. The enlarged and enlightened views exhibited in their reports, and the ability with which they are written, afford delightful evidence, that while they have watered others, they have themselves been watered.

OTHER SOURCES OF INCOME.

Besides the amounts received through the treasuries of Auxiliary Societies and Agencies, contributions directly to the treasury of the Parent Society have been received, as formerly, from almost every section of the country. Some small legacies have also been collected, the largest of which is the residue of the bequest of the late Thames Wilcox, of Connecticut, $1,813 55, which, together with $1,650 previously received, and reported at our last anniversary, makes the total amount received on that legacy $3,463 55. Examples of individual munificence have also been multiplied, giving evidence that the cause of the Society is taking a deeper hold of the affections of many of its friends than in former years.

OPERATIONS AND INFLUENCE OF AGENTS.

From a review of the preceding statement of receipts from different sources, there is apparent great inequality in the zeal and efficiency with which the work of this Society has advanced on different portions of the great field which it has endeavoured to pervade. The organized and permanent Auxiliary Societies and Agencies have by no means contributed to the general cause in equal proportion to the ability of the churches which they severally embrace. The same is also true of portions of the country not thus organized.

This inequality is doubtless to be attributed in some degree to the numerous causes which operate unseen to elevate or depress the religious feeling and action of different portions of the community. But so far as the causes of these results are visible, they may be traced directly and principally to the supply or deficiency of living Agents to address the people, exhibit the necessities of the cause, and solicit their contributions. It is deeply to be regretted that a Christian community, in relation to duties so unexceptionable and pressing, and in view of the ample sufficiency of intelligence which is spread before the public through the periodical press, should still wait and need to be moved by the influence of personal persuasion. But much as it is to be lamented, the lessons of our experience have taught us that this is the true state of the case; and while it is so, there is ground of encouragement and congratulation in the fact, that there does exist among the friends of the cause an available influence which is sufficient, if exerted, to resist the prevalent tendency to indolence and neglect, and elicit to a high degree the feeling and interest of the churches on behalf of every enterprise of philanthropy. This influence has been realized in the zealous, discreet, and persevering labours of Agents. Wherever such Agents have gone, with their array of substantial facts gathered from the field of our operations, their warm and living appeals have generally been answered by liberal contributions.

These considerations will explain the reason why the state of Massachusetts, which three years ago did not contribute more than about $8,000 to the cause of Domestic Missions, has, within the last year, contributed $21,640 91. And why have Connecticut, and Maine, and New-Hampshire, during the same period, experienced so great an increase in the amount of their contributions and the efficiency of their action? It is because living and efficient Agents have occupied those fields. To the same cause, in no small degree, may be attributed the fact that the whole of New-England, with a population but little surpassing, either in numbers or wealth, that of the single state of New-York, has so far surpassed it in the amount of its contributions to this Society, during the last year. It is true we have fewer churches in New-York of the denominations which co-operate with us, and many of these have chosen to make their contributions to Home Missions through other channels. Still there is a deficiency to be accounted for. While New-England has brought to our treasury, within the last year, $47,842 38, New-York, though it embraces the centre of the Society's operations, has contributed $25,308 77. The same reasoning will account, in part, for the increase of receipts from some portions of the latter state and their diminution from others. The former have felt the influence of permanent Agents, while the latter have been neglected in this respect, or but partially occupied. The western and the southern states exhibit a similar contrast. The former have enjoyed the labours of several active and enterprising Agents, and the results have begun to be realized in returns to our treasury; while the latter, more wealthy, and surely not less liberal, have contributed less to the means of this Society, because they have hardly been visited by this important and indispensable influence.

But the importance of the labours of our Agents cannot be measured by the amount of their direct returns to the treasury of the Society. They are all preachers of the Gospel, and their labours as ministers, not less than those of ordinary missionaries, have been instrumental of the conversion of souls. They are also the advocates of other causes of benevolence, as they have opportunity. But their influence is especially felt upon the congregations aided, and the fields yet to be occupied, in giving energy and system to their endeavours to provide for themselves. "How much," says our Agent in Illinois, "the demands from this field on the A. H. M. S. will be lessened by my agency, I cannot say, but I think I can see results from this quarter, not very remote, which will be vastly important." Similar results will doubtless be realized from the labours of others in every portion of the country, but especially in the new and most destitute states.

LIST OF AGENTS.

The following is a list of the permanent Agents of the Society, during the last year, to whose faithfulness, industry, discretion, and usefulness, the Committee are happy to bear their decided testimony, viz.

The Rev. Richard S. Storrs, Associate Secretary and General Agent of the A. H. M. S. for the New-England states. Mr. S. is also Secretary of the Massachusetts Missionary Society, and, with occasional visits to other portions of his field, labours principally in that state, where the influence of his agency is delightfully manifested in the extraordinary results which we have already reported. He has, also, usefully served the Society within the last year, by a tour to Ohio, and to Lower Canada, during which he collected much valuable information, which has been given to the public.

The Rev. Eliphalet Gillett, D. D., Cor. Sec. of the Maine Missionary Society, has been usefully employed in that state.

The Rev. Andrew Rankin, Agent for the state of New-Hampshire, has laboured with encouraging success.

The Rev. Amos Savage, having been employed three months in New-Jersey and adjoining portions of New-York, in the early part of the year, has laboured the last quarter very acceptably and usefully in Connecticut, under direction of the C. M. S.

The Rev. David Porter, D. D., has served the Society during the year in the counties bordering on the Hudson River, in the state of New-York. He has, at the same time, made collections for the American Bible Society, and the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, from which he receives a part of his support, yet the results of his efforts have not been inconsiderable in contributions to our treasury.

The Rev. Abijah Crane, Secretary of the Central Agency in the State of New-York, has laboured successfully during the year, as is apparent from the report of that Agency in the Appendix.

The Rev. Miles P. Squier, Secretary of the Western Agency in the State of New-York, though interrupted in his labours a large portion of the year, has continued, at our solicitation, to retain his office as Agent, and during the latter part of the year has devoted himself to its duties, with an efficiency which sustains the character which he had acquired by the services of several former years on the same field.

The Rev. Daniel W. Lathrop, Cor. Sec. of the Western Reserve Missionary Society, has continued his labours in the northern part of Ohio and Michigan Territory, with increasing results in contributions to the cause.

The Rev. Henry Little, Cor. Secretary of the Central Board of Agency for the Western States, has commenced his labours as General Agent within the year. The results thus far have been exceedingly promising, and much is anticipated from the continuance of his zealous and devoted efforts on that important field.

The Rev. B. C. Cressey, in the southern part of Indiana, and the Rev. J. Thomson, in the northern part of the same state, were appointed in November last, each to labour six months, under direction of the Indiana Missionary Society. Their reports have been encouraging.

The Rev. Theron Baldwin, as General Agent for Illinois and Missouri, has been serving the Society with much efficiency and very interesting results during the year.

The Rev. Gideon N. Judd has recently been appointed Associate Secretary and General Agent of the Society for the Middle States, excepting New-York, and has entered upon the duties of his appointment with encouraging prospects.

Besides the above, several Agents have been employed for limited periods on different portions of the field, whose names are reported in our general table.

STATE OF THE TREASURY.

The Treasurer's account exhibits a total amount of receipts, since the last anniversary, of $78,911 24. This is $10,284 07 more than the receipts of the previous year. The expenditures of the last year have also exceeded those of the preceding, $13,737 80. These items, considered by themselves, exhibit an encouraging advance in the annual increase of the receipts and expenditures of the Society. But they are not in due proportion to each other. The balance against the Society, at the present time, is $1,264 25. It should be considered also, that the pledges of the Society for the year to come, are greater than they have been at the commencement of any previous year. With these responsibilities already assumed, and with a field before them to be occupied, increasing in interest as it widens in extent, the Executive Committee will enter upon the labours of another year, under the full impression that its concerns are to be greater and more difficult and trying than those of any previous year. The existing depression of the pecuniary interests of the country has already thrown some embarrassments in the way of this and other kindred enterprises. Our receipts for the last year have doubtless been diminished by this cause ; and unless its influence shall be resisted by a deeper tone of religious feeling, there is danger that its consequences may be more extensively felt hereafter. But, as the organs of this Society, we act for a community who profess to love the Lord with all the soul, and their neighbour as themselves ; a community, too, who possess wealth enough, and ten times more than enough, to provide for the onward movement of every branch of benevolent effort which adorns and blesses our land. Will they, under the pressure of the times, begin their retrenchments at the house of the Lord ? Will they not rather, according to their ability, make larger provisions to supply the deficiency occasioned by the influence of the state of the times upon the contributions of those of little faith ? It is an adage of the practical agriculturalists of our country, that "It is wise to dig wells in a dry time." Let the principles of this maxim be adopted by the friends of Home Missions, and we have nothing to fear. Let the wells of salvation be sunk so low that they shall reach the deep fountain of Christian benevolence in the hearts of the pious, and they will pour forth the waters of life upon a dry and thirsty land. That fountain is inexhaustible as the source from which it is supplied ; and encouraged by the promises of Him by whom it is opened, and animated by the signal blessings with which He has crowned the efforts of this Society hitherto, the Committee, whatever may be the embarrassments of the times, do not entertain a doubt that this enterprise is owned of God, and will be sustained.

GENERAL INFLUENCE OF THE SOCIETY.

When the American Home Missionary Society was formed, the whole number of missionaries annually employed by all the Domestic Missionary Societies and Boards of Missions, sustained by the denominations represented in this institution, was less than 300. And many who were then reported as missionaries were employed only for very limited periods, and on a plan less adapted to extensive and permanent usefulness than that which now generally prevails. But in eight years how rapid and extraordinary has been the change ! The impulse which gave origin to this Society inspired new hopes in the public mind, and roused to new efforts the friends of the cause throughout the land. In the progress of the work, most of the important Societies which then existed, have united with us as auxiliaries, and, invigorated by this connexion, have largely contributed to augment the aggregate of the doings of the Parent Society. The extent of these operations, the energy and success with which they have been conducted, appear also to have provoked very many, who have chosen to seek the promotion of the same cause through other organizations, which remain unconnected with this Society. Eight years ago, the whole number of missionaries sustained by the Board of Missions of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, and the Missionary Society of the Reformed Dutch Church, was less than 50. Now their number is, probably, 276, of which 250 are employed by the former, and 26 by the latter. These, together with the probable number supported by several independent Societies in the southern states, amount to about 300, which, added to the 676 appointed by this Society, constitute a grand total of 976 missionaries employed in the United States and Canada, during the last year, in connexion with the Presbyterian, Congregational, and Reformed Dutch Churches. The number of congregations and destitute places aided in their support, and benefited by their stated or occasional labours, is probably not less than 1500. Such are the results, direct and indirect, of the organization and operations of the American Home Missionary Society. It has not only accomplished much by the blessing of God upon its own action, but has roused a spirit in the churches on behalf of the cause, which we trust will not slumber. It has taught the destitute the importance and practicability of associating for religious worship, and of securing and sustaining the institutions of the Gospel, waking them to Christian enterprise, and guiding thousands to the mountains, to take thence "every man a beam" for the building of the house of the Lord.

CONCLUSION.

It would be delightful, in concluding our Report, to dwell upon the great variety of incidents which the correspondence of the year has furnished to enlist the sympathies and encourage the faith of the Committee, and to deepen their impressions of the immense importance of the work assigned them by this Society. But the time would fail us to gather all the clusters which have been ripened upon so wide a field; and, with the brief narrative already given of the operations and influence of the Society, we seal up our testimony to the judgment of the great day. Encouraged by the experience of the past, we would now set our faces towards the labours of another year with the firmness of faith and the cheerfulness of hope. We feel that we are the organs of a mighty influence, which God has provided to hasten the triumphs of his grace, and that the high vantage ground to which this Society has already been advanced, is assigned it for the sake of the world. It cannot go backward, nor pause in its career. The public confidence which it has secured, the sympathies and prayers which it has enlisted, and the great and glorious end to which it aspires, combine to impel it onward and upward. Like the flight of an angel, its movement must be without rest or weariness, until, in co-operation with all the sister influences which emanate from the Church universal, it shall have proclaimed the glorious Gospel of the blessed God to all that dwell upon the earth.

If such an enterprise can be sustained in any country, it is in our own. If there be a people on earth who are bound to sustain it, that people is our own. And if any part of the world presents a field better prepared than all others to receive a moral influence and impulse of sufficient power to convey the saving health of the Gospel round the globe, it is the field which invites the direct and redoubled efforts of this Society; it is this great and free republic, which statesmen tell us is the last hope of liberty, whose commerce is linking it with every country, whose language is flying on the wings of the wind all over the world, and whose influence is fast becoming more commanding than that of any other nation. The single power that can save this influence from entire perversion, and make it a blessing to mankind, is religion. And can it be doubted that God will save such a nation, so marked in his providence as the hope of the Church and of the world? Yet for all this, he will be inquired of by the house of Israel, and served by his people. Difficulties and embarrassments too we may expect to meet. Avarice will continue to hoard its treasures, and dig in the earth, and hide the Lord's money, and an all-pervading spirit of worldliness will resist the claims of philanthropy and love. But what are these to the power of Him who presides over the cause of Christian missions? "Strong is his hand, and high is his right hand."

APPENDIX.

THE WESTERN AGENCY OF THE A. H. M. S. FOR THE STATE OF N. Y.

THE "WESTERN AGENCY," which is a board of inquiry and reference for the district embracing the seventeen Western counties of the state of New-York, has been re-appointed for the year commencing May, 1834, and is composed of the following gentlemen, viz :—

Rev. HENRY DWIGHT, Geneva, Chairman.
Rev. MILES P. SQUIER, Geneva.
Rev. ELIAKIM PHELPS, Geneva.
Mr. ABRAHAM B. HALL, Geneva.
Mr. H. H. SEELYE, Geneva.
Hon. SAMUEL M. HOPKINS, Geneva.

Rev. WILLIAM WISNER, Rochester.
Rev. SYLVESTER EATON, Buffalo.
Mr. JOSEPH STOCKING, Buffalo.

ANNUAL REPORT.

Geneva, May 1st, 1834.

The Western Agency for Home Missions, in submitting their EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT, acknowledge, with devout gratitude, the goodness of God in prospering our work another year; in sparing the lives of the missionaries who have been sent to their fields of labour through our instrumentality, and in giving the work intrusted to us favour before the Churches.

Fifty-one missionaries have this year been commissioned to the destitute within our bounds; and their labours have not been in vain in the Lord. They have prosecuted the high objects of the Christian ministry, and through the blessing of God on the truth dispensed by them, Churches have been planted and watered, and souls redeemed from the dominion of sin. Refreshing seasons of grace have been enjoyed at a considerable number of the stations occupied, and especially on our south-western frontier. The counties of Chautauque, Cattaraugus and Allegany, Erie and Genesee, have, to a large extent, been the seat of revivals of religion, in which we trust many have "been born of God." The field there is eminently white unto the harvest, and the cry for more labourers is urgent indeed. Our missionaries on that ground speak of themselves as ready to faint under the burdens of the labour imposed on them, and entreat us, in the name of souls hungering for the bread of life, to send others to their help.

But the particulars of the work on this field are already communicated to you and the public, in the reports of the missionaries themselves, and we need not to any great extent enumerate them here.

This section of country has shared deeply in the effects of the stagnation of business and the want of money the present season. This pecuniary pressure came upon us just at the time of the year when the annual effort for Home Missions is usually made within this Agency.

The receipts of our treasury this year, have amounted to $4,842 14, besides which other sums have been transmitted directly to the Parent Society, as is sometimes convenient for auxiliaries, sufficient to swell the aggregate receipts from within this Agency, to more than $5,000. Collections, also, from several places known to have taken up the subject, have not yet been forwarded.

The cause of Home Missions continues to be dear to the hearts of the people of God in Western New-York, and is intimately associated in their Christian sympathies with the diffusion of truth and holiness every where among men. In our appeals for aid, no argument has been more successful than that of the influence of America on mankind,—the effects of the universal spread of the Gospel at home on the conversion of the world, and the millennial reign of the Son of God.

A commendable degree of harmony prevails here in the missionary work; and your Society, as a medium for the distribution of the bounty of the churches to their own poor, stands high in the confidence of the friends of missions among us; and we have only to beseech you, in their name, to go on increasing in labours and usefulness, until our land and the world are brought under law to Christ.

By order, and in behalf of the Western Agency,

EXTRACTS FROM THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The past year has brought increasing evidence that our gracious Master condescends to foster this department of Christian action. Especially has this been done by disposing his people to cherish this cause in their affections; to remember it in their prayers; to recognise it in their calculations, and to hasten its accomplishment, by pouring the avails of their industry, cheerfully and with a good degree of liberality, into the treasury of the Lord.

There have been commissioned the past year, through this Agency, thirteen missionaries, besides those whose commissions have been renewed. Forty-seven missionaries have been employed the whole or a part of the year. The amount of labour performed on this field, including the services of the Agent, is thirty-five years. We have aided twenty-one congregations the past year which were not under our patronage the year before, and nearly all of them were never before occupied by the ambassadors of Christ. Sixty-five congregations have been aided in supplying themselves with the bread of life. Including all the expenses of the Agency, the appropriations of the past year amount to $3,818 11.

Though it has been a time of unusual spiritual declension, the Lord has enabled us to collect more for the purposes of this Agency, than during any previous year.

Besides what has been sent by some of our churches directly to the treasury of the Parent Society, we have received $3,231 69.

The conviction is evidently deepening in the hearts of Christians here, that constitutions, and statute books, and courts, and prisons, are not the only, or the principal safeguards of our free institutions. They begin to believe that those who are left to ripen into manhood, habitually accustomed to treat with reckless indifference the statutes of God, will not readily be brought to tremble and yield before the majesty of human law. Intelligent and business men of our churches begin to feel that every thing valuable in our republican government; every thing sacred in the prosperity of our Zion; every thing moving in the conversion of our Christless millions; and every thing commanding in the part we should act in the emancipation of our enslaved world, requires them, in the name of the Lord, to preach the Gospel to every creature in our borders.

The Home Missionary movements are exerting a most salutary influence upon our feeble congregations, not only by sending them the preached Gospel, and blessing them with its usual benefits, but by teaching them the amount of their own ability, and how to exert it in sustaining the Gospel among themselves. Facts show that they needed such instruction, and that they have received it. The nature of the case is such that we cannot judge with precision, but as far as we can determine, there are many of our feeble congregations, which, had they been left without instruction and encouragement, would not think of having preaching, except occasionally; but by being encouraged to try, and told how, and promised a little aid, they are now regularly supplied one third or one half of the time. Others, which would have deemed it impracticable to hire for a longer period than six months at a time, and then perhaps go without a year or more, now sustain the Gospel ministry without intermission, from half to the whole of the time. One church, of more than thirty years standing, which had not for many years had preaching more than half the time, and much of the time none at all, by a little salutary counsel and timely aid, within one year settled a pastor and built a meeting-house, and at the close of the third year, were able to sustain themselves without any increase of pecuniary ability, except what ordinarily attends fidelity in God's service. In this case, and many others which we must not detail, we have reason to believe the amount the people do for themselves is at least doubled, and the amount of pastoral labour enjoyed, and its benign influence, are more than doubled. And though "there remains much land yet to be possessed," several stations have been occupied the past year by this Agency, which, we doubt not, would have remained a moral waste for many years, and become worse and worse, had it not been for the action of your Society.

Another feature in this work must not be overlooked. By coming in contact with this enterprise, our feeble churches learn the nature and value of benevolent efforts. None of the sophistry of covetousness or infidelity can convince them that good has not been done. They have seen it, and felt it, and know it is true. And you need not be surprised when we tell you that few churches, considering their ability, are as liberal as those which have been, and now are, patronized by your Society. St. Lawrence, as a county, oppressed as it still is with Macedonian poverty, is coming up nobly in the work of benevolence. Besides doing well for other objects of Christian charity, that county has contributed the past year for Home Missionary purposes, $423 21, and pledged for the ensuing year $550. A church in another county, while receiving aid to the amount of $100, when the subject of Home Missions was presented to them, contributed $60. Another, receiving $60, contributed $100, and assigned as a reason for doing so, that "they found others were more needy than themselves." Another, which just began to sustain the Gospel, in view of two destitute towns on their borders, proposed to give up one fourth of their pastor's time, if we would employ him on that ground. We readily consented. And it is truly gratifying to state, that this church contributed to our Treasury within $2 33 of the whole amount we pledged to their poor neighbours. The same church has contributed this year $100 for Foreign Missions. This church, five years ago, thought seriously of dissolving, and probably would have done it, had not the fostering hand of the A. H. M. S. been extended for its encouragement.

EXTRACTS FROM THE LAST ANNUAL REPORT.

The review of the past year, calls upon us for thanksgiving to God for the success which has attended our feeble efforts. This great western country, possessing every variety of soil and climate, unshackled by despotic power, and free from the evils entailed on most communities by preceding generations, seems to have been reserved for some noble purpose just at the ushering in of the Millenium; and if American Christians will now follow the leadings of Providence, this land will be Immanuel's. Here will be reared the men, and here the means procured for the conversion of the world. The A. H. M. S. has begun to put its hand to the work, and heaven has written success upon the enterprise. It would make your hearts burn within you, in the midst of your approaching anniversary, to hear the expressions of gratitude that spontaneously flow from grateful thousands in the west who have been awakened, converted, or in some way blessed through the medium of this Institution. Our Society has afforded aid to more than half the Presbyterian Ministers on this side of the mountains, and is now assisting two hundred, who are not labouring in vain, nor spending their strength for nought. Primary schools, academies, colleges, theological seminaries and churches, as well as almost every benevolent enterprise, are prospering under their fostering care. Yet such is the influx of emigrants, and so rank is the growth of every kind of vice, that we very much need a great addition to our numbers. The engines are worked manfully, but such is the quantity of combustibles daily added to the flame, that we stand in doubt whether the building can be saved. The preaching of the Gospel may be the remedy for all the evils that exist around us. If slavery is to be removed, the streams of alcohol dried up, the Indian blessed, the Sabbath-breaker reclaimed, the errorist corrected, or the infidel reformed, it must be done through the foolishness of preaching. Let then every friend of God and man prove his sincerity by his works, while he prays constantly and fervently the Lord of the harvest to send forth labourers into his harvest.

PLAN OF LARGER SOCIETIES.

In those parts of the country where efficient organizations in aid of Home Missions do not already exist, the formation of two kinds of Societies, auxiliary to the A. H. M. S., is desired; the one large, and the other small, and the former to embrace the latter. Each larger Society may be formed to embrace the limits of a county, a city, a state, a presbytery, or a synod, as shall be judged most conducive to its activity and efficiency. The objects of all such Societies should be to raise funds to furnish, first, all needed aid to the destitute within their own limits; and, secondly, to aid the Parent Society in extending the Gospel to communities still more needy. To accomplish these objects most effectually, it is important that each Society be so small in extent of territory, that its committee or executive board may have a competent knowledge of the claims of the destitute within its limits; while it should be sufficiently large to furnish a field for the operations of an agent, for the collection of funds, the formation of subsidiary organizations, and to act as its organ of communication with the Parent Society. For this last purpose, it is judged expedient that in all cases where the auxiliary Society is sufficiently large to employ a permanent Agent, he be also its Corresponding Secretary.

FORM OF CONSTITUTION,

Recommended to the adoption of Auxiliary Societies.

ART. I.—This Society shall be known by the name of the Domestic Missionary Society of _____, and shall be auxiliary to the American Home Missionary Society.

ART. II.—This Society shall be composed of such individuals as shall contribute annually to its funds, together with the members of the several church and congregational associations for Home Missions within the limits of this Society.

ART. III.—The officers of this Society shall be a president, _____ vice presidents, a treasurer, and a secretary, to be chosen at the annual meeting. These officers, in connexion with at least one person elected from each of the several associations of gentlemen composing the Society, shall constitute a board of directors, of whom not less than five shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. IV.—It shall be the duty of the board of directors to meet at the call of the president, or as often as shall be necessary for the transaction of business; to fill their own vacancies; to appoint an executive committee; to adopt the most energetic measures in their power, to accomplish the object of the Society; especially by distributing such publications as may be committed to them by the Parent Institution, and by deputing some of their number to attend the annual meetings of the several associations; and, in general, by using all suitable means to excite an interest in the cause of Home Missions.

ART. V.—The annual receipts of the Society, after defraying incidental expenses, shall be paid over to the treasurer of the Parent Society, with directions as to the section of country in which it shall be expended in missionary labours, should the board deem it important to give such directions.

ART. VI.—The Society shall meet as often as called by the directors, and annually on the _____ of March, when the officers shall be elected; the accounts of the treasurer, properly audited, shall be presented, and the annual report of the directors received; and when this constitution may be amended by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

ART. VII.—A copy of the constitution, authenticated by the secretary, together with the names and the residences of the officers annually elected, and also a copy of each annual report, shall be transmitted to the Corresponding Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, as early as the first of April, in each year.

SMALLER SOCIETIES.

Within the limits of each larger Society, there should be organized Auxiliary Societies or Associations. Of these Associations it is recommended that there be formed two in each town, parish, or congregation, the one composed of males, and the other of females; and that they adopt the following

RULES

For the Government of Church [or Congregational] Associations [or Societies] for Home Missions.

1. This Association shall be called the [or Female] Missionary Association, [or Society,] of [or directress,] a secretary, a treasurer, and [or Female] Missionary Association, [or Society,] of [or directress,] a secretary, a treasurer, and collectors, who shall be chosen annually, and together shall constitute a committee.

2. Every person who shall contribute annually to the funds shall be a member.

3. *The affairs of the Association shall be conducted by a first and second director, [or directress,] a secretary, a treasurer, and collectors, who shall be chosen annually, and together shall constitute a committee.

4. It shall be the duty of the committee to meet at least once in three months, to appoint assistant collectors, and transact such other business as may come before them.

5. The first director, [or directress,] and in case of his [or her] absence, the second director, [or directress,] shall preside in all meetings of the Association, and shall have power to call special meetings at pleasure.

The secretary shall keep the records, and manage the correspondence.

The treasurer shall take charge of the money collected, and, after deducting incidental expenses, shall pay the same to the American Home Missionary Society, [or to the Auxiliary Society of .]

It shall be the duty of the collectors to solicit and receive contributions. For this purpose, they shall make a suitable division of their labours, call upon the individuals within their respective limits, take the names of persons disposed to contribute, together with the sums which they will give for the year, and shall pay the amount of their collections to the treasurer, previous to the next annual meeting of the Association.

6. The Association shall meet annually, on the second Monday in March of each year, when the Report shall be read, and the election of officers held; and when these rules may be altered by a vote of two thirds of the members present.

7. The Annual Report of this Association shall be transmitted by the Secretary to the Secretary of the American Home Missionary Society, [or the Auxiliary Society of] immediately after the annual meeting of the Association.

* Or, if it be preferred, the third article may read as follows. "The affairs of this Association shall be conducted by the Elders (or Deacons) of this church, who shall annually appoint from their own number a first and second director, a secretary, a treasurer, and collectors; and these together shall constitute a committee."
